Wilson Shakes Cabinet

Takes Control Over Economy

LONDON—Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced a major reshuffle of his government today and named himself Britain's economic boss to lead the fight against mounting unemployment.

Government sources said Wilson was taking personal charge of economic affairs in the same way that a wartime prime minister would control the national effort by also making himself defence minister.

The administration, they said, has bolstered the pound and ensured future surpluses in the balance of payments, and now the main aim would be to boost industrial production.

Wilson took control of the economic affairs department previously run by former foreign secretary Michael Stewart.

Stewart, who keeps his No. 3 ranking in the 21-member cabinet, now is the chief coordinator of British domestic policies other than finance.

Among them were Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden, 62, and Douglas Jay, president of the board of trade, 60.

Economic Affairs Secretary Michael Stewart, 61, was dropped from the job but was kept in the cabinet with the title of first secretary.

Others whose "resignations" were announced were Minister of Overseas Development Arthur Bottomley, 60; Fred Willey, 57, minister of state for housing and local government, and Lord Walston, 55, parliamentary secretary to the board of trade.

WON'T TAKE TITLE

Wilson will not take the title of economic affairs secretary, it was announced, although he assumed over-all responsibility for running the country's economic policies. Stewart was succeeded in that job by Peter Shore, 43, formerly under-secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Bowden himself was given a peerage and named head of Britain's independent television authority.

Thomson's job has been taken over by Goronwy Roberts, 53, who now is likely to look after disarmament policy.

This job was done recently by Fred Mulley, another foreign office minister of state, who became deputy to Foreign Secretary George Brown.

Wilson made no changes directly involving new posts for James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer; Defence Secretary Denis Healey or Home

MORTARS, ROCKETS

Cong Hammer U.S. Bases

SAIGON (AP)—The Viet Cong kept up their intensified mortar and rocket attacks for the second day today, killing 10 United States marines, wounding 106 and destroying or damaging 12 helicopters.

The barrages against two U.S. bases in the northern part of South Vietnam followed a series of 12 mortar shellings up and down the country Sunday which killed or wounded more than 300 persons, most of them civilians.

U.S. officials considered the attacks another Viet Cong effort to scare the South Vietnamese from voting in the presidential election next Sunday. It had been months since the Viet Cong made a co-ordinated effort like they did Sunday.

In the air war against North Vietnam, the U.S. command announced that last week matched the worst previous week for plane losses, with 15 down over the North. Two planes—an air force F-4 Phantom and an F-100 Supersabre—went down Saturday and only one of the four men aboard was rescued. A total of 22 flyers was reported missing during the week.

POLICEMEN KILLED

A delayed report from the command said U.S. B-52 bombers killed 11 South Vietnamese policemen last Monday in the southern half of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam. The command said the target area had been approved in advance by the South Vietnamese province chief and that all bombs hit in the approved area.

N. KOREAN SOLDIERS KILL 4

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korean soldiers attacked a U.S. Army unit in daylight today near the demilitarized zone, killing one American and three others in the United Nations.

Twenty five were wounded in the attack, including some U.S. soldiers. Other victims were South Korean civilian employees of the Americans.

The attack came between the southern boundary of the zone between North and South Korea and the UN command base camp, about 550 yards south of the boundary line.

War Protest Rally Set

NEW YORK (AP)—A coalition of anti-Vietnam war groups announced Monday it plans a massive demonstration in Washington on Oct. 21 in an attempt to shut down the Pentagon, headquarters of the U.S. defence department. A statement issued by the National Mobilization Committee to End the war in Vietnam said demonstrators will try to fill the hallways and block the entrances of the Pentagon.

GREEK KING DENOUNCED IN TORONTO

TORONTO (CP)—Several thousand Greek-Canadians demonstrated Sunday against visiting King Constantine, carrying placards denouncing him for support of what they called Greece's "fascist" military government.

The protest started late Sunday afternoon when an estimated 3,000 of Toronto's 40,000-member Greek community gathered in downtown Queen's Park to hear a series of speakers accuse King Constantine of accepting and supporting the military junta which this April ousted civilian government in Greece.

"We know the king tried to resist the generals, but he is still ignorant and guilty," said Angelo Giannakopoulis, secretary of the newly-formed Committee for the Restoration of Democracy in Greece.

"He should have abdicated. If he had, the generals would not have been accepted by the people or the world."

Several counter - demonstrators shouting "Long live the king" were hustled from the park.

The crowd then moved to the nearby Park Plaza Hotel where the king is staying during his Toronto visit. A Toronto policeman refused them admittance to present their petition, telling them to deliver it "through proper channels" at the Greek consulate.

The petition called on the king to withdraw all support for the "fascist junta," restore the civilian constitution and release political prisoners.

Plane 10 Miles Off Course

HURON, Ohio (AP)—A steady rain dampened rescue hopes for 14 missing sky divers today, 18 hours after they leaped through an overcast sky and missed their target by 10 miles, landing in choppy Lake Erie. There were two survivors.

At noon about 200 coast guardsmen, police and volunteers in 21 boats had found only a few pieces of the sky divers' gear. Nine underwater divers and two helicopters pressed the search at dawn.

"The chances of the divers coming out alive is slim," said coast guard Lieut. Paul Potter on the scene.

"It's so iffy it's hard to give any kind of real indication on how long a man might survive," another coast guard spokesman in Cleveland said. "It could be several days, if he did everything right and got the breaks."

The rains, choppy waters and decreased visibility caused increasing difficulty shortly before dawn as an armada of navy, coast guard, air force, army and private citizens ended an all-night search.

LAKE SWEPT

Searchers had swept 150 square miles of Lake Erie for the 14—among 18 sky divers who were buffeted off their target by 58 mile-an-hour winds at 20,000 feet when they jumped from a B-25 aircraft Sunday.

LOWNSBURY
. . . body found

Two bodies, including that of a woman who celebrated her wedding by sky diving, were recovered.

The bodies, recovered within half an hour of the jump, were being kept in a temporary morgue. Officials, meanwhile, tried to identify the owners of seven gloves, three chutes and four reserve chutes, the only items recovered from the lake.

Two other sky divers escaped by staying on the plane for a second pass at higher altitude.

Helicopters, planes and an armada of coast guard and military and private boats that included the ocean-going tug Kaw combed a 100-square mile area of the lake.

DIVERS SEARCH

Coast Guard Lieut. Paul Potter, who saw the multi-colored chutes descend through overcast skies into the lake Sunday at 4:30 p.m., said chances that the 14 missing jumpers survived the night in the 72-degree water were "slim."

Exactly how the 18 Ohio parachute enthusiasts, most of whom had more than 100 jumps to their credit, missed their target by 10 miles was unknown.

"As far as I know, I was right where I was supposed to be," the pilot, Robert Karns, told Ohio Highway Patrolman John Shimp.

Shimp quoted Karns as saying he was flying by a radar fix furnished him by the Federal

SURVIVOR TELLS WHAT HAPPENED:

'Certainly Got Surprise As I Came Out of Cloud'

Editor's Note: Robert Coy, 29, of Springfield, Ohio, is one of two known survivors of a skydiving disaster in which two persons drowned and 14 others were missing and feared dead. The following is his personal report on the tragedy.)

By ROBERT COY
As Told to United Press International

HURON, Ohio (UPI) — There was a pretty thick cloud layer . . . about 4,000 feet at the bottom and 6,000 at the top.

We jumped from 20,000 feet. Radar was to guide us over our exit point which was the airfield.

We planned to free fall to 2,500 feet and land on the airport or wherever we were.

We certainly got a surprise about where we were.

As I came out of the cloud layer over Lake Erie, I could see the shore. I opened my chute to drift as close as possible to shore.

After I hit the water I held on to my reserve parachute, which will float. I used a standard water procedure, unhooking everything but the saddle (reserve chute) and survival kit.

The reserve was hanging from one strap on my left side when I hit. The cover was off the harness release and all I had to do was jiggle it.

I floated on that until it became waterlogged, then I took off my helmet and filled it with air. I floated on the helmet.

●

The water was very rough. I couldn't see anyone else. All I could hear was the roar of the waves. They were going over my head and swishing down my throat.

My plan was to stay afloat as long as possible in the hope somebody would pick me up and that's what happened.

A private boat picked me up three miles from shore. I was afraid he didn't see me but he did. Then he went on out and picked up Bob Johnson about five miles out.

Later we found a canopy (parachute) but there was no one attached to it.

I was in the water only about 10 or 15 minutes but it seemed like three hours.

My rescuers—God bless them.

Top Tories Cry Delegate 'Fix'

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA (CP)—Charges of rigging the Conservative party leadership convention flew today with the resignation of a national officer of the party and a formal complaint about delegate accreditation backed by some leadership candidates.

Miss Laura G. Mann, an Ontario director of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, quit the four-member committee selecting Ontario's 90 delegates at large for the convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9.

She accused convention co-chairman E. A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer, of undemocratically packing the list of selections without the committee's formal approval.

Meanwhile, Dr. James Johnston, national director of the party, sent a formal letter of protest, backed by at least three leadership candidates, against the addition as voting delegates of 84 persons who participated in the Montmorency Falls, Que., policy advisory conference earlier this month.

His protest was said here to be supported by candidates Alvin Hamilton, Davie Fulton and Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

EXCEEDED NUMBER

Dr. Johnston said in a letter to Gene Rheaume, convention secretary, that the 84 far exceed the number agreed upon by the convention committee at a meeting in Victoria earlier in the year.

He said the maximum should be 30.

Furthermore, he said, 51 of the 84 were from one province—Ontario—and a "large number" were known supporters of one of the nine leadership candidates.

Neither Miss Mann in her letter to Mr. Goodman nor Dr. Johnston in his to Mr. Rheaume identified the candidate in whose favor voting delegates were being appointed.

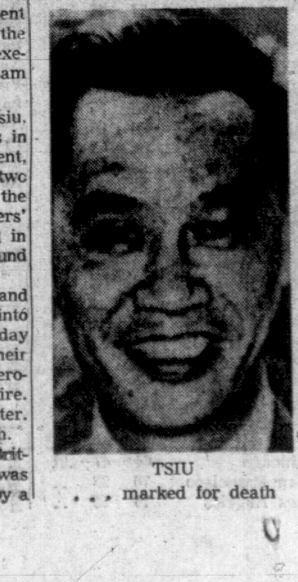
Terrorists Put Six Men On Hong Kong Death List

HONG KONG (AP)—Chinese terrorists today published a death list of six prominent anti-Communist Chinese the Communists said would be executed like radio comedian Lam Bun.

The list included Paul Tsiu, secretary for Chinese affairs in the Hong Kong government, two legislative councillors, two newspaper executives and the chairman of a village elders' association. It was published in the terrorists' underground newspaper.

The 37-year-old comedian and his brother were turned into human torches last Thursday when terrorists bombed their car, doused them with kerosene, and then set them afire. Lam Bun died 30 hours later. His brother, 27, is near death.

Hong Kong police said a British army demolition expert was blown 200 feet down a cliff by a hidden bomb today, bringing the number of terrorist deaths in eight days to five. Earlier today, a 39-year-old Chinese man died of injuries received in a bomb trap intended for police and army demolition squads.



TSIU

Police said they would give protection to anyone who was threatened or who had reason to believe his life was in danger from terrorists.

Otherwise, Hong Kong enjoyed a peaceful weekend. Only one bomb was found and the situation at the border with China returned to normal.

The border crossing at Man Kman To reopened after two weeks and food trucks resumed normal travel from China. Food prices, up during the period when the border was closed, started to return to normal.

Rail traffic bringing food from the mainland still was disrupted because of the turbulent situation in the adjoining province of Kwangtung.

ZAMBIA NOT AIDING RHODESIA GUERRILLAS

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuters) — The Zambian government denied Sunday night it is helping guerrillas in Rhodesia.

The statement followed a warning Friday by Rhodesian Deputy Premier John Wrathall that steps might be taken against Zambia if it continues to harbor and shelter guerrillas.

The statement, which quoted spokesmen for President Kenneth Kaunda, said the total liberation of Africa is a fundamental principle of Zambian policy.

"There is, however, absolutely no truth in the allegation that Zambia is helping fredeom fighters with arms or that the Zambian government is providing any other facilities which could be described as encouraging or assisting them in the armed confrontation reported."

Rhodesians Hunt African Rebels

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesian tribesmen aided soldiers scouring bush country Sunday for Negro nationalist guerrillas after fierce fighting near Victoria Falls, it was officially reported here.

A government statement said constant harrying by Rhodesian police, troops and aircraft is putting heavy pressure on the guerrillas, forcing some of them to abandon equipment.

It said local tribesmen aided the hunt by reporting the pressence of strangers to soldiers. Roadblocks were set up in the area near the junction of the Rhodesia, Zambia, Botswana and Southwest Africa frontiers.

The guerrillas, reported on their way to South Africa from Zambia, lost 24 dead in recent fighting, according to official figures issued here. Security forces suffered six dead and 12 wounded.

Five guerrillas were captured Friday in addition to 26 taken prisoner earlier, the government statement said. More arrests were made Saturday night, it added.

Security men said most of the guerrillas were South Africans, were well armed and some had been trained in Communist countries.

The government statement said some of the guerrillas were running short of food and water — a major hazard as a time of drought has made vegetation sparse and water holes low, if not dry.

Some sources here claimed that as many as 2,000 trained men waited in camps in Zambia to cross into Rhodesia and then try to move south to the Transvaal in South Africa.

. . . WILSON

Secretary Roy Jenkons. All had been tipped for possible moves.

A one-time Commonwealth secretary, Bottomley will soon be made British representative in a Commonwealth capital, still to be announced.

The new overseas development minister is 44-year-old Reginald Prentice, formerly minister of public building and works.

Patrick Gordon Walker, foreign secretary briefly when Wilson's Labor administration first took office in October, 1964, became the new education secretary, giving up the co-ordinating role now allocated to Stewart.

Wilson's own control of the economic affairs department will strengthen his own direct interest in the nation's industrial recovery and also his own personal position in the government.

The prime minister named one of his proteges to work directly under him as economic affairs secretary, Peter Shore, who until now has been a junior minister in the same department.

MADE OTHER SWITCHES

Besides these main changes, Wilson announced several switches in junior ministerial posts aimed at bringing in more young men groomed for future cabinet status.

This brings down the average age of the cabinet from just under 55 years to just over 53.

Jay is expected to become the focal point for the anti-Common Market campaign from Labor's back-benches in Parliament, since no other government job is in line for him.

"That will come out," Miss Mann said at a press conference she called to announce her resignation.

Her letter said she might have found acceptable most of the Ontario voting delegates-at-large accredited by Mr. Goodman if proper attention had been given to democratic procedures.

"As far as I am concerned, I do not believe that the 90 delegates-at-large from Ontario have been properly selected.

"I cannot condone your actions and will be no part of them."

JOHNSTON COMPLAINS

Dr. Johnston complained that accreditation of 84 voting delegates from the Montmorency conference gives this group, which included non-party members, almost as many votes for the leadership as the 96 elected members of Parliament.

He said only British Columbia, Quebec, Ontario and Alberta will have more voting delegates elected at the constituency level than the Montmorency group.

Dr. Johnston is an appointee of Mr. Diefenbaker to the national director's post. Miss Mann said that she is a Diefenbaker supporter "and don't you think he isn't going to run."

Mr. Diefenbaker has not publicly declared his intentions.

The other candidates in the leadership race are MPs George Hees and Michael Starr, Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon, Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, former finance minister Donald Fleming, and auto dealer John Maclean of Brockville.

Woman's Hat In Tory Ring

TORONTO (CP) — A 51-year-old Toronto woman told a press conference Saturday that she is placing her hat in the ring as the 10th candidate for the leadership of the national Progressive Conservative party.

Mrs. Mary Walker Sawka told reporters she had filed an intention to run at the Sept. 5-9 leadership convention with convention headquarters a week ago. However, a headquarters spokesman said Mrs. Sawka has not yet advised the party in writing of her intention to run, although she had spoken by telephone to officials.

Mrs. Sawka described herself as a movie producer, director and writer, and president of Palmar Production Enterprises Ltd.

"A castle! Well that's a sort of house without rats!"

. . . SKY DIVERS

Aviation Agency tower at Hopkins International Airport in Cleveland and a Loran station at Amherst.

WERE NOT PREPARED

The divers were unprepared for the landing in water. None had floating equipment, the two survivors said. Each carried about 50 pounds of equipment.

Patricia C. Lownsbury of Akron—who had celebrated her wedding June 28, 1964, by sky diving with her husband—was found dead in the water.

"She loved sky diving," said her husband, Alvin.

Lownsbury, an iron worker, had made the wedding sky dive with his bride. He quit jumping earlier this year after suffering his fourth broken leg.

"It hadn't been a month ago that Pat and I jumped into Chippewa Lake," Lownsbury said. Sky divers sometimes intentionally leap into water, but carry floating equipment in such cases.

The other known drowning victim was Dorsie Kitchen Jr., 33, also of Akron. One of the missing, Michael Thiem of Springfield, had told friends before the jump that he didn't like the idea of going. I was too close to Lake Erie and he couldn't swim, he told them.

Winds were estimated at 58 miles an hour at 20,000 feet up.

HAS LITTLE HOPE

"If they are out there in that water with parachutes on I don't imagine we will get too many of them alive," said highway Patrol Sgt. R. L. Schell.

After the 18 had jumped, Karns made another pass over the area and two other men—Jumpmasters Larry Hartman of Fairview Park and Allen Homestead of Oberlin, bailed out and landed safety at Ortner Air Service field, near Wakeman, some 10 miles from the lake and the intended target area for all the divers.

Shimp said Karns told him "they had planned to make the second pass because two of the jumpers wanted to jump from higher than 20,000 feet. The two had special oxygen equipment."

Robert Coy of Springfield, a survivor, said: "I was shocked and flabbergasted to see that I was over the lake. We assumed we were over the field.

"As soon as I broke out of the clouds, I knew something was wrong," Coy added. "All I saw was water."

"The waves were over my head and water was swishing into my mouth," he added. Coy said he stayed afloat by making an air pocket within his crash helmet.

Bernard Johnson, 30, of West Richfield, Ohio, the other survivor, said: "I was more fortunate. My chute canopy stayed inflated, acting like a life preserver." Johnson was making his 267th jump.

Plane Hits Tower

NEW YORK (UPI) — A light charter plane returning from an unauthorized flight to east Long Island smashed into a 480-foot radio transmission tower Sunday, killing at least two persons and knocking out two major AM radio stations off the air. The bodies, tentatively identified as William Sedutto, 32, and Ronald Bumbalo, 31, both of New York, had been recovered.

COURT HEARING STORMY

Vets Protest Nazi Funeral

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—A psychiatric hearing was ordered today for John C. Patler, 29, accused of murdering Commander George Lincoln Rockwell of the American Nazi party.

Today's proceedings were interrupted briefly by the cry of "you filthy assassin," shouted at Patler in the courtroom by a man identified as Eric Ray Wenberg, 21.

Court officials said Wenberg is an Australian, in the United States on a tourist visa and now living at the Nazi party headquarters near which Rockwell was shot to death last Friday.

Arlington County Judge L. Jackson Embrey sentenced Wenberg to 10 days in jail and a $50 fine for contempt of ocurt.

Embrey said he would ask for an official copy of a psychiatric report on Patler based on an examination at least 10 years ago.

COURTROOM CLEARED

After the courtroom had been cleared for 15 minutes after the outburst, reporters and officials returned to find Patler seated at the defence table behind a cordon of police.

After the 12-minute hearing Patler was escorted back to jail, where he is being held under $50,000 bond.

Wenberg's outburst was brief. He leaped from a bench in the courtroom shouting the "assassin" charge at Patler and also calling him "You filthy swine!"

Policemen swarmed over Wenberg, handcuffed him and carried him out of the courtroom by the hands and feet.

As police carried the demonstrator out, he shouted "long live the American Nazi party! Long live Mat Koehl!" Koehl is Rockwell's apparent successor as head of the small but vocal party, based in this Washington suburb.

Earlier, a veterans' group protested against plans of the American Nazi party to bury Rockwell in a national cemetery with full military honors.

Party members were awaiting a defence department decision on whether Rockwell, leader of the anti-Negro and anti-Jewish stormtroop organization, can be buried Tuesday at the Culpepper, Va., National Cemetery, 65 miles southwest of Washington.

Police recovered Saturday what they identify as the murder weapon—a 7.62-millimetre semi-automatic Mauser pistol. It was found in a stream three blocks from the shooting scene. Its ownership has not been determined, police said.

VOICES PROTEST

Protesting the party's plan to bury the 49-year-old Rockwell at Culpepper, Robert Miller, chief of staff for the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Virginia, said: "It is wrong that a man living against the ideals we have fought for should be laid to rest beside comrades who have given their lives for the country's freedom."

Rockwell's family wanted to bury him at Boothbay Harbor, Me. near the home, of his father, retired comedian George Rockwell. The Nazi leader lived in Maine as a young advertising executive and went to school there.

However, the slain man's brother, Robert K. Rockwell of Barrington, R.I., said Sunday "the family no longer wishes to contest the claim" of the Nazis to make the funeral arrangements.

Robert Rockwell said he was "quite sure" no members of the family would attend the services.

As a navy veteran of the Second World War and the Korean War, Rockwell, honorably discharged, appeared qualified for burial in a national cemetery, with full military honors.

Black Market Jeopardizing Vietnam Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee sharply cirticized U.S. aid programs in South Vietnam Sunday night and said failure to make substantial reforms "could lead to a reassessment of the U.S. position."

In a follow-up to a report last year, the foreign operations and government information subcommittee says "the responsible U.S. officials are as much at fault as the government of Vietnam."

Unless the government of South Vietnam undertakes action in a number of areas, the report concludes, "the prospects of success are minimal, and the advisability of U.S. involvement is questionable and could lead to a reassessment of the U.S. position."

The su[illegible]ittee's findings are contai[illegible] three reports, the first of n[illegible]e to be issued.

The subcommittee reports improvements in the black market situation, handling of imports and port operations, but it criticizes the Agency for International Development for failing to do more to carry out its earlier recommendations.

In reviewing the black market situation, the subcommittee reports that, despite increased security at U.S. post exchanges and other steps, "the black markets in currency and commodities have not, however, been put out of existence entirely."

The subcommittee makes a number of recommendations for improvement in the handling of U.S. aid, including establishment of a central purchasing organization to standardize procurement and expedite distribution, stricter review of the background of applicants for import licences and application of the same requirements given new importers to those there already.

Chinese Attack Crew On Greek Freighter

LONDON (Reuters) — Chinese Red Guards have beaten up crew members of a Greek freighter anchored in Shanghai, Moscow radio reported today.

It said the ship's captain had torn up his contract with the Chinese and sailed to the Soviet Asian port of Nachodka where he asked for medical aid for himself and several of his crew.

About 200 Red Guards attacked the ship after the captain asked the Shanghai authorities to restore order among fighting longshoremen, according to the radio's correspondent.

The broadcast, which gave no date for the reported incident, said the freighter was hired by the Chinese to ferry cargoes between China and foreign ports. The vessel's name could not be made out clearly in the broadcast monitored here.

40,000 to Be Freed

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia will release some 40,000 Communists jailed since the Communist-backed coup attempt here in 1965. The armed forces bulletin Monday quoted Brig.-Gen. Gatot Suwagia, civil defence chief, as saying citizens should keep a watch on Communists' behavior after their release.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

An intense storm centred near the weather ship is nearly stationary today. The weather with this storm will generally remain offshore. However, the north coast will experience some cloudiness and rain from this system Tuesday. Other parts of B.C. will remain effectively under a ridge of high pressure and the sunny, warm weather will persist.

Election Means Gifts In Vietnam Campaign

Two Associated Press reporters investigated South Vietnam's election campaign in the northern Mekong Delta, home of 1,000,000 voters. Here is their report.

By PETER ARNETT
KELLY SMITH

TAN AN (AP)—In the villages that line the canals crisscrossing the Mekong Delta, and in the government towns surrounded by barbed wire, the official word is that South Vietnam's presidential election Sept. 3 will be the first opportunity for the Vietnamese people to make a free choice for a government.

But the hard facts threaten hopes that democracy is even beginning if recent events in the northern Mekong Delta are duplicated elsewhere.

A government official suspected of supporting a presidential slate other than that of Gen. Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky might lose his job. That happened to the deputy province chief for security in Long An province, Maj. Nguyen Van Xanh.

Should the peasants be unsure of a choice among the 11 presidential slates, he might be enlightened by any of the district chiefs. All openly favor the Thieu-Ky ticket.

Special booths are being provided for soldier voters in some districts, suggesting to some observers the possibility of voting irregularities.

HAVE BROAD FOLLOWING

As the current chief of state and premier of Vietnam, Thieu and Ky head a government and military apparatus that employs 1,000,000 people. Many observers feel this guarantees their election. No other candidates have anywhere near the broad following that the military men can pull.

American officials say the activities of the military slate's supporters have been generally covert and probably will not take the form of anything so obvious as ballot box stuffing.

However, these Americans say the transfer of the security chief of Long An, Maj. Xanh, was a blatant, unnecessary and unwise act. The Viet Cong in the province already are making nightly attacks against government outposts, blowing up main highways, murdering election officials, and threatening to blow the two largest steel and concrete bridges in the area.

MASSES KNOW LITTLE

The great mass of the people appear to know that there is an election coming up, but they have no real grasp of what it means, or who the candidates are.

Ky may get votes, not because of his military record but because his supporters tell farmers in the province, "Vote for the man with the moustache." He's the only candidate that has one.

Peasants often believe the election means a handout of food and clothing, because whenever the government information service comes to their hamlet to talk about voting, it brings gifts.

Peace is the main concern of hundreds of farmers, fishermen, and laborers interviewed in the countryside, and many observers believe that any candidate with a peace ticket would get tremendous backing from the rural population.

A hamlet schoolteacher, asked why he would vote, said: "I will vote because the government asked me to. The government is very powerful and when they ask us to do something we're expected to do it."

Women, Children Suffer War Agony

By GEORGE ESPER

CAN THO, South Vietnam (AP)—His tiny chest throbbed with pain from the shell fragments that tore into his body. His eyes were filled with all the agonies of war.

He was a brave little boy. He did not cry, at least not aloud, not at first, when one of the wounds in his back began to hemorrhage.

Then the pain and fear became more than a boy of seven could contain, even with his wounded grandmother, her own face pocked with superficial shrapnel wounds, at his side. Finally, he screamed.

His mother could not come to him. She lay wounded in the same hospital in a bed only a few feet away.

The boy, his mother and her mother were the victims early Sunday of a Viet Cong mortar shelling of Can Tho that left 46 persons dead and 222 wounded.

The South Vietnamese provincial hospital in this Mekong Delta city 80 miles southwest of Saigon was filled with men, women and children wounded in the attack. There were perhaps 100 persons jammed into the main ward. With the wounded were their families who remained at their side, as is the custom of the Vietnamese.

She had suffered a skull fracture in the Viet Cong shelling that poured more than 100 rounds of fire at several areas in this city of 118,000 persons.

"Let's tie her feet together because she's having a convulsion," shouted one American medic as the men hoisted the stretcher. She would be transferred to hospital that had a resident neurosurgical specialist.

THOUSANDS OF CHINESE JEER PILOT

TOKYO (AP) — A captured U.S. pilot shot down over Chinese territory was put on display Saturday before a jeering crowd of Red Guards, soldiers and civilians reviled as a "pirate" and "devil," the New China news agency said today.

The broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, did not identify the pilot. It said 4,000 took part in Nanning, Kwangsi province, and "angrily denounced U.S. imperialism's latest crime of aggression against China."

The U.S. has said that two A6E jets strayed over China Aug. 21 and apparently were shot down by Chinese planes or pursuing North Vietnamese MiGs. The four flyers are listed as missing.

U.S. MAY MAKE VIET UN PROBLEM

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new effort by some U.S. senators to bring the Vietnam war before the United Nations appears to be generating with tacit approval of President Johnson.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's statement that the administration is interested in seeing UN action on a long-dormant U.S. resolution for reconvening of the Geneva conference sparked new inspection of this possible avenue toward peace negotiations.

Senator George D. Aiken of Vermont, senior Republican member of the Senate foreign relations committe, in an interview urged Johnson to ask the UN Security Council to try to get the South Vietnamese government to open negotiations after its election Sept. 3.

William P. Bundy, undersecretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs, said Sunday, however, the United States probably would stay entirely out of peace talks if the new Saigon government found a way to negotiate with the Viet Cong and requested U.S. absence.

Bundy also said the U.S. would "take very seriously" any request by an elected South Vietnamese government that bombing policy be altered.

MET WITH JOHNSON

Mansfield said in an interview Saturday he believes Johnson will act to put the issue before the Security Council. He had met with Johnson earlier last week.

President action to touch off UN discussion of the war could be interpreted in the Senate as an attempt to offset growing opposition to the course he is following in Vietnam.

Mansfield said he favors inviting China, North Vietnam, the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, and the new Saigon government to participate in the Security Council's discussions.

Bundy said the United States has "no indication that Hanoi is ready to call off" the war, but said it was possible next Sunday's elections might change that.

Scarcity or Scare?

A FEW WEEKS AGO PRESIDENT Johnson's Science Advisory Committee released a report, "The World Food Problem," in which it was stated that food and population trends pointed to frequent famine throughout half the world within 10 years time. Dr. Lester Brown, administrator of the United States department of agriculture international development service, was quoted the other day on this: "It was not long ago that we were saying that we have 10 to 20 years to solve the world food problem. But it now appears that we have much less time in which to stop and reverse the unfavorable food-population trends. . . ."

Basically this is the same story which has been told so many times that it is somewhat startling to hear it refuted by two studies published in the United States last week. The first report is from the department of agriculture, Dr. Brown's employer, and it predicts that the world will have ample food production into the 1980s. In fact, the department says, the more advanced nations may still be worrying about grain surpluses at that time.

* * *

The other study, published by the American Foreign Policy Association, and quoted approvingly by Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman, finds evidence for a "moderately optimistic view" of the race between food supplies and population growth in the developing nations. It adds that there would be serious economic problems if the less-developed nations had to depend on ever-greater imports and food aid.

What is behind this more cheerful view of the world food situation emanating from American officials? In part it seems to be a new philosophical approach to the problem. This is based on a belief that increasing food aid to under-developed countries will tend to make them depend on the donors and undermine their own incentive to produce the food they need.

This philosophy, however, fits in neatly with the need for the Johnson administration to bolster sagging American farm prices in advance of next year's presidential election. Some hints of this were given—along with a warning that Canadian farm prices are also vulnerable—at the recent joint meeting of the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society and the American Farm Economics Association in Guelph, Ontario.

Dr. Walter Wilcox, director of economics for the United States agriculture department, along with other American speakers, carefully outlined what would happen to the prices of wheat and other farm commodities if the United States withdrew its various support programs, including the "soil bank" project which held 60 million acres of crop land out of production last year. Wheat prices, he said, could drop to $1 a bushel and there would be dumping of grain into less developed nations and a price war among the leading wheat exporting countries.

* * *

Concurrently with the Guelph meeting, members of the American National Farmers' Organization, authorized their leaders to call for the withholding of all farm products from the market unless their demands for higher prices were met. As a result of this the administration is backing a measure in Congress to stockpile millions of bushels of wheat, feed grains and soybeans—that is, to remove them from the market in order to hold up prices.

Obviously there is something strange going on when a world food-population crisis can be turned almost overnight into something which gives little cause for concern. The situation deserves close scrutiny. Only weeks ago it was reported in official quarters that the wheat surpluses of the past were used up and there was a danger of shortages. Now the surpluses appear to be with us again and there is need to take care that the hungry of the world are not made into permanent indigents through a misplaced generosity in distributing these surpluses.

The Gist of the Thing

IN A FEW WORDS TO THE opening meeting of the Anglican Synod at Ottawa last week, Prime Minister Pearson gave a capsule summary of Canada's aspirations and the means by which they can be achieved. It was not a major address, and perhaps for this reason did not receive wide publicity, and it did not, in truth, say anything that Mr. Pearson had not previously expressed in public. But as a concise statement of the principle of Canadian unity as a national policy—the only possible national policy—the Prime Minister's words deserve attention.

Mr. Pearson noted that "the love of a man for his own language and cultural traditions, inside a Confederation, can be as constructive as it is sincere and deep." And he gave this a Canadian application.

"In our own country . . . loyalty to the whole state—to its unity—should not mean or require the loss of this special attachment to distinctive French cultural and linguistic values and their maintenance and growth in the body politic. Such a loyalty only becomes a negative and destructive force when it results in agitation for political separation and fragmentation . . ."

On the other hand, "there can be no lasting or creative national unity through attempts at absorption; or by the kind of centralization which ignores these basic differences; or which ignore regional or provincial interests or feelings. Sound and enduring unity will never be secured merely by conscription to a common national task or by obedience to an imposed national policy . . ."

Many Canadians accept such principles in a theoretical way, but jibe at their practical implementation. They fear the effects of correct policies even while they are agreeing to the words in which they are expressed. It is at this point that the actions of a political leader and his critics must diverge, for the head of a government must put into practice the broad principles on which the country agrees.

There is little point, for instance, in defending the theoretical right of French-speaking Canadians to retain their language, and then becoming indignant because a street sign or government building appears in bi-lingual form. We should not cavil at the concrete implementation of concepts which we accept in theory. And we should not attack those who carry out policies to which we have given verbal assent.

That this is a job for Canadians alone, Mr. Pearson also makes clear. "We will repudiate," he says, "interference in our affairs by those who may mistakenly believe that we are not Canadians, so much as Canadian Frenchmen, or Canadian Americans, or Canadian Englishmen, or Canadian something else."

There is nothing in Mr. Pearson's statement in regard to the rights and equality of French-speaking Canadians to imply that they have not also equality of responsibility in making Confederation survive. He sees a "Canada of unity and variety: with authority and strength at the centre but with the provinces administering—and able to administer—their own affairs as they grow in scope and importance. This is the only way Canadian federalism can work. If it doesn't work this way, there will be no Canada."

That is something that the governments of every Canadian province might well note: British Columbia and Quebec included.

Problems and Solutions: A Brief Run-Down

THE assumption here, is that the world's problems are not insoluble if only men have the will to match their resources to their problems and act boldly. There are staggering problems, but they are not hopeless.

The one that lends itself least to hope is world hunger, which results partly from the fact that modern science has dealt with early deaths so effectively, but that the nations needing them most have not caught up with the potentials either of family planning or of improved food production.

Japan dealt brilliantly with its problem of population control by a campaign of legalized abortions and sterilization, but its industrial vigor also gave it the trade balance to import food as a supplement to its improved agriculture.

India is starting a sterilization campaign, but it cannot be effective without other measures. Neither India nor Pakistan nor Egypt has yet shown the necessary mastery of agriculture, nor the will toward population control, to assure survival.

Global Program

I should like to see a world summit meeting of religious leaders who would give their massive authority to a global program of family planning, which strikes me as better in every way to non-selective sterilization. If this could be done, the agronomists could do something about improved food raising without entering into a hopeless race with the birth rate.

The other specter that hangs over mankind is the prospect of widespread nuclear death. It is true that the bomb has not been used since Hiroshima, mainly because the "balance of terror" has kept responsible leaders from recourse to it. But it is also true that it will not forever remain in the hands of responsible leaders and that little has been done in 20 years to develop world controls of the weapons.

The test-ban treaty, following the Cuban missile crisis, was a start toward controls; and the recent news from Geneva suggests the next step. But it may be too timid and tiny a step.

There are broadly three directions for movement toward control. One is toward a non-proliferation agreement, but the trouble with it is that not only the Germans, but Japan and India and the other nations will see it as a self-serving move on the part of the Russians and Americans.

Further Steps

The second direction is toward self-limiting moves by the Russians and the Americans, including machinery for inspection, which will cut back their own nuclear arms race. If the two nations can agree, at Geneva, to resist developing the new anti-missile missiles, it will show the will toward further self-limiting steps.

The third direction is toward some kind of world policing authority which will inspect and police the control aggreements and make certain that ABC weapons — atomic, biological, chemical — are not being made in secret.

Given the present state of the United Nations, I doubt whether this can be done within it. A more likely way is to start with a Concert of Powers which will include the developed nations of Europe, Asia and the Americas, and whose functions will be peace-keeping, economic integration and also aid to the developing nations. I suspect that NATO, which is largely outworn, will have to be reborn as part of such a grouping and will play primarily a peace role rather than a military one.

It will be said that this reckons without Charles de Gaulle, but I don't mean to. De Gaulle is a great intellect and personality, and in his earlier years he was right on many things. But his recent Canadian adventure on Sudeten politics, his blundering in domestic social policies and his last TV speech ("the great enemy is doubt") all suggest that it is unwise to attack him: he caricatures himself better than anyone else can.

I suspect that Jean Monnet was right all along in saying that the best way to meet de Gaulle is not to attack him, but to work quietly toward the innovations which will not only integrate Western Europe within itself, but also integrate it with the Americas on one side and with Eastern Europe on the other.

Equal Application

This formula applies equally to the Latin-American and the Asian countries: they need to achieve economic integration among themselves first, on their own continents, and reach out toward the great powers in an interchange of science, technology, education, culture.

As for the problem of China and its new weapons, if it can stop tearing itself to pieces through a series of civil massacres it will have to face a Concert of Powers — including Russia and America — that will expect it to join in a world policing authority. Against such a united world opinion the new Chinese leaders — when they finally emerge — will not be able to hold out.

Solution

I wonder if such a costly scheme to provide a tunnel across Vancouver's Burrard Inlet could not be avoided.

I think it could be if the authorities had the sense and courage to deal ruthlessly with the motor car. Only by closing certain central areas to private cars while providing fast and frequent public service transport will we be able to walk and loiter, linger, reflect and even breathe again in a civilized way and in safe and salubrious comfort, so that city life ceases to be a hotbed of nervous prostration. — John Lynas, 572 Niagara.

Hopeful

We hear and read a good deal about our free society. Why is it, then, that when a group of people choose to dress, look and act in a radically different manner, there is talk of the police going into Centennial Square with whips? It has been admitted that the group is not breaking any law.

I know the hippie community only as an outsider, yet in my contacts with hippies I have found them gentle, unfailingly courteous and kind. These qualities in young people should make us all hopeful. — A. A. M., 1648 Rockland.

Personal Opinion

An article appeared in your paper, August 24, on page 30, headlined Indians to Protest Transfer of Official. In this article I was quoted as spokesman and speaking for the Cowichan Indian Band at Duncan, B.C.

In making the above statement, I was not speaking on behalf of the Cowichan Band Council or the Cowichan Band of Indians. I was expressing my own personal opinion, in regard to the official involved.—George Daniels, Councillor, Cowichan Band Council, Koksilah, B.C.

Fair Ferry Fare

I imagine most Vancouver Islanders find it necessary to use the efficient government ferry service occasionally, and then there must also be a fair percentage, like myself, who find it necessary for either business or pleasure reasons to ride the ferries more than just occasionally.

I am not complaining, as it costs money to run a ship, but we should have easy access to other parts of this province. Why should we pay the same rates as tourists for a service which is very tourist-oriented? I suggest that a rebate could be offered on an annual basis to those who apply, and are able to present fare receipts in excess of, say, $100. A 15 or 20 per cent kickback would not be unreasonable. — William M. Inkman, 4286 Cedar Hill Road.

Warburton Mayer Pike

For the past eighteen months I have been gathering material on W. M. Pike in preparation for a biographical sketch to be published in book form. All the obvious sources of information have been examined as well as many obscure ones in England, the United States and other countries.

If any of your readers have unpublished photographs of W. M. Pike, letters or other relevant material, I would much appreciate hearing from them. — (Miss) Gwen Hayball, Plumper Cottage, Mayne Island, B.C.

FROM RIO DE JANEIRO

By HENRY HOGG

Trapped in One of the World's Most Desolate Areas

FOR five days during August the seat of the Federal Government was moved to Recife, the centre of Brazil's blighted northeast. From here the President, Marshal Costa e Silva, and his Ministers governed the nation. It was in effect to try to do something concrete about one of the world's most desolate areas. The slogan for the five-day visit was: "Stop This Misery."

Returning to Rio from Recife, with the Navy Minister on board, there was an explosion in the cruiser Banross that killed nine seamen and two naval officers. Everyone hopes that the disaster is not another ill omen of the bad fortunes that have prevailed in Brazil's northeast — longer than Brazilians care to remember.

In Recife President Arthur da Costa e Silva signed 65 decrees, all with a view to improve the lot of some 25 million miserables whose per capita income hardly reaches $100 a year. Their span of life is 35 years as compared to 54 years and nine months for all Brazil. The fact that a man in the northeast has a "working life" of 11.5 years against 24.5 in Sao Paulo, certainly does not encourage capital investment in the area.

No Wonder

It is no wonder that anybody that can afford it, leaves the stricken drought lands of the northeast. The area is three times the size of France and whatever man can do to alleviate the misery there, Nature seems always ready to undo his work, and by drought and flood make his efforts look puny.

The Recife five-day administration is by no means the first step taken to help out by various schemes. Some may work, some may not. But the population is long-suffering and stoical. The keynote of Recife has been industrial development in the area but most observers believe that this could be compared to presenting a paralytic child with a pair of roller skates.

Health and education must come first. The illiteracy rate is as high as 80 per cent in the barren lands of the northeast. For the whole of Brazil the figure of 60 per cent is very generous indeed. In Recife, with a population of one million, there exist the worst slums or "favellas" — if not in all the world — certainly in the Western Hemisphere.

Little wonder that Rio and Sao Paulo receive an almost daily stream of escapees from the northeast. One of these is Nita Souto born in Paraiba do Norte. She is now 22 and a housemaid in Rio's upper class suburb of Ipanema. She earns $33 a month, most of which she sends to her three children in Paraiba. She was married when 13 years old — in Church, although the State does not recognize it as a legal marriage. She has had five children, two died of malaria.

Nita and her husband took 15 days to make the 1,200 mile trip on a truck with 40 other passengers. Nita explains that the trip was longer than expected as the driver fell in love with a pasenger, "so we had to wait around a good deal."

Rio, too, has its share of social scars and the misery of the "favellas" is an abomination. Recently a flash fire razed 72 "favella" homes to the ground, leaving 273 people homeless. The area where the 72 homes were situated is 1,750 square metres — less than half a soccer pitch. And yet Nita's great ambition is to buy one of the wooden huts perched on some hillside slum. She could then bring her children and foster parents to Rio where as Nita says "there's work and money." She is extremely proud of being able to read and write.

Out of Rio de Janeiro's four million population some 800,000 are "favella" dwellers, and while for the most part conditions for living are vile, they enjoy — for slum inhabitants — views of incredible beauty. Few "favellas" have an outlook that does not include the grandeur of verdant mountains, white surfed beaches and blue seas beyond and beyond.

The authorities, State and Federal, have made regular efforts to deal with the slum problem. These efforts are very much to the fore during the rain and flood season of December to March, when the worst sufferers are the "favella" folk. But with the approach of the dry season efforts stacken off.

The problem is not altogether economic. Thousands of the hill dwellers own TV sets and refrigerators. While Brazil claims to have no color problem — and this is very true to the effect that there have never been race riots in Brazil and nobody has suffered pain or punishment on account of the color of their skin — there does exist a physical taboo toward those who very definitely appear to be black or mulatto. Seldom does one see a colored waiter or shop assistant. Nothing is said, nothing is written, but the taboo does exist. The "favella" population is 90 per cent colored. Perhaps there is a sense of dark togetherness that keeps the "favellas" full.

Full Diversity

If political democracy in its full meaning has now been denied Brazilians, they still revel in a very full diversity. From the monotonous tone of the frustrated northeast, the swing of Rio and Sao Paulo always seems to be on the upbeat. The State of Sao Paulo has six million people — more than Australia. There are half a million Japanese employed in agriculture and small industries. The city of Sao Paulo has six million inhabitants manufacturing everything from tractors to tintacks and exporting some of them.

There are more Lebanese in the city of Sao Paulo than in Beirut. In 1930 the population was one million, and the city still retains the title of the fastest growing in the world. Everybody in Sao Paulo is busy and the taste of big money seems to be satisfying the appetites of immigrants from all over the world.

Ninety minutes jet flight from Rio are tribes of savage Indians whose women go about topless and miniless and, in their vanity, probably consider themselves the best undressed women in the world. But Rio itself, with its strange mixture of slums and swing, surf and sunshine, is still the nation's social capital, and its carefree inhabitants care little of such grave warnings that Brazil is a land of tomorrow but unfortunately tomorrow is always a holiday." So much the better.

Looking Back

From the Times, Aug. 28, 1907.

Heavier fines and stricter regulations will be provided for local auto owners shortly in consequence of the speed mania which is developing in the city.

The practice of racing through the streets, especially after dark, at a speed well over 20 miles an hour, is becoming so popular with local drivers that police and municipal authorities have been troubled greatly as of late.

Last week the Victoria police chief suggested that the present fine for speeding be raised.

After Vietnam what next is a question being increasingly asked in the U.S. There's a growing feeling that when American troops finally come out of the swamps and jungles of Southeast Asia, the U.S. will drop its present self-appointed role as policeman of the world.

Vietnam War Forcing U.S. To Examine Role in World

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON—The Vietnam war has reached a point where the critical question about its outcome no longer is simply the fate of South Vietnam or even of Southeast Asia.

A great deal will depend, of course, on exactly what comes into view once the shooting and bombing finally are ended. But the stresses and strains already visible here at home offer evidence that far more has now become involved than even the lives of American servicemen, the expenditure of billions, the disruption of the great society and the political fate of the president.

In short, a momentous question has now been raised: What will the Vietnam war do over the years ahead to the American will to continue the vast, world-wide role it currently plays, not to mention taking on burdens as yet unforeseen?

This is the question foreign diplomats—Allied, Communist and neutral alike—are beginning to ask. A British observer already has detected "the growing introspection of America." Others, with long memories, wonder if some new form of isolationism is about to bloom.

Arrogance of Power

Charges that Vietnam constitutes the wrong war in the wrong place have expanded into allegations of "arrogance of power," over-commitment and a foolish determination of the United States to act as the "world's policemen."

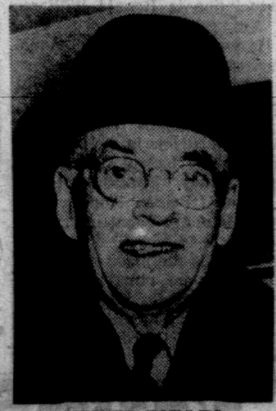
The Vietnam war, in fact, is beginning to force an American examination of its role in the world.

It will be 171 years next month since George Washington in his farewell address advised the young nation that "it is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

But that was in a day, as he himself said, when "our detached and distant situation invited and enables us" to "take a neutral position."

Today's world, and today's soul-searching, began with the Second World War and with the post-war spate of alliances that now bind the United States in one fashion or another to at least 42 nations.

Most specifically, the soul-searching springs from the unpopular quagmire of Vietnam and from the personality and practices of President Johnson. It is worth noting that while Sen. Fulbright has been talking about America's over-commitment, it has not been the post-war alliances to which he has been objecting. He himself said recently that he had been "impressed by the relative immobility of American foreign policy" in the 1950s.



FOSTER DULLES

What the senator says he objects to is "the frenetic mobility of the 1960s, the over-heated activism, the ubiquitous involvements and the mounting sense of a global mission."

Specifically, he and others have objected to the Bay of Pigs, the Dominican intervention, the Vietnam war and even the dispatch of three planes and a few soldiers to the Congo. Much of what he and others say amounts to a criticism of President Johnson's style and his use of the broad grants of power given to post-war presidents by successive congresses.

To get back at the president, or to curtail his ability to act, Fulbright and others are attempting to build a counter-fire. This is why he is conducting hearings on America's "over-commitment."

The question thus arises: Will such attacks merely curb the executive will of presidents after Vietnam is over or will they serve to cut into the bone of American commitments themselves?

Put another way, the question becomes: Have the premises on which the post-war arrangements were made been so altered that the commitments themselves should be altered, or at least action under them be changed?

The Johnson administration, especially the president, Secretary of State Rusk and Secretary of Defence McNamara, are on the defensive. They are defensive about their role in Vietnam. And they extrapolated from Vietnam a factor of world-wide importance when they declared that if the American word is not good in Southeast Asia how can it be considered good anywhere else?

The fact is that the treaties were designed for protection against what John Foster Dulles termed "international Communism." The question raised is the relevancy today of that characterization.

The Rio and NATO treaties were drafted prior to the Korean war. Other treaties made since the beginning of the Korean war reflect a fear of both Soviet and (or) Chinese belligerency growing out of that experience. It should not be forgotten that when North Korea attacked the South in 1950, most Americans and indeed most of the world assumed it was on orders from the Kremlin.

Death Played Part

But Joseph Stalin died and his death played a part in ending the Korean conflict. Since the, the Communist world has been transformed in fact if not in ideology.

Russia and China are at each other's throats, verbally at least, and the East European nations no longer deserve the appellation of Communist satellites. Finally, North Vietnam has shown that while it is dependent on both Moscow and Peking in war, it very much runs its own policy.

In a sense, then, the argument over the nature and scope of American commitments springs from disagreements over U.S. response to the changing face of the potential enemy, or enemies.

The administration concedes the change but argues that the central point remains: This nation must, in its own interests, be prepared to use force to prevent non-Communist nations from being swallowed up, especially by Communist neighbors as in Vietnam.

The opponents argue that Communist rule over all of Vietnam is not intolerable because it would not be the rule of "international Communism" directed from a central headquarters in the Kremlin.

Further, the argument goes, much too much is spent in arms to hold back the Communists elsewhere or is being dissipated on false alarms in nations that have learned that to get American aid, they must show a Communist threat.

Trim the Sales

Hence the congressional objections raised to expansion of commitments, such as Rusk's August statement that "no would-be aggressor should suppose that the absence of a defence treaty, congressional declaration or U.S. military presence grants immunity to aggression."

Hence, too, the demand of many senators to cut back American troops in Europe, to trim the sales of American arms to other nations around the world and to deny McNamara's request for fast deployment logistic ships on the grounds that they would increase the "temptation to intervene in many situations."

Perhaps the issue would not have arisen now if it were not for the quandary of Vietnam, admittedly the most unpopular American war in current memory. It might have arisen long ago had President Truman led the United States into a quagmire when he went to the aid of Greece against its own guerrillas or if President Eisenhower's landing of troops in Lebanon had led to a massive, long-term involvement in the Middle East.

Another new factor is the increasing degree of Soviet-American co-operation. It has been only 12 years since Eisenhower used all his popularity to overcome widespread fears of even meeting with Sovet leaders. This year the nation and the world welcomed the Johnson-Kosygin talks at Glassboro.

Transition Period

In short, the post-war transition period has caught the administration with its commitments seemingly inflexible, unable to be altered to meet changing circumstances. But it has been the war in Vietnam, and the rationale of the SEATO treaty as the base of the American commitment, that finally has raised the storm.

Thus it is impossible to say whether there is now a receding tide in the American involvement overseas. Certainly the tide is not going to take the nation back to isolationism in the style of the 1920s. But those who fear the tide worry that it will go so far back as to tempt the Communist states to adventures they otherwise would avoid.

Which brings one back to the Vietnam war and how it will end. And to the manner in which President Johnson condcts both the military and diplomatic aspects of the war.

Relations between congress and the president depend to a large degree on personality as well as on principle. The post-war cosiness of the "bi-partisan" age is long gone, replaced by growing suspicion.

But the crux is the degree to which so-called East-West relationships have changed, and whether American commitments made on one set of premises will be valid on a new set — if the basic premises should indeed be altered.

Who Needs Television, The Commercials Ask

By LAWRENCE LAURENT

Some minor alarms have been sounded in broadcasting this summer over a decline in the sets in use. As usual, and right on schedule, the statisticians at the networks re-demonstrated that more people than ever are fascinated with television.

If strangers are permitted to join in this folk game I would like to suggest to the lords of television that their own commercials may eventually wreck the business. (No, this is not to be a complaint about excessive commercials although the complaint would be justified)

To return to the game, the commercials have long been the most entertaining part of television. They're produced with much more imagination than the entertainment portions. More money is spent on commercials. More time and greater care goes into a one-minute advertisement than is devoted to a one-hour drama.

And the content of the commercials ought to be of greatest concern to Julian Goodman, Dr. Frank Stanton and Leonard Goldenson. Take a look, gentlemen, and discover that the bright youngsters of the commercials do just about everything, except turn on a TV set.

Soft drinks are sold by showing youngsters at the beach or driving in open automobiles or soaring on skis. The good life, this message tells us, is action and participation.

The cigarette makers stay away from using teen-agers in their commercials. The emphasis on young adults is that airplane pilots, party goers and speed boat passengers enjoy smoking. This version of the good life is that happy Americans get a lot of exercise.

The idea being repeated in commercials is that fast action is equal to happiness.

One must remember at this point that the commercials are trying to reflect the dreams and embody the wishes of the audience. Nearly every major advertising agency has its resident psychiatrists and its house psychologists. Wish fulfillment is the big item in today's successful sell.

By implication (and this is where TV's executives ought to begin worrying) the barren, non-rewarding life is the passive one that keeps a man or woman indoors. That, by the way, is the perfect definition of looking at today's television.

•

The receiver gives off warmth, sound, light and shadow. It makes no demands on the viewer beyond the lowest level of participation. (Again, the big ad agencies believe as a matter of doctrine that the demanding programs that require concentration are bad. A viewer is supposed to resent any commercial intrusion, any break in concentration.)

Through the content of its commercials industry is writing its own warrant of doom. Action is in; TV is out and off.

Mississippi Jails Ahead

By ANTHONY HOWARD

WASHINGTON — Within the United States Mississippi has become so totally synonymous with backwardness that it comes as a shock to discover that in one respect at least it has been for 50 years and more in the very vanguard of progressive thought. The revolutionary proposal for conjugal visits in prisons has been in practice in the deep southern state of Mississippi for as long as anyone can remember.

The privilege afforded to convicts in Mississippi is a purely local one. It is offered by no other prison system in the U.S. and inevitably it has attracted a good deal of sniffiness even in such generally enlightened quarters as the federal bureau of prisons in Washington.

No one knows precisely how the practice of allowing the state's roughly 2,000 convicts to maintain their conjugal rights even in prison first grew up in Mississippi. Originally it seems to have been a wholly haphazard arrangement, dictated more by the local surroundings than anything else.

The Mississippi state penitentiary with its administrative headquarters at Parchman in the Delta where the Yazoo River joins the Mississippi, is unusual among American prisons in that it covers 21,000 acres of plantation land. The area is divided into 16 camps — each of roughly 100 people commanded by a sergeant — and with the exception of the maximum security camp they all have traditionally enjoyed a liberal visiting policy.

Twice a month on Sunday afternoons a camp could indeed easily be mistaken for a city park. In one place a family will be having a picnic; in another a father will be practising baseball with his son, in a third the children of various inmates will be playing on a swing.

In the past, while all this was going on, individual husbands and wives would simply retire together to the open barrack-like dormitories and secure what privacy they could by using blankets as screens round a bed. But at least since the 1930s prisoners have been allowed to construct special buildings for receiving their wives — known as "red houses."

Today the keys to the five or six rooms that each of these buildings contains are handed out every visiting day by a trusted prisoner operating in much the same manner as a motel keeper.

There is no need to make any formal application to the prison authorities, no record is kept of who uses the rooms, and the only necessary qualification for a prisoner seeking a key is that he should, indeed, be married. (At one time no differentiation was made between married and unmarried prisoners but with the building of the red houses girl friends were barred).

Until recently the system was a wholly informal and unofficial one — something, in effect, that the individual camp sergeants knew went on but chose not to accept any responsibility for. If they would talk about it at all, it was normally only with considerable reticence.

Even that, however, has now changed. The last camp to be built, one for first offenders in 1963, included in its official plans provision for "a wives' house." Today — with much better furniture and far more attractive decor than any of the "red houses" — it is not only the envy of every other camp but is pointed out to visitors with some pride.

One of the reasons for this may well be an article that appeared this summer in the highly reputable academic pages of the American Criminal Law Bulletin. Written by a sociology professor, Columbus Hopper of Mississippi University, and based on eight years' research at the penitentiary it uncompromisingly asserted that the admittedly unorthodox Mississippi experiment in prison matrimony had more than vindicated itself both in terms of prison morale and in the stability of the inmates' marriages.

Conceding that the practice could probably not be made to work everywhere, Professor Hopper nevertheless contends that this has less to do with theoretical objections than with the practical fact that other American prisons tend to confine their inmates in mass central cell blocks.

Part of the case against conjugal visiting has, of course, always been that it is liable to cause resentment among those prisoners to whom the facility does not apply. But curiously there is little sign of that at Parchman — unmarried prisoners are said in fact to regard their married colleagues in just the same way as unmarried individuals do in the world outside.

And although the practice can naturally do nothing to help the more obviously sexually maladjusted inmates, permitting even the minority or married men to continue a normal sexual relationship is reported by the individual camp sergeants significantly to have reduced the general incidence of homosexuality.

At the moment at Parchman there are only two limitations to the system. It does not apply to women inmates out of obvious fears of pregnancy, and it has never — for reasons too complicated to divine — been extended to white prisoners.

However, what was once universally looked on as a primitive practice can now be regarded as a pioneer trial in penal reform.

Quebec Slums Jar Visitors

By HAL WILLARD
The Washington Post

MONT-LAURIER, Quebec — The farther north you go into the thick-forested wilds of Canada, the taller the TV antennas get and the more automobile graveyards there are. Being city folks, we thought the backwoods would be a little more back.

This small community is at the top of a sort of lop-sided triangle that has Ottawa and Montreal at the other two points. It looked inviting on the map — a single road jutting into Canada's empty northland. I felt a tingling sense of adventure at the prospect of what lay before us as we left Ottawa.

But soon depression set in and stayed for a hundred miles, for man had touched nature and left a mark of despoilment.

If you could ignore the tar-paper shanties and tumble-down wooden shacks (each with its towering TV antenna), the chipped-paint signs, the meadows studded with junked cars — if you could see through this to the pine-carpeted hills and small mountains beyond, you would realize that you were on the edge of immeasurable and unblemished vastness. For man's ugliness is confined to the roadside, and there is only one road.

But the ugliness was there, and it was like looking out a dirty window. Somehow this blight in Quebec province was a thorn in my preconception of Canada.

I thought of bright-eyed people flexing their muscles on what is perhaps the last frontier — 20 million ambitious, thriving people strung in a thin ribbon of civilization along the top of the United States in the world's third largest country.

* * *

I imagined that the few tentacles of development feeling their way north into the unknown would be clean and fresh and primitive.

And so I wasn't prepared for the rural slums in Quebec, and I wondered how so few people could wreak so much ugliness on such a huge area.

The foul memory of the jungles of junk we encountered is all the more jarring because we made a 4,000-mile tour through Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia, and only those parts of the countryside of Quebec failed to measure up to my picture of the youthful grandeur of Canada.

It is inescapable that any country which has cars also has automobile graveyards. But Quebec province seemed to have as many of them as people, and no attempt was made to hide them or even confine them behind fences or foliage. The skeletons were simply strewn about willy-nilly. Where did the people get that many cars to throw away?

If they could pay for that many cars, why could they not pay for a few gallons of paint to touch up their wretched antenna-topped hovels — or to repair those hovels? For all I know, a junked car or two in the front yard is a mark of distinction or prestige, like trading in your Cadillac when the ashtray is filled.

Meet the Mercedes-Benz Diesel, the long-life car. (87% of its ancestors are alive today).

Today's version gives up to 30 miles per gallon in normal driving, and does it so smoothly that "many unsuspecting passengers are surprised to learn that they've been riding in a Diesel," according to CAR LIFE magazine.

Besides fuel economy, the 200 Diesel saves you money in the parts you'll never have to repair or replace. There are no sparkplugs, points, condensers or distributors. And Diesels stand up while other cars are falling apart: eighty-seven per cent of all Mercedes-Benz Diesel cars built since 1936 are still in running condition.

Economical as it is, the 200 Diesel is also comfortable. Mercedes-Benz engineering know-how provides the jolt-free riding ease of fully-independent suspension. The sure stopping power of front disc brakes. And the rugged durability of a body welded in 10,000 places, armed with 48 pounds of rustproofing.

With proper care, your 200 Diesel can be running smoothly—and saving you money—when other cars have been chopped up for scrap. A remarkable machine; come in soon for a thorough test-drive.

Larger Edition Of Comox Book On the Press

A new edition of a rare Comox Valley history has been published by a California firm and a new enlarged edition is planned.

J. Barrett Gilmer, former Courtenay school librarian and now a publisher in San Diego, has reissued Eric Duncan's book 57 Years in The Comox Valley in a 500-copy edition with a special edition of 100 numbered copies.

An enlarged and illustrated edition will be released soon.

PIONEER, POET

Mr. Duncan came to the Comox Valley in the late 1800s and is well known as a pioneer, poet, historian and author.

His first work was a book of poems, The Rich Fisherman. He also published a valley history, From the Shetlands to Vancouver Island, which he later expanded to 57 Years on Vancouver Island. Existing copies of this book are now valued at $15.

The new version will be issued under the title Comox! with illustrations by 17-year-old Renee Niles, student at the Famous Artists School of Westport, Connecticut, the school Norman Rockwell founded.

RURAL RHYMES

Mr. Gilmer plans to publish more of Mr. Duncan's work, poems out of another book called Rural Rhymes. The new version will be called sing a Song of Canada.

The former school librarian founded the publishing company with Mrs. Bert Marriot, of Courtenay, niece of Eric Duncan, and her husband.

Father, Son Win Top Prizes In Fish Derby

DUNCAN — Father and son won the top prizes at Sunday's grand "Fish Off" of Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's spring salmon derby.

Andy Bell of Lake Cowichan weighed in with a 24.1 pounder and behind him was his son Walter of Mesachie Lake with a fish which tipped the scales at 22.1 pounds.

Hidden-weight prizes went to Alan Gadsden of Duncan with 18.11 pounds, and Bert Burrows, Victoria, with 22.9 pounds.

About 40 of the 50 fishermen eligible took part in Sunday's action and 17 fish were weighed in.

'I Live It . . . Dream It . . . Work It'

Philip jumped ship in Victoria in 1963 and went to work here under an assumed name.

The immigration department caught up with him in 1966 as a result of which he faced the prospect of being deported.

500 SIGNED PETITION

One of the deciding factors in his being allowed to remain was a petition signed by 500 Gold River loggers and their families.

Said Philip on hearing the news: "It's the most important day of my life.

"I want to become a Canadian so bad. I live it . . . I dream it . . . I work it."

He said he will become a citizen as soon as possible.

One other change resulting from Philip's discovery—he no longer has to use the assumed name of Francis Solman under which he was living.

A Little Wit, Wisdom Is Dispensed With Gas and Oil at His Station

By ED GOULD

BRENTWOOD—Haldor Beebe is the homely philosopher of Brentwood Bay. At the Brentwood-Mill Bay dock area, Mr. Beebe dispenses wit and wisdom along with his gas, oil and repairs.

"Customers seem to appreciate a little humor while they're getting service or just waiting for the ferry," Mr. Beebe said.

•

Mr. Beebe (pronounced beebee—"they called me buckshot when I was a kid") writes his witticisms on a pair of blackboards for ferry travellers and customers to muse over:

"My advice will cost you nothing, but it will be worth it!"

"My wife and I were perfectly happy for 20 years. Then we met!"

"The biggest expense in a young man's life is a girl who is free for the evening!"

Mr. Beebe points out in black and white that the visitor might as well read the comments because if he's back that far in the ferry line he probably won't get on anyway.

Not everyone appreciates his advertising.

"One tourist told me the blackboards should advertise my products and services. He got quite huffy when I told him service station prices are pretty standard. We don't have cut-rate oil here.

"I told him my first object was to entertain and if I get business as a result—okay. If not, what's the harm? I hope somebody gets a laugh."

A native of North Dakota, Mr. Beebe moved to B.C. from Alberta 21 years ago, 17 years of that period spent in the service station business at Langford.

•

As well as his blackboards and personal approach, Mr. Beebe has printed a series of handbills reflecting his views on many subjects. One of his pet peeves is the danger of pollution.

He quoted a headline from The Colonist of July 19, 1867, in which an editorial lamented the stench of sewage so strong "that occupants were hardly able to remain at their avocations."

To point up 100 years of "progress" he quoted a Victoria Times headline of July 19 this year:

A teen-age girl working at a dockside restaurant said she recalls a couple of summers ago when youth of Brentwood area spent many happy hours swimming in the bay. There are several public beaches with clean sand and orderly parks. Now signs proclaim the water is polluted.

"Everybody was happy to stick around here all summer," she said. "They were in and out of the water all the time. Now, all the kids do is sort of stand around wishing there was someplace to go for a swim."

•

While she was speaking, a group of eight youths stood gazing forlornly at the beach where sluggish green water, afloat with assorted garbage, lapped the black sand.

This is the sort of situation that gets Beebe's back up.

"It sure seems strange how we can always manage to scrape up millions of dollars to fight wars and nobody even gets asked beforehand if they wish to contribute," he said.

"Then the same people ask where the money for pollution control is supposed to come from. I say let's tap the same never-ending source that provides the war money. Then—let's stop having wars and we'll have lots of money for pollution control and a few of the other things we need more of."

IN PORT ALBERNI

College Foes Win Byelection

PORT ALBERNI — Two newcomers to civic politics — both opposed to the present plans for a regional college on the Island — were elected Saturday.

Mark Ivezich topped the list of aldermanic candidates, while Ron Coul led the field for a school board vacancy in the byelection.

Mr. Ivezich, a machine shop foreman, and Mr. Coul, a radio news director, said they felt their support was based on the stand they have taken against the proposed college.

Said Mr. Coul: "I feel I was elected because I took that stand."

VOTER RESPONSE

Added Mr. Ivezich: "I think this is just a forecast of how the electors will respond to the regional college plebiscite.

"I am not in any way against higher education, I am definitely against the wording of the present plebiscite and the financing of the regional college as it stands."

Both men have young school-age children.

Saturday's turnout was one of the lowest on record with only 13.7 per cent of eligible voters attending the polls.

JOINING the ranks of the RCMP is R. W. Whyte, of Cobble Hill. He has successfully completed training at Regina and taken up a post as third class constable at Penhold, Alta. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Whyte, live at Cobble Hill.

Sooke Logger Adds Open Championship

By doing so the 28-year-old New Zealander established himself as the top logger in Canada today.

The win added to an already impressive list of titles, including All Canadian Champion and All-Sooke Day champion.

He notched up the win by taking firsts in the standing chop, springboard and B.C. novice obstacle pole-climbing events.

He also placed second in the open pole-climbing competition.

Brian will return to the PNE Thursday to compete in international logging competitions at which U.S. and New Zealand loggers will also be present.

Fire Hazard Closes Park In Saanich

Two parks in Saanich have been closed to the public because of the extreme fire hazard.

The closure of Mount Douglas and Bear Hill parks was announced Saturday night by Reeve Hugh Curtis.

Only the mountain part of Mount Douglas is closed, not the part near the sea where there are picnic tables.

Private property in the Bear Hill area, just north of Elk Lake, is not affected by the closure.

Only people allowed into the parks are municipal fire, police and public works personnel and the Victoria Citizen's Band Radio Patrol, which does voluntary work for Saanich in Mount Douglas.

Manager's Death Shocks Beatles

LONDON (AP)—A post-mortem probably will be held to determine what killed Brian Epstein, but one friend said the 32-year-old discoverer of the Beatles had been in poor health for months.

Epstein, whose promotion of the Beatles and other pop music stars made him a millionaire, was found dead in bed at his $100,000 home near Buckingham Palace Sunday.

EPSTEIN
. . . handled Beatles

Reuters news agency said police were analyzing the contents of pill bottles found in Epstein's home. It said there were reports that Epstein may have died because he absent-mindedly took pills after having a few drinks.

"No notes were found at the house," said a spokesman for Scotland Yard. "As far as we are concerned there are no suspicious circumstances."

After failing to make the grade as an acting student at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art, Epstein went to work building a record department in his father's Liverpool furniture store.

Intrigued by the number of requests he got for a German record made by a local pop group called the Beatles, he sought them out at the Liverpool Cavern Club in October, 1961, and became their manager.

He claimed that he lost money on them for the first year, but late in 1962 their records began spinning to the top of the hit parade, and then money began to pour in.

EARNED MILLIONS

During the last five years the Beatles are reckoned to have earned between £20,000,000 and £30,000,000 ($60,000,000 and $90,000,000). Epstein's personal fortune was estimated at around £6,000,000.

Epstein had a great ability for discovering and promoting talent and had many other top pop stars under his management.

To his staff he was known as an aloof man, but he was lonely and often depressed and admitted to friends he attempted suicide last year. Recently he had been depressed by the death of his father, to whom he was close.

Epstein's contract with the Beatles was due for renewal at the end of the year, but this was considered a formality. On learning of his death, the quartet hurried back to London from Wales, where they were attending lectures and meditations by an Indian mystic.

"We were stunned and shocked," said Ringo Starr, the Beatles' drummer. "Brian had everything to live for."

High-Level Back-Up For Underground HQ

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—After spending $146,000,000 for a new underground headquarters North American Air Defence Command wants an airborne headquarters like that of the U.S. Strategic Air Command.

An airborne command post would comprise a number of big jet transport planes fitted out with radar, computers and communications equipment to detect enemy aircraft, track them and direct interceptors and missiles against them.

NORAD officers say the Boeing and Douglas companies in the U.S. will compete for a contract for the planes.

Defence department officials here said that though NORAD is a joint Canada-U.S. command there is no Canadian involvement in the plan—yet.

There might be once it comes to paying for the system, known as airborne warning and control.

However, Canada contributed nothing to construction of NORAD's new underground headquarters inside Cheyenne Mountain, near Colorado Springs, Colo.

RCAF Air Defence Command has $800,000,000 worth of equipment tied up in NORAD and command costs this year are estimated at $130,500.000, an increase of more than $10,000,000 from last year.

Gen. Raymond J. Reeves of the U.S. Air Force, commander of NORAD, says an airborne headquarters will be "another very significant step in the effort to guarantee a functioning warning and control system in an era of nuclear warfare and the intercontinental ballistic missile."

He adds: "There is no doubt that the system will provide better command and control of the unified forces assigned to NORAD for the air defence of both Canada and the U.S."

The system is designed as a back-up in case the underground headquarters were knocked out in a nuclear assault. NORAD's northern region headquarters at North Bay, Ont., is also underground.

Mental Services Chief Appointed

Dr. H. William Bridge has been appointed Director of Mental Services for British Columbia, the health department has announced.

He will be stationed in the Vancouver area and will be responsible for operation of all provincial mental institutions providing in-patient care as well as for the Burnaby Mental Health Centre.

Dr. Bridge was born in Ireland where he received his medical degrees and took psychiatric training in England and New York as well as studying administration at Columbia University.

EXPLOSION THREATENS WHOLE TOWN

FORT LITTLETON, Pa. (AP) — The threat of an explosion hung over this little town for six hours Sunday night until two army experts braving possible death, opened the doors of a smoking truck and tossed out a dozen boxes of chemicals.

The truck started smoking on the Pennsylvania Turnpike, and was pulled into a picnic grove near this town of 100.

Police warned residents of a possible explosion that could release deadly fumes, and some left town with their children.

Wearing masks, Army Caps. Robert Leiendecker and Sgt. Benjamin Albertson, opened the truck doors and threw out the smouldering boxes. Leiendecker said that ended the danger.

Indian Member Advocated

CHILLIWACK (CP)—Indians living along the Fraser River want an Indian spokesman appointed to the advisory board of the International Salmon Fisheries' Commission.

Mrs. Genevieve Mussell, a former Indian chief, said after a meeting of chiefs here Sunday that a competent Indian should be appointed to the board to ensure better communication.

The Indians were meeting to protest alleged harassment of Indian fishermen by federal fisheries officers and the suspension of aboriginal fishing rights.

The Fraser River was closed to fishermen July 3-25 to protect the sockeye salmon run but commercial fishermen were allowed to operate at certain times during the closure.

Mrs. Mussell said a number of Indians suffered hardship because of the closure.

A brief to be submitted to Indian Affairs Minister Laing in two weeks is being prepared by 11 chiefs from the Lower Mainland.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain priees generally showed an easier tone on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, influenced by losses in most Chicago commodities.

Flax prices were firm in early trade, however, following a Manitoba Wheat Pool report which indicated sharp reductions in flax production compared to last year. This decrease was due to the small acreage sown and unfavorable weather conditions in Saskatchewan.

Oats and barley trade was mostly domestic. Rye showed losses in response to declines in Chicago wheat and rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures fell more than three cents on the board of trade today, setting lows in all contracts.

The nearby September soybean contract declined 3½ cents while new crop beans lost about 1¼ cents. Rye futures dipped about 1½ cents while oats and corn slipped around a half cent.

The losses were set around mid-session, and before the close prices picked up some strength.

Rhodesia Hides Export System

LONDON (Reuters) — The Sunday Times reports Rhodesia is fighting economic sanctions by disguising its exports as goods from South Africa, Mozambique and Malawi.

An article in the newspaper claims to describe "the complex and frequently dishonest trail of the clandestine cargoes."

The economic sanctions against Rhodesia were endorsed by the United Nations after the colony declared its independence from Britain in November, 1965, after failing to come to any agreement on allowing its big Negro majority an effective voice in government.

Oil is reaching Rhodesia from a big international company with large interests in Britain via one of its related companies in South Africa, the article says.

"Rhodesia needs to sell six commodities: Tobacco, sugar, asbestos, copper, chrome and iron," it says.

TROUBLE WITH SUGAR

"Only sugar has looked anything like hopeless; investigations in Rhodesia and calculations from world markets indicate that Rhodesia is selling all the asbestos and copper she sold before, around one-third of the chrome, almost half the iron ore and one-third of the tobacco."

The article says chrome ore is being sold to Japan in the guise of a South African product.

A Rhodesian firm that wants to order goods denied by the sanctions simply orders them from an agent in Mozambique who obtains them from abroad and charges a commission, it said.

Goods are exported via Mozambique with false papers describing them as of Malawi or Mozambique origin, the article continues and Rhodesian copper goes through Lorenco Marques to Belgium and West Germany.

Benefactor Aids Canada Centre

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — An anonymous benefactor from Western Canada has guaranteed a $100,000 bank loan for the Charlottetown Confederation Centre, which after three years of operation is still in the red.

Another benefactor, Charlottetown businessman Robert Cotton, has established a $100,000 trust fund to help the centre—a combination theatre, art gallery and library built in 1964 as a memorial to the Fathers of Confederation, who held their first meeting here 100 years ago.

In its annual report for the financial year ended March 31, the Fathers of Confederation Buildings Trust, which administers the centre, says the bank guarantee leaves the centre with a net deficit of just over $40,000.

The report says the centre was almost $37,000 in the red March 31 and had an accumulated gross deficit of $140,000 for the three years of operation. This has been partly offset by the bank loan.

It estimates operating and maintenance costs for the year 1967-68 at $407,000. This will be met by grants of $175,000 each from the federal and Prince Edward Island governments and anticipated revenues of $57,000.

Ottawa Pays $1 Million For Jetstar

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government has quietly acquired a second "Jetstar" at a cost in excess of $1,000,000.

The transport department has added the new aircraft to its fleet for moving members of the government and key officials back and forth across the country.

The actual purchase was made early this year but was not widely publicized at the time.

The department already had one "Jetstar". It was purchased by the former Conservative administration. It was the fastest and most popular aircraft in the department's fleet. The decision was taken to purchase a second.

The newest Jetstar has a seating capacity for eight while the older one only carries six.

The information division of the transport department said it issued a press release when the first Jetstar was bought. But no press release was issued when the second Jetstar was acquired last February. Officials of the department denied there had been any attempt to "hide" the purchase but they acknowledged it received no wide publicity. However they believed it was mentioned in parliament at the time.

TOUGH DEMANDS

Auto Strike Talk Grows

DETROIT (AP)—Talk of an auto industry strike is growing in Detroit, where time is fast running out on new contract negotiations.

General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. are due to make their first economic counter-offers Tuesday to what the United Auto Workers concede is their "longest and most ambitious" list of demands in history.

The first disruption in production since assembly lines began rolling on 1968 models came last week at Sharonville, Ohio.

UAW workers complained of speed-up through rearrangement of Ford's transmission assembly lines. Ford disciplined 72 for what it said was their failure to keep up with duties assigned them.

This resulted in some 3,000 being laid off in the dispute, which takes out of production Ford's only automatic transmission plant for Mustangs, Fairlanes and other compact and intermediate cars. cars.

Ford said workers have been told to be on hand today but it had no idea whether they would refuse to work after the first few hours, as was the case some days last week.

Current three-year contracts will have only nine days to run when company offers come Tuesday. UAW vice-president Leonard Woodcock has said their will be no extension beyond Sept. 6.

RUSSIANS START TOUR

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight Soviet construction specialists today begin an 18-day tour of Canadian construction projects. The group is headed by I. A. Ganichev, deputy chairman of the state committee for construction.

Among the points they will visit are Montreal, Toronto, Oakville, Ont., and the northern centres of Yellowknife, Fort Smith, Hay River and Inuvik.

BRITONS HAPPY

Draught Beer Due Shortly With Spigot

LONDON (CP)—It had to come—any regular at a local pub would tell you that—and to thousands of Britons it will be a milestone in the brewing industry.

British Oxygen Co. has announced an agreement with Davenport C. B., one of Britain's largest packaged beer companies, to market draught beer in seven-pint cans equipped with miniature beer taps.

The spigots are specially made to keep the beer from going flat after the can is opened and to deliver a rich topping of foam that many pub regulars consider their due.

In the past, Britain's draught drinkers, many of whom would rather fight for a pint of draught than switch to bottle beer, had to contend with canned draught which would go flat if it was not consumed quickly.

SOLVED TAP PROBLEM

A spokesman for British Oxygen said Monday the company has solved the problem with its new tap. It will dispense beer from a can while keeping the remainder fresh for weeks by discharging a protective shield of carbon dioxide.

Special cans to take the new spigot had to be ordered by Davenport and the company says it will produce a new brew in a seven-pint container.

The bitter will cost about $2.15 a can and will slightly undercut pub prices of 35 cents a pint. But there is a fly in the brew.

The spigot, which can be changed from can to can, will cost $3.75 and some competitors feel this will prove a deterrent for beer buyers.

Customers, after buying the spigot, must also shell out 10 cents for a new tube of carbon dioxide each time they get a new can.

La Presse Under New Ownership

MONTREAL (CP)—A front-page announcement in La Presse, Canada's largest French language daily newspaper, disclosed last week that a transaction bringing its family ownership to an end is complete.

The brief announcement said Trans-Canada Corporation Fund, a large Montreal holding company, became proprietor of the newspaper Thursday. Names of new directors were listed but no member of the Berthiaume family, connected with La Presse almost since its foundation in 1884, was included.

Salt Water Slices Oil Profit

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. petroleum industry is spending millions of dollars annually to get rid of salt water.

Some of the water is being used to help prolong the lives of oil wells that need a bit of artificial assistance to remain productive.

Safe disposition of salt water produced with oil has been a problem ever since the industry was born in 1859 in Pennsylvania. Current water conservation programs have added emphasis to the projects.

The magnitude of the problem was outlined recently by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association as president John's water pollution control advisory board made a four-day tour of the state.

The board was told that, on the average, about 2½ barrels of salt water are produced for every barrel of oil.

"This adds up to an average of 7,500,000 barrels of salt water brought to the surface daily," said Ray H. Horton, chairman of the association's air and water conservation committee.

"We estimate the industry in Texas is spending between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 a year to dispose of salt water."

Winter Work Time Cut One Month

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Manpower minister announced a five-months municipal winter works incentive program for 1967-68 one month less than the program last winter.

The federal contribution to municipalities amounts to 50 per cent of direct payroll costs but it is increased to 60 per cent in designated areas.

The program will be the same as last winter's program with two exceptions:

The first change is that it will be for five consecutive months instead of six. But each province will have the option of choosing whether the program is to begin on Nov. 1 or on Dec. 1.

The second change is that the program will apply to capital projects only, for example purely maintenance activities such as brush clearing will not be included.

The new terms of the program were announced by Mr. Marchand following a federal provincial meeting held last week between the minister and provincial ministers of municipal affairs.

At that conference a week ago ways and means were discussed of improving the program to make it more effective in reaching its objectives.

The minister agreed that this fall there would be a federal-provincial examination of the ways in which federal and provincial action could most effectively increase winter employment in future years.

New IMF Pact Big Boost for Canada

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — With Canada playing a key role, the top 10 industrial nations of the non-Communist world agreed Saturday night to a reformed system of credit aimed at boosting international trade.

The compromise plan was hammered out in 9½ hours of horse-trading among finance ministers of the "group of 10," who climaxed four years of discussions by ironing out final differences and reaching unanimous agreement.

The new scheme — when finally approved by the International Monetary Fund and the parliaments of all the nations involved — will provide a new credit facility linked to the IMF reserves. It will be a contingency plan, going into effect when the IMF decides that one or another country needs more financing for its international trade.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp said after the session that for Canada the decision is "one of the most important developments that could possibly take place for a country greatly dependent on foreign trade as we are."

"If some system like this had not been worked out," he added, "I am satisfied that world trade could be greatly hampered by shortage of reserves."

CANADA HELPS OUT

The Canadian delegation headed by Sharp helped bring about one of the major compromises that resulted in final agreement late Saturday.

Until this final meeting, there had been disagreement over the way countries might use the new credit facility. Some, including Canada, wanted it "harmonized" — to have it used at the same rate as a country's own reserves. Others wanted each country to be able to draw a specific percentage of the IMF's total allocation to under the new system.

Canada sidetracked its own inclination and made the final motion to set up a package deal of the two types, but with the second one predominant. Thus over a five-year period a country would be able to use an average 70 per cent as a ceiling.

No allocations were fixed at this meeting and the amount that might be added to world credit facilities remains unknown until after the plan has gone further along the line towards ratification. The first move now will be to place it before the governors if the IMF at Rio de Janeiro in the last week of September.

After that, it will have to go before the legislative bodies of the countries involved. The process could take until 1969 before the plan is in operation.

PROSPERITY FORECAST

U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler said Sunday the plan could spell larger prosperity for rich as well as poor countries. He said the "odds are heavily in favor of it being accepted at Rio."

A second major compromise made Saturday was to let France have its way on what proportion of the International Monetary Fund voting power would be necessary to activate the contingency plan once it had been set up.

The other countries agreed that 85 per cent of IMF voting power would be needed. Since France and the other countries of the European Common Market have 17 per cent, this would give them a veto if all voted together.

Agreement on this point represented a concession by the United States, which makes the largest contribution to the fund. Other countries engaged in the final discussions — in addition to Canada and France — were Britian, Japan, Swden, Italy, Belgium, Holland and West Germany.

Tough Calgary Defence Ruins Champion's Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Calgary Stampeders spoiled the head coaching debut of Jim Champion and took over sole possession of first place in the Western Football Conference Sunday by defeating British Columbia Lions 16-7 before 28,4[illegible]6 fans at Empire Stadium.

Calgary now is two points ahead of the defending Grey Cup champion Saskatchewan Roughriders with a 4-1 record. British Columbia is mired deep in the WFC cellar with five straight losses.

Champion, who succeeded Dave Skrien, said he felt if his squad could hold the Stamps to 16 points, the Lions could win. They did this without the services of two defensive line stars—Tom Brown, who quit football last week because of a recurring neck injury, and Wayne Foster, out with a sore knee.

"But what I didn't figure," said Champion later, "is that we would score as few points as we did."

SCORE TIED BY EILMES

The only B.C. touchdown was by fullback Larry Eilmes early in the second quarter to tie the score at 7-7 after Stamps quarterback Peter Liske had put the Cowboys ahead with a touchdown pass to Terry Evanshen in the first quarter.

Eilmes went over from the four yard line after the Lions had marched 24 yards in four plays following Bill Lasseter's interception of a Liske pass to Herm Harrison.

Calgary placement kicker Bill Goods kicked a 27-yard field goal in the second, then added 38 and 39-yarders in the last 15 minutes of play as well as converting after the touchdown. Ted Gerela converted the B.C. touchdown.

Faloney completed seven of 17 passes for 78 yards and had two intercepted.

FIRST-PLAY FUMBLE

Mathieson had a frightening debut as he fumbled on the first play he called, a handoff. Then he settled down, completing six of 11 passes for 82 yards.

Liske, who was given solid support for his pass plays, completed 12 of 22 for 251 yards. He led the Stamps to a touchdown on their first series of the game as they went 60 yards in seven plays.

Calgary's total offence of 435 yards consisted of 251 yards through the air, 147 of them to Evanshen. Lovell Coleman led the ground attack with 133 yards.

Bill Munsey was top ground gainer for the Leos. He picked up 73 yards in 14 carries. Leroy Sledge was the Lions' best pass receiver, taking five for 67 yards.

PLOEN WON'T BE READY IN TIME TO FACE LEOS

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers probably will be without quarterback Kenny Ploen for their next two games and it is almost certain fullback Butch Pressley is going to be put on the 30-day injured list.

Coach Joe Zaleski said Sunday doctors were to check both players again today following injuries they received in the second quarter of a Western Football Conference game Friday at Regina. Saskatchewan won the encounter 24-18.

Bombers meet British Columbia here Thursday and travel to Calgary Monday.

Zaleski said Bill Van Burkleo will call signals in Ploen's absence, backed up by newcomer Ralph Schoenfeld, a recent cut from Saskatchewan. Marty Rosen will handle Pressley's chores.

FANS FORGET

Bork Directs Als to Victory

MONTREAL (CP) — Short-memoried Montreal Alouette fans sat up in their seats Saturday night and watched George Bork, whom they had not long ago assigned to the ashcan, fire their team to a 34-22 victory over Toronto Argonauts.

The victory, before a crowd of 15,000, was the first for the Eastern Football Conference Alouettes in three games so far this season. But the two points picked up by the Als made no difference in the standings. They're still in last place, while the Argos continue to share first place with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Alouette quarterback wound up with a bone bruise and possible stretched ligaments in his ankle after he was tackled in the last 30 seconds—Ian MacDonald was called for a piling on penalty on the play.

Bork started with a touchdown pass to Jim Rountree as the Argo defender grabbed a pass intended for Gerry Sternberg and ran unmolested for 60 yards.

The hoots had barely subsided when Bork directed a 78-yard march in nine plays culminating in a nine-yard touchdown pass to Roger Murphy on third down.

From then on it was Bork's game even though the Argos retaliated with a Jim Dillard touchdown. Several of Bork's 17 completions in 28 attempts were made in the first down zone behind the Toronto linebackers. He flooded the zone with three receivers and Donnie Davis was invariably free.

End Roger Murphy and halfback Charlie Scales scored two touchdowns each for the Alouettes. Larry Fairholm got the other touchdown when he picked up a fumble and raced into the Toronto end zone.

Bobby Taylor scored Argos' third touchdown. Vilunas converted all three and added a single in a wide field goal attempt.

Late 'Peg Entry Best in Nation

SASKATOON (CP) — Winnipeg Canadians were fortunate to be in the Canadian senior men's fastball championships, and their opponents would have been happier had the Manitoba representatives stayed at home.

The Canadians, notified eight days in advance that they would be taking part in the four-day tournament, defeated Hull, Que., Lambert Rolly's 6-4 in the A-B final Sunday before more than 2,400 fans to take the championship without suffering a loss in four games.

"Bill Jurens, commissioner of the Manitoba Fastball Association told us Aug. 16 that we would be in the Canadian series," said a happy manager-coach Ray Charambura.

"We then began a frantic effort to raise the money for the trip, and finally formed our team last Thursday, a day before we opened play in the first round."

WON ON ONE HIT

Winnipeg edged the Hull club 2-1 Saturday in the A final, despite managing only one hit. The Canadians' other wins were over St. Thomas, Ont., Western Memorials 3-1, and Saskatoon College Lads 7-0.

Saturday's action saw Hull defeat Saskatoon Merchants 4-2; Edmonton blank Nanaimo, B.C., 1-0; Edmonton win 3-2 over St. Thomas in 14 innings.

Doug Casselman, named the best hitter in the championships, paced Hull with a pair of doubles in two tries. Yvon Duguay slammed a solo homer and a single for two RBI's.

Casselman, leftfielder for Hull, had six hits in 12 at-bats to wind up with a .500 average. Nanaimo's second baseman, Bob Boudot, also had a .500 average, with five hits in 10 appearances at the plate, but Casselman won the award because of his six hits, three doubles and three singles.

Players named to the 1967 all-star team were:

Ted Morrison, catcher, St. Thomas; Wally Robbins, first base, Edmonton, Bob Boudot, second, Nanaimo; Harry Lundy, third, Edmonton; Gilles Fournier, shortstop, Hull; Doug Casselman, leftfield, Hull; Ed Swiderski, centre, Saskatoon Lads; Ollie Almost, rightfield St. Thomas; Dick Hames, pitcher, St. Thomas.

The 1968 tournament is set for St. Catharines, Ont.

When Ranjit Went Out, The Shamrocks Went In

By ERNIE FEDORUK

At least two individuals are willing to testify that the Inter-City Lacrosse League's leading scorer is "defensive-minded".

But Ranjit Dillon deviated from normal habits for a few, brief moments Saturday night and that is one of several good reasons why Victoria Shamrocks today are clearing the decks for the first appearance in a league final in eight years.

The best reason is the score. Overcoming a two-goal deficit, Shamrocks tripped Coquitlam Adanacs 8-3 before 3,827 fans at Memorial Arena to put the topper on a stirring comeback story.

Adanacs won the first two games in the best-of-five semi-final series. But the Shamrocks won the three that counted, and now have the right to look at Vancouver Carlings as their next opposition.

The best-of-seven league final gets under way Tuesday in Vancouver, moves to Victoria for the second game on Thursday. The third game, also in Vancouver, is scheduled for Saturday night. The balance of the series will be wrapped up the following week.

It was Dillon who hammered the stakes into Adanacs' cause in Saturday's game, a partisan-pleasing rouser that typified Shamrock comeback charges throughout the season.

Two Lines, One Order Did the Job

Scott and Usselman shot Coquitlam into a 2-0 lead after 10 minutes of play. Collett, on a fine fake, put some life into a so-so Victoria offense and Showers tied it up late in the first period.

Barclay popped in the two second-period goals and Coquitlam led 4-2 going into the final 20 minutes. The last one was a session that belonged entirely to the Shamrocks.

It wasn't that coach Dave Unwin fed raw meat to the Victoria players. He simply packed all his power into two lines and issued one order: "Run."

Run, they did!

"The whole secret against Coquitlam," Unwin said later, "is to run. We didn't do that in the first two periods."

But while running may be the secret, Shamrocks also needed goals. It was Munroe, capping what has to be his best season in senior company, who opened the flood-gates that enabled Shamrocks to out-score Coquitlam 6-0 in the final period.

Shooting from a sharp angle, Munroe scored at 3:20. Coquitlam goalie Joe Comeau got his shoulder in the way, but the ball skipped over and into the net.

There is no doubt it unnerved Comeau because 42 seconds later Dillon clicked on a long drive and then Collett, also from well out at 6:41, scored to put Victoria ahead for the first time, 5-4.

He Simply Tried a Nirmal's Tactic

Still, Shamrocks weren't out of the woods. Not, at least, until Dillon stepped "out of character." He went fore-checking, twice stole the ball away from Coquitlam defenders. His two breakaway goals in 37 seconds — at 11:09 and 11:46 — virtually sealed it away.

"I couldn't believe it," he said in a bedlam-filled dressing room. "Ranjit always lays back on defense. He never plays that far up."

Ranjit, who had similarly hustled for a loose ball that led to Showers' goal, admitted, "I'm a bit defensive-minded" when play is in Victoria's zone.

"That's usually Nirmal's job," he added. But Nirmal Dillon, a brother, was in hospital recovering from an eye injury and Ranjit decided to gamble.

"They were making a line change, and I thought they might get careless. Kevin Parsons had the ball, and he looked over at Bill Bradley. I knew he was going to flip the ball to Bradley, so I decided to gamble."

Parsons' casual flip was intercepted and Dillon sped away unmolested.

His next goal, 37 seconds later, was virtually a duplication of the previous scoring play.

While the scoring heroics pulled this one out of the fire, attention must also be given to goaltender Barry Forbes. He was at his best in the clutch, when a goal by Coquitlam might have turned the tide the other way.

HOMERS DO IT

Carls Powered By Stevenson

Harvey Stevenson is power personified.

The husky Carlings centrefielder has the thick, strong neck, the muscular chest and arms, the quick wrists of a natural power hitter.

He swings often and he swings hard. He loves—dearly—to hit home runs.

Harvey ripped a fence-buster off Glenn Langsett to give Carlings the Lower Vancouver Island Senior "B" softball crown Sunday.

Stevenson's blast, his fourth of the weekend Central Park tournament, swung a 1-0 decision for masterful Dave Norman over Luckies in the crucial final contest.

NEEDED BOTH

Carlings needed both victories to escape elimination after suffering a 6-1 loss to Langsett Saturday night. Stevenson homered for Carls' only run as Luckies' fireballer set down the tournament champions on four hits.

DAVE NORMAN
. . . checks Luckies

Stevenson stroked a single and two doubles to help Norman post a 9-1 two-hit decision over Sooke Forest Products in another Sunday contest. Norman homered in that game, as did Boden.

Norman was a key Carlings figure throughout the tournament. He won the playoff opener with a masterful-five-hit shutout, blanked Sooke Sunday before outduelling Langsett 1-0 to post his third shutout victory.

FINE DUEL

The Carlings ace, who yielded only two hits in the final, had to be good to outdo Langsett. Glenn gave up just two hits and made only one serious mistake.

He threw a second-inning strike to hungry Harvey Stevenson. Carlings didn't need a second chance.

Century Enjoys Sun. Turnabout

Century Inn are in a lot better shape now than they were Friday in the best-of-five city Senior "C" softball playoffs.

Friday, the Stuffy McGinnis League club trailed Red Lion Inn of the Senior Men's League 2-1 in the Heywood Park series.

Strange as it may sound, Century now hold a 2-1 edge and could wrap it up with a victory in Tuesday's 6:30 p.m. meeting with the Lions.

Century grabbed a second playoff win Sunday by pounding out a 12-4 decision behind the eight-hit pitching of Ken McCorkall and Carl Walker's solid hitting.

Century also gained a reprieve of Friday's 5-4 loss to Red Lions. Tournament executives ruled that Red Lions used an ineligible player in the contest and ordered the game replayed.

Walker blasted a home run, a double and a single to lead Century's nine-hit attack Sunday. John Paul and Bill James each connected for two hits. Gord Rutherford drove home two runs with a double in the third inning before scoring the winning run on Paul's first single.

VANCOUVER — Brent Butler, 16, of Montreal Saturday won the two-day Canadian centennial sailing junior regatta, receiving only 5¾ penalty points in six races with his 11-foot craft.

Richard Woodill, Halifax, was second and Paul Inwood, Toronto, was third.

JAPANESE L'IL LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Japan won the Little League World Series for the first time in the 21-year history of the annual classic for small fry with a 4-1 victory Saturday over North Roseland of Chicago.

Masahiro Miyahara, a 104-pound right-hander who pitched a one-hit shutout in the first game of the series, won his second game, allowing only three hits and an unearned run.

He retired the first 13 Chicago batters before giving up a single in the fifth inning.

RICHEST TOURNAMENT . . . . . . A SODDEN DISAPPOINTMENT

'Wetchester Classic' a Wry Bet at Rye

Three days of rain have turned the Westchester Classic, a $250,000 affair, from the world's richest golf tournament into a sodden disappointment.

For three days tournament officials have tried to get in the second round. And for three days heavy, soaking rains have turned the lush links of the Westchester Country Club into a quagmire.

Players and officials are bitterly disappointed. And the comments have reached the caustic stage.

"Perhaps it should be called the Wry Classic," offered one.

Still another called it "the Wetchester Classic."

At an interview on the edge of the indoor pool, Lee Trevino looked up when someone splashed into the water.

"Someone going after his ball," said the young, El Paso, Tex., pro, one of the chief victims of Sunday's rain-out. He was one of 83 who had finished their rounds when rains and lightning wiped it all out.

Trevino was in with a five-under-par 67 and a 135 for two rounds over the 6,573 yard, par 72 layout. He was tied for second with Gary Pittman, a one-time assistant pro at the club, who had a brilliant 65.

They were two strokes back of Mason Rudolph from Clarksville, Tenn., who had a 67 for 133. All, of course, are wiped out.

It was the second such blow for Rudolph, who had a 69 washed out in Saturday's rainstorm. Play did not begin Friday.

Now it all reverts to Thursday's first round results, with Rudolph, Gary Player and Jim Colbert tied for the lead at 66, followed by Nicklaus, John Schlee and Bob Charles at 67.

The schedule now has 18-hole rounds set for today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

FRED FORSBERG

Otterson's Accurate Throwing Humbles Steelers in Opener, 52-3

Pass defence was first on the list of training chores today as Victoria Steelers started patching holes in preparation for their first home game in the Continental Football League.

Steelers, who tangle with Seattle Rangers next Saturday at Royal Athletic Park, just about held their own on the ground as they opened their season Saturday night at Anaheim, Calif.

But they had no antidote for the passing poison of quarterback Jerry Otterson and took a 52-3 thumping from the Orange County Ramblers.

Split end Bruce Smith, running mainly a straight downfiled pattern and getting behind defenders, and flanker John Erisan were Otterson's favorite targets as the Steelers, with several new players in their lineup, continued to lack cohesion.

Smith and Erisan each caught one touchdown pass and Otterson's tossing placed the Ramblers into positions where short runs produced for of the the seven Orange County majors. Bernard Corbin ran back a pass interception for the other one and kicking specialist John Seedborg converted all seven TDs and added a field goal.

Victoria's points came in the first quarter on a 26-yard field goal by Ken Danchuk.

HELD ON GROUND

Although trailing 35-3 at half time, the Steelers had almost as much of the ball as did the Ramblers during the first two quarters. They ran the 30 plays for their three points while the Ramblers had the pigskin for 35 plays.

"We held them well on the ground," said assistant-coach Joe Carver after the Steelers arrived home Sunday, "but we couldn't stop their passing."

"However, they are a very good ball club and they beat us fairly."

IMPRESSIVE WORK

On attack, quarterbacks Frank Etter and Terry Durham displayed poise although under a constant Rambler rush in the late stages, fullback Gary DeBarnardi and halfback Warren Jackson ran well and flanker Bob Wilson made a brilliant leaping pass reception before suffering a pulled groin muscle.

TRAVEL HITCHES

Mose Watkins (knee sprain), Jim Reed (twisted ankle) and Malcolm Williams (pulled hamstring muscle) are also on the Victoria list of injured but the Ramblers took the greater physical beating during the game, losing three players to injuries inflicted by crunching Steeler tackles.

Making things unexpectedly difficult for coach Don McKeta and the Steelers were numerous travel delays. The club finally reached the Orange County Stadium about an hour before game time.

In other league openers Saturday, Seattle bombed the Admirals 37-13 at Long Beach and the Buccaneers stole a 26-20 decision from the Eugene Bombers at Sacramento.

Dutch Relay Team Snaps World Mark

BLACKPOOL, England (AP) — Led by Ada Kok, a Dutch quartet broke the world record for the women's 440-yard medley relay swim with a time of 4 minutes, 38.8 seconds Saturday in a dual meet with Britain. Britain won the two-day meet, 103-72.

Miss Kok, who eclipsed the world marks for 220-yard and 200-meter butterfly Friday night with a time of 2:21.0, swam her 110-yard butterfly leg in the relay in 1:05.6. The other members of the team were Coby Buter, Kleimie Bomolt and Norma Bos.

The time bettered the listed record of 4:43.3, set by England in the Commonwealth Games at Jamaica last year.

SALMONBELLIES CRUSH ROCKS IN JUNIOR FINAL

New Westminster's powerful Salmonbellies wrapped up the British Columbia junior lacrosse championship in three straight games Sunday as they downed Victoria Junior Shamrocks, 11-6, at Memorial Arena.

It was the toughest struggle of the best-of-five final for the Salmonbellies, who won the first game easily at home and thumped the Rocks 16-2 at the Arena Saturday.

Wayne Goss and Ray Bennie continued their standout play for New Westminster and each collected five points in Sunday's game, Goss earning three goals and two assists and Bennie notching two goals and three assists.

Leaders for the Shamrocks Sunday were Charlie Hardy, a 17-year-old from Nanaimo, who got three goals and an assist, and Vern Black, a star on defence throughout the series.

Salmonbellies are believed to be hoping to add Hardy and Black to their roster when they travel to Ontario to play the eastern champions in the Canadian final for the Minto Cup.

Hornets on Top As Farmers Fall

Victoria Hornets buzzed out ahead of the pack and Oak Bay Farmer Construction ran into a buzz saw at Duncan in Sunday's Vancouver Island Juvenile Football League games.

Hornets emerged as the only unbeaten club after two weekends of play as they survived almost 200 yards in penalties to clip James Bay Mustangs 14-4 in an interesting, hard-hitting game at Macdonald Park.

Farmers failed to find the spark that marked their 23-6 opening-game win over Mustangs the previous weekend and were chewed up, 24-7 by the improving, well-conditioned Cowichan Timbermen.

Hornets reeled off several long marches but they had their troubles with penalties and the alert Mustangs before Danny Jordens hit Jim Temple with a touchdown pass in the fourth quarter to give them a safe margin.

Rod Fiddick's first-quarter touchdown on a 35-yard sweep and singles by Dave Granlin and Mike Herold produced the other Hornet points.

WENT 60 MINUTES

Standing out for the Victoria club was Ray Cooper, who went the full 60 minutes as fullback and linebacker.

Cowichan quarterback Mark Stone used several pass-receivers and a variety of running plays as he guided the Timbermen past Oak Bay.

Stone carried three yards for the first of four unconverted TDs, passed to Gordie Wilkinson and Bob Jickling for two majors and sent Brian Mann on a one-yard touchdown plunge.

FORWARD SHINES

Stone completed eight of 15 pass attempts for 88 yards and the Timbermen ran for 171 yards while holding Famers to three completions in eight passing efforts.

Jim Forward, playing his first game of the young season, was the big man for Oak Bay. Forward packed the ball 12 times for 100 yards and scored the lone Farmer TD in the second quarter. Gary Johnston's conversion gave Oak Bay a 7-6 lead that was erased quickly when Stone hit Wilkinson with a 23-yard touchdown pass.

	GP	W	L	F	A	Pts
Hornets	2	2	0	23	4	4
Timbermen	2	1	1	24	16	2
Farmers	2	1	1	30	30	2

THUMPS KAMLOOPS

Nanaimo Rambles To National Final

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Nanaimo scored four goals in less than two minutes during the second period Saturday in a 13-3 romp over Kamloops to earn the right to enter the Canadian senior B lacrosse final.

Victory, coupled with a 12-7 win here Friday, gave Nanaimo the two-of-three British Columbia final in straight games.

FIGHT RESULTS

Patient Pace Helps Chisox

By Associated Press

Stanky's patience paid off in a run without a hit that gave White Sox a 1-0 11-inning victory and a split of a Sunday doubleheader with Boston.

Red Sox took the opener 4-3 with Carl Yastrzemski slamming his 33rd and 34th home runs of the season. The split, combined with Minnesota's 6-3 victory over Cleveland, moved Twins into first place, one percentage point in front of Boston. Chicago is third, one game back and Detroit, which lost 2-1 to Kansas City, is fourth, 1½ behind.

The White Sox, whose team batting average is hovering around .230—ninth best in the American League—had managed just four hits against Jose Santiago and Darrell Brandon in the nightcap. In the 11th inning, Stanky decided to stop swinging and start waiting.

The tall reliever walked Duane Josephson opening the 11th. Ron Hansen sacrificed and Brandon then purposely walked pinch hitter Smoky Burgess, who was swinging for winner Gary Peters.

Joel Horlen ran for Burgess and Brandon wild-pitched the runners to second and third. He bore down and got Ken Boyer on a bouncer, retiring Josephson along the third base line. Horlen reached third and Boyer first on the play.

Don Buford walked, loading the bases and then pinch hitter Rocky Colavito waited out Brandon's fourth pass of the inning, forcing Horlen across.

Elsewhere in the American League, New York belted Washington 8-2 and California's doubleheader at Baltimore was postponed by rain.

In the National League, St. Louis whipped Los Angeles 6-2, Cincinnati outslugged Houston 11-8, San Francisco split with Atlanta, winning 2-0 and then losing 4-1, Chicago topped New York 3-1 in a game ended by rain after seven innings and Philadelphia blanked Pittsburgh 2-0 in a 4½ inning rain-shortened game.

HIT TWO HOMERS

Yastrzemski's first game homers came in the fifth and seventh innings. Chicago threatened in the ninth and had the tying run on third with one out. But right fielder Jose Tartabull caught Josephson's fly ball and threw out Ken Berry at the plate, ending the game.

Joe Azcue, who was robbed of a homer in the second when Ted Uhlaender made a spectacular catch in centre field, tagged a two-run shot in the ninth for Cleveland.

Merritt struck out eight and ran his record to 10-4.

FINISHED throwing baseball for season is claim of San Francisco Giant pitcher Juan Marichal. A 20-game winner past four years, Marichal said at weekend he wants to be placed on National League's disabled list, Giants, however, want him to undergo physical. The $100,000 righthander has pulled hamstring muscle in right leg.

Post at Seattle

Canadian Derby Winner Overcame Gate Stumble

TIME OUT

By JEFF KEATE

Five Bike Riders Admit Drug Use

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — Five cyclists were barred from further competition in the World Cycling Championships here after they admitted taking stimulating drugs, officials of the International Cycling Union announced Saturday.

The ICU said the five were: amateurs, Yvonne Reynders of Belgium, Kevin Crowe of Australia, Alex Boeye of Belgium and professionals Dieter Kemper of West Germany and Freddy Ruegg of Switzerland.

Kemper and Ruegg were fined $410. The three amateurs were suspended for three months.

Times News Services

Saturday was a great day for Calgary sportsman Max Bell.

Gilmore, running in the colors of Bell's Golden West Farms, gave the stable its first win in the Canadian Derby as betting records tumbled at Edmonton's half-mile Northlands track.

Five thousand miles, away, another of Bell's horses, Dominion Day, won a prep race in England for the St. Leger.

Gilmore stumbled coming out of the gate and didn't want to run but was whipped into desire by jockey Gerry Rasmussen. The brown colt was last for the first half of the 1⅜-mile race but Rasmussen got him moving around the last turn and Gilmore was pulling away from Blenheim Park in the final yards of the 38th running of the event for three-year-olds.

Fortitude finished a nose behind Blenheim Park and Haig's Task was fourth. Following in the eight-horse field were Never Delay, Locked Out, Lady Taj and Prince Blue.

Paying $4.30 to win, Gilmore earned $16,430 for his owner from a total purse of $21,980.

The time of 2:24.4 was a derby record but did not mean much as the two previous times the derby was run at 1⅜ miles, the track was not fast.

WESTERN RECORDS

In sunny, warm weather, the record corwd of 14,400 shoved a record of $96,689 through the mutuels and bet a record $573,097 on the eight-race card. Both the mutuels are Western Canada records. The previous derby highs were set last year when 13,800 attended, wagered $93,454 on the race and $530,430 on the card.

At Vancouver Saturday, a crowd of 17,193 at Exhibition Park watched favored Ahead Tiger win the 22nd running of the British Columbia Derby.

Jockey Paul Frey guided Ahead Tiger to a derby record of 1:50 over the 1⅛ mile route to cut a fifth of a second from the old mark. Regal Jingle ran second with Sleep Robber in the show spot.

Ahead Tiger paid $4.80, $3.80 and $3.20 to win. Regal Jingle paid $9.20 and $4.60 and Sleep Robber $4.30.

Most amazing performance of the day was staged by the B.C.-bred Rolyat mare, Ready Relief. Claimed for $1,750 after winning two semi-marathons, she beat a field of $5,000 claimers by at least 10 lengths at a mile and sixteenth, only a fraction off the track record. It was her fourth straight victory.

LONGACRES WINNER

Winner of the Longacres Derby in Seattle the previous weekend, the Kentucky-bred Ahead Tiger won $15,450 for his woners in the $20,000-added B.C. Derby as he returned $4.80, $3.80 and 3.2$0.

Saturday's mutuel handle was $447,448 for the 10-race card.

At Seattle Sunday, King Favor, favored by the bettors, won the $25,000-added Longacres Mile in 1:34 3-5, just one-fifth off the track record.

Bobby's Pal was second and Aseel third.

GREAT STRETCH RIDE

What a Pleasure, given a great stretch ride by Braulio Baeza, took a narrow victory over eight top three-year-olds in the $113,975 Hopeful at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Saturday.

What a Pleasure got his nose in front of Royal Trace in the final strides to win $74,083 as he stepped the 6½ furlongs in 1:16 2-5. Exclusive Native was third.

At Chicago's Arlington Park, Diplomat Way barely lasted to win the $53,800 Armour Handicap by a nose over Aczay. He ran 1 1-16-mile turf race in 1:43 4-5.

At Del Mar, Calif., the favored Charlie Boots beat Gentleman's Game by three lengths to win the $32,600 Del Mar Derby.

'Super' Drivers Grab Honors In Stock Meet

Seattle driver Jack Jeffrey missed a sweep by only a few feet Saturday night as pilots of "super stocks" from Washington grabbed most of the prize money in a racing program at Western Speedway.

Vancouver Island throttle-jockeys turned in some fine driving but couldn't quite stay upwith the more powerful American machines.

With the supers running on the Western oval for the first time it was no surprise that the track's new electronic timing device registered a new track record. Jeffrey set the mark with a clocking of 19.55 seconds in the fast heat.

Record for the regular stocks was set earlier this season by Ross Surgenor, who zipped a lap in 21.06.

FROM LAST PLACE

Driving before 4,300 fans, Jeffrey moved up from last place in the reverse-order start to win the trophy dash and followed with his fast heat triumph.

He took over the front spot with about 20 laps remaining in the main event and was still leading when he hit the final turn, where Seattle's Hal Shukar gunned ahead of Jeffrey and held on to win by a wheel.

Surgenor was second in the "B" main, won by Bill Williams of Seattle, and Albert Smith paced Victoria pilots to a one-two-three finish in the second heat. Smith was followed by Bill Powell and John Gibbs.

Drivers from the CAMRA circuit will take over at the speedway next weekend for the annual Daffodil Cup meet, on Saturday and Labor Day.

JUNIOR TENNIS TITLES

Three for Peaches And Two for Plum

OTTAWA—The Bartkowicz sisters of Hamtramck, Mich.—Peaches, 18, and Plums, 13—headed home Sunday after capturing a total of five titles at the Canadian Open junior tennis championships, which ended Saturday.

Peaches, the U.S. national junior champion, campaigned in the under-18 division and won the singles crown, joined Linda Tuero of Metavie, La., to take the doubles final and partnered John Lamerato of Hamtramck to capture the mixed doubles diadem.

Using a strong, two-handed backhand, Peaches was too powerful for Miss Tuero in the singles, winning 6-2, 6-3.

Plums Bartkowicz won the under-14 girls' singles by defeating Laurie Tenney of Scarsdale, N.Y., 6-3, 6-4, but lost an 8-6, 6-1 decision to West Virginian Jane Kincaid in the under-16 singles final.

Plums earned her second title by teaming with Miss Tenney to win the under-14 doubles.

In Saturday's feature match, John Williams of Bridgend, Wales, outlasted Ian Russell of Australia, 4-6, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, 6-0 to win the under-18 boys' singles.

Williams then partnered California's Steve Cornell in the doubles and the pair went down to defeat before the Florida-Arizona duo of Mac Claflin and Butch Palmer.

Emilio Montano of Hamtramck won the boys' under-14 sinbles and shared the doubles crown with Jeffrey Miller of Plainfield, N.J. Gene Meyer, Woodmere, N.Y., took the under-16 singles.

Scottish Bowlers Take Team Crown

MONTREAL (CP) — Scotland won the international Centennial lawn bowling championship here Saturday with five straight wins in the sinbles and a 3-2 record in the doubles.

James Hamilton of Hamilton, Lanarkshire, downed representatives from England, Canada, Wales and the United Statas and beat Ireland 21-18 in the final round to gain a total of 10 points.

The doubles combination of John Bradbury and Charles Craig added six more points to give Scotland an over-all total of 16 points, two more than the second-place U.S. team.

Wales was third with 10 points, followed by Ireland with eight and England and Canada with six points each.

In final round games, Ron Jones of London, Ont., beat Tommy Bands of England 21-2, and Jim Candelet of Pawtucket, R.I., defeated Russel Evans of Wales 22-13.

INCOGS BEAT ALCOS

Cricket Bats Boom In Cowichan Victory

Batsmen found the Beacon Hill pitch to their liking Sunday and rapped runs at a rapid rate as Cowichan rolled to a 59-run Victoria and District Cricket Association victory over Albions.

Between them, the two clubs put 351 runs on the board in four hours of cricket.

Albion bowlers suffered as Cowichan went in first and lost only three wickets in two hours before declaring at 205 as John Brierley batted brilliantly for 96 runs, Horace McClelland contributed 58, not out, and Derek Hyde-Lay added 28.

Albions also went for runs but were all out for 146 despite 62 runs from Nick Walton and 27 from Dave Thompson. Tim Brierley took three Albion wickets at a cost of 26 runs.

It was a different type of victory for Incogs match at Windsor Park as Incogs consolidated their third-place position with a 76-run win over Alcos.

NARROW MARGIN

Eric Payne scored 55 runs and veteran Reg Wenman added 23 as Incogs collected 123 while batting first and then dismissed Alcos quickly for 47.

John Moss (four for 13) was the best of the Alco bowlers while Richard Oakley (three for five) and Jack Payne (three for 21) made life miserable for Alco batters.

Second-place Oak Bay got a scare Saturday at Windsor Park before nipping the carefree Castaways by four runs.

Getting 46, not out, from Jack Sparks, Oak Bay ran up 75 runs while batting first. Strong bowling by John Brasier (four for 31) and Sparks (three for 21) enabled the Oaks to dismiss Castaways for 71.

Victoria's under-15 side couldn't handle the bowling of their mainland rivals in an inter-city match at Vancouver and lost an eight-wicket decision in Kyle Cup competition.

After shooting out Victoria (Tony Steele 12 and Peter Mason 10, not out) for 43 runs, Vancouver ran up 44 while losing only two wickets.

New Notre Dame For Hydro Races

SEATTLE (AP) — There will be another Notre Dame on the unlimited hydroplane racing circuit next season, The Seattle Times said Saturday.

Mrs. Shirley Mendelson McDonald of Detroit has decided to have another hydro built to replace the one destroyed in an accident during this month's Gold Cup race here, the paper said.

Tire-Switching Move Pays Off For Brabham

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Jack Brabham, of Australia, kept an eye on the weather Sunday and won Canada's first Grand Prix for Formula I cars on the rain-drenched Mosport track.

When the drizzle turned to a downpour in later stages, Brabham was driving steadily while such favorites as Jim Clark of Scotland and Graham Hill of England were spinning on the slippery asphalt.

Brabham, three times world champion, finished the 220-mile race in two hours, 40 minutes, 40 seconds at a relatively slow average pace of 82.79 miles an hour.

The victory was worth $10,575 in prize money.

New Zealander Denis Hulme placed second in another Brabham one minute, 1.9 seconds behind the Australian and won $6,350 in prize money.

ONLY THREE TO GO

The race was the eighth in a series of 11 leading towards the world championship. Normally 10 races count in the championship contest but the event was brought to Canada in honor of this country's Centennial Year.

In the race for the world driving championship, Hulme leads with 43 points. Brabham is next with 34. New Zealander Chris Amon, who finished sixth with the only Ferrari in the race, is third with 20. Clark, 1965 world champion whose Lotus developed electrical trouble and was listed as a non-finisher, is fourth with 19.

A paid crowd of 39,471 watched the race, many of them huddled under umbrellas throughout the afternoon. It was the first major race to be held at an Ontario track on a Sunday.

Hill, 1962 world champion, spun his Lotus 13 laps before the end of the 90-lap race. He was placed fourth although he completed only 88 laps.

Only two Canadians were in the race. Al Pease, Toronto commercial artist, was placed 12th although he completed only 47 laps because of a dead battery in his Eagle. Eppie Wietzes, Toronto area auto dealer, driving a Lotus, was listed as a non-finisher. Both Canadians were making their debut in Grand Prix competition.

Vicettes Miss In B.C. Final

Also in the tournament were Kamloops, Prince Rupert, Victoria Vicettes, Nelson and Whitehorse.

Pat LeFebvre, who played third base for Prince George, was judged the most valuable player in the double-knockout event. Teammate Gwen Rempel, winner of Sunday's game, won the pitching award, while Anne Konkin of Nelson took the batting crown.

SIX UNDER PAR for 36 holes was all Moe Norman (above) needed to pick up top money in $3,000 Videon Open golf tournament at Fort William. Stan and Wilf Homeniuk, brothers from Manitoba, finished second and third, respectively.

PAUKKUNEN PAYS OWN WAY . . . TO BECOME JUNIOR CHAMP

Putting Made the Difference

The theory was demonstrated Saturday when Jay Paukkunen of Port Arthur, Ont., defeated Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver 4 and 3 in the 36-hole final of the match-play Canadian junior golf championship.

Paukkunen, 18, and Roxburgh, 15, were about even on their tee shots and iron play but the Ontario golfer showed his mastery on the greens.

Roxburgh, who has been golfing less than three years, was no match for the cool-headed Paukkunen. The Vancouver boy faltered early in the match when he kept asking his brother Bob, who was also his caddy, for advice before every shot.

Paukkunen went three up on the sixth hole, increasing it twice to 5-up before finally winning the 33rd hole for the championship.

The Port Arthur golfer was eligible for the Manitoba interprovincial team in the tournament, but failed to qualify. Golfers in the Port Arthur area are members of the Manitoba association.

His loss of the team berth also cost him sponsorship, but he decided to compete anyway.

Paukkunen's ambition is to enter the University of New Mexico.

"I want to get on the college team," he said.

More Not Less Family Aid Is Required

QUEBEC (CP)—The family allowance program should be maintained and even broadened, the international conference on the family was told today by Reuben C. Baetz of Ottawa, executive director of the Canadian Welfare Council.

Attacking criticism of the federal plan, which pays out about $500,000,000 a year, he said it has been of enormous help to young families with low and medium incomes, providing cash assistance without the stigma of welfare.

"It has been of particular benefit to the young man who has to assume the expenses of a growing family while not yet earning his maximum income," Mr. Baetz said.

Some contended that family allowances were too costly and help persons who do not need it. He said he is suspicious of such critics.

"I doubt, for example, whether people suggesting the discontinuance of family allowances would be ready to divert the more than $500,000,000 now spent on this program to families really in need," he said.

HAS TWO SUGGESTIONS

Mr. Baetz suggested two ways of extending the plan.

First, the present monthly rates of $6 and $8, depending on the age of the children, should be doubled or tripled in the case of one-parent families where the costs of child care are often high. This was particularly true where a widow or divorcee with children had to work.

Second, young couples in difficulty trying to finance a home should be allowed to draw future payments in a lump sum.

Even if only 20 per cent of the present allowance payments were diverted, it would make $100,000,000 a year of "new money" available for housing.

Mr. Baetz said the lack of housing may be one of the greatest problems facing new families in the decade ahead.

GALBRAITH ON VIET WAR

Critics 'Restrain' Military

ASCUTNEY, Vt. (AP) — The influence of Vietnam war critics has kept U.S. military leaders from carrying the conflict to China and from asking to bomb targets in Russia, Harvard Professor John Kenneth Galbraith said Saturday.

"The critics of this conflict have had a good deal of influence," said the Canadian-born former U.S. ambassador to India. Galbraith is national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action.

"If it had not been for their voice on behalf of restraint," he said, U.S. military leaders would by now "have passed on from Shanghai and Peking and be asking for permission to bomb the Trans-Siberian railway and possibly the oil fields of Baku," which are in Russia.

Galbraith spoke to some 600 members of the Committee for Alternatives in Vietnam, a peace group gathered at the Mt. Ascutney ski area.

Galbraith called Premier Ky of South Vietnam a "tool" of U.S. policy, who has "only the power to embarrass us."

Galbraith was born in Iona Station, Ont.

Arab Delegations Divided On Eve of Summit Meeting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A summit conference of Arab leaders opens in Khartoum Tuesday to forge a unified policy toward Israel, but divisions among the Arabs on the civil war in Yemen and relations with the West may diminish the cordiality of the meeting.

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne is apparently reluctant to attend the conference in the Sudanese capital because he fears moderate leaders will prevail in policy making.

Foreign ministers of 13 Arab countries met in Khartoum Sunday and approved the agenda for the summit. Egyptian sources said the ministers regard the dispute over Yemen as foremost among inter-Arab feuds. Egypt backs the Republican regime in Yemen against Royalists rebels supported by Saudi Arabia.

The Arab world also is divided in its stance toward the West. Eight Arab countries broke relations with Britain and the United States, accusing them of aiding Israel in the June 5-10 war against the Arabs. But five kept diplomatic relations with the two Western powers.

Two of the five, Tunisia and Jordan, touched off a dispute at the foreign ministers meeting by pushing for a plan to improve relations with the West. Most foreign ministers argued that the question of continuing the embargo on oil shipments to the United States and Britain should be dealt with at the summit level.

Reports in Cairo of deeper Soviet involvement on the Egyptian-Republican side of the Yemeni civil war dimmed hopes for settlement of the five-year-old conflict. Yemeni President Abdullal Al-Sallal conferred secretly in Yemen with a Soviet delegation Friday, then flew to Cairo for talks with President Nasser.

Meanwhile, the repatriation of Arab refugees to the Israeli-occupied west bank of the Jordan River continued to lag. Only 1,388 refugees straggled across the bridges Sunday.

GERMAN KILLED TRYING ESCAPE INTO AUSTRIA

VIENNA (UPI)—Four East German youths drove on a "holiday" to the Czech-Austrian border Sunday, climbed atop their automobile's roof, jumped over a Communist anti-refugee wall and dived into a river to reach Austrian soil.

Three made it but Richard Schlenz, 28, was machine-gunned to death by Communist guards.

All Aboard Rescued After Plane Ditches

SCITUATE, Mass. (AP)—Some swam, others clung to the wing until boats arrived, but within minutes all 14 persons aboard a commercial airliner which ditched Sunday night in the Atlantic stood wet but safe on shore.

The twin-engine Lockheed Electra owned by Provincetown-Boston Airlines Inc. was flying from Provincetown to Boston, 40 miles away, when trouble developed in the right engine.

Pilot Elwood Hallowell, 38, of Naples, Fla., said he ditched the plane about 20 miles south of Boston.

"The pilot really did a hell of a job," said an eyewitness.

The plane stayed afloat for about eight minutes, giving summer residents with small boats time to pluck five non-swimming passengers from the left wing before it sank.

Five others were picked up in the water as they swam toward shore and four others reached the beach without help.

Swindlers Nabbed

ROME (AP) — Police announced last week they had arrested a nine-man Italian gang that swindled $1,600,000 from several European and American banks. Police said the gang used forged letters of credit to get cash from banks in Italy, Switzerland, Belgium, Denmark, West Germany and the United States.

Smokers Beware! Harm Can Be Done

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Despite many warnings, requests to use common sense, and please refrain from lighting fires on beaches and throwing matches and cigarette butts near tinder-dry grass, there are some who if they think they can get away with it, continue to do these things.

Forbes

I've just heard of a young man and woman who drove their car down to a secluded Saanich Peninsula beach on a recent moonlight night. A beach ringed with homes, gardens now dry because of water shortage and woods that could flare if touched with one flying spark.

This light-minded couple started a fire under an overhanging tree and were having a gay old time feeding it with increasingly large amounts of driftwood when a home-owner spotted the smoke.

He raced to the edge of an embankment above the beach and called to the fire makers. The answer he got was "keep your shirt on, mister."

He soon convinced them however that if the fire wasn't out and they were not off the beach in double quick time, they'd be in serious trouble.

* * *

In this particular instance there was no harm done. The home owner in question went down to the beach after the couple had left, made sure the fire was out, the ashes scattered and the place dampened down.

But suppose he had not seen the drifting smoke. Suppose as the flames were fed a spark had floated into that overhanging tree. It's more than likely there would have been nothing left by morning but blackened stumps and the remains of a number of family homes.

Now let's move on to the Gordon Head area. A few days ago friends of mine who live out that way were taking an early-evening stroll.

It was still smoldering when my friends reached it. The grass under it was beginning to blacken. A few moments more and a tiny flame would have licked up and started its relentless damage.

* * *

Again it would be easy to say there was "no harm done." My friends were there and stamped out the smoldering flame. At the same time, if they hadn't seen that cigarette butt land in the dry grass there could have been tragic consequences.

Remember . . . these are not isolated cases. They are happening every day. Indeed, there may be those who read this column who are guilty of just such careless disregard for people and property. And who shrug such memories off with the same words used by the couple at that Saanich Peninsular beach . . . "there was no harm done."

* * *

Better perhaps that they should remember the many times harm has been done when a careless smoker has tossed aside his cigarette or match or a heedless camper left a fire with living coals.

Result—a blackened, lifeless waste, homes burned, perhaps lives lost. The creatures of the forest dead and no growth where once stood the living trees.

Forecasts for the next three weeks foretell more of the present blistering hot weather, the kind that has dried out the land and already sent walls of flame sweeping through the woods.

Until the rains come then . . . you, who within your hands have a spark of fire, think well before you use it or toss it carelessly aside.

Massive Aid Averts Famine In India

By JOE McGOWAN Jr.

NEW DELHI (AP)—One of history's most massive relief operations has made good in India this year, preventing large-scale starvation.

The program was necessitated by a two-year drought affecting 60,000,000 persons in eastern India.

"This was certainly the most multifaced relief effort in world history," says Alan Berg, who headed a drought-relief co-ordinating committee established last November by U.S. Ambassador Chester Bowles. "It is quite clear now that famine of very serious proportions has been averted."

Foreign governments and relief agencies sent men, vehicles, well-drilling rigs, and foodstuffs, all of which supplemented the American Food-for-Peace program that has shipped millions of tons of grain.

CARE — Co-operative for American Relief Everywhere — and various religious groups provided a meal a day for 8,000,000 children, nursing mothers and pregnant women in the eastern Indian state of Bihar.

The program has been so effective that children in Bihar actually look better than children in slum areas of many Indian cities.

PROJECTS SET UP

In addition to the free feeding kitchens, the Indian and foreign agencies set up self-help projects. Able-bodied men and women were put to work in "hard manual labor" schemes, building water reservoirs and other earthworks to ease future droughts.

With money earned at these projects the people could buy food at government ration shops.

Berg says there may be critical moments in the months ahead until the Kharif (summer) crops is harvested in December.

Indian agriculture officials are optimistic that a crop of 100,000,000 tons of food grains may be harvested this year—a record. The best previous crop was 90,000,000 in 1964-65.

Abduction Starts Riots

SRINAGAR, Kashmir (Reuters)—A total curfew was in force today in Srinagar, Kashmir's capital, following renewed clashes among Hindus, Moslems and police.

Three days of violent protests against the alleged abduction and forced marriage of a Hindu girl to a Moslem youth have resulted in more than 50 police and 250 demonstrators being injured.

The curfew, already in force in Old Srinagar, was extended Sunday to cover the whole city, partly due to police fears of further violence today when Hindus celebrate the birthday of Lord Krishna, one of their main deities.

While the army imposed the curfew, police sealed off the old part of the city where several fires were reported to be raging.

DEMAND GAS FOR FIRES

Moslem crowds had rampaged through the streets, stopping vehicles and demanding gasoline to set fire to government buildings and property.

Police herded people on to trucks to be driven to their homes before the curfew was enforced, and stopped a movie and ordered the theatre audience to leave.

Police used tear gas and batons Sunday to disperse stone-throwing Hindu demonstrators. Forty-four persons, including 22 policemen, were injured.

Hindu claims that the teen-age store clerk, Parmeshwari Handoo, was abducted before her marriage and that she was only 17—under the age of consent—sparked the disturbances two weeks ago.

Ferries Continuing On Hourly Schedule

The hourly ferry service between Swartz Bay and Tsawwassen will continue until Monday, Oct. 2, a spokesman for B.C. government farries said Saturday.

The service both ways begins at 7 a.m. daily and continues hourly until 10 p.m., when the last ferries leave both Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay.

Starting Tuesday, Oct. 3, there will be one ferry every two hours in both directions, leaving at 7, 9, 11 and 1 p.m. and continuing until 9 p.m.

"The summer service is being continued later this year because of increasing public demand," the spokesman said.

OTHER SERVICES

Canadian Pacific's ferry service between Victoria, Port Angeles and Seattle will continue until Saturday, Sept. 30.

The steamer Princess Marguerite leaves here daily at 1:30 p.m. for Port Angeles; then returns to Victoria and sails for Seattle at 5:30 p.m. She leaves Seattle for Victoria at 8:30 the following morning, arriving at 12:30 p.m.

There will be no Canadian Pacific service to either Port Angeles or Seattle after Sept. 30. But the thrice-daily service between Nanaimo and Vancouver will continue throughout the winter.

Washington State Ferries will continue their service between Victoria and Port Angeles until Sept. 15.

The Mv Coho leaves here daily at 6, 10:15, 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. and returns from Port Angeles at 8 a.m. 12:15, 4:30 and 8:30 p.m.

The service will be reduced after Sept. 15.

Pawnbroker Hid Income Of $435,000

VANCOUVER (CP)—Pawnshop owner Alfred Abraham Evans pleaded guilty Friday to hiding income totalling $435,000 from the income tax authorities.

He was charged on 46 counts under the Income Tax Act.

Involved were Evans' two 60-year-old Vancouver firms—B.C. Collateral Loan Brokers Ltd., and B.C. Collateral Sales Ltd. —and Evans himself.

The offences took place between 1954 and 1964.

Ken Brawner, special government prosecutor, said the income tax amounted to $169,453.87. He recommended a minimum fine of $50,000, and said Evans should be imprisoned if he failed to pay.

Magistrate Gordon Johnson said he would pass sentence Sept. 29.

Have you tried this unusually stimulating combination?

What makes Gilbey's London Dry and grapefruit juice so compatible?

A very simple fact that's been known by connoisseurs of gin for many years.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Dissatisfaction Growing Over Present Park Policy

The government is urged today to re-assess its park policies in line with mounting attendance at provincial park this summer.

The suggestion comes from campers and heads of sportsmen and outdoor clubs — indicating a growing dissatisfaction with the development and management of provincial parks.

Attendance at provincial parks this year exceeded all expectations. It is expected to soar well over the 6,000,000 mark, a record — despite a drop-off this month due to forest fire restrictions.

As of July 31, the total camper and day visits for the holiday season is 3,168,000, an increase of 21 per cent over the same period last year.

Park users feel the figures justify a "new look" at present policies, especially with regard to park management and acquisition of parklands.

They complain that many parks have gone down hill in the last two years. Englishman's River and Little Quallicum are cited as examples.

They want more parks, especially near large urban areas like Victoria and the Lower Mainland.

A surprising number are in favor of charging camp users a fee (between $1 and $1.50); closing park to visitors after 10 p.m., a practice followed by state parks in Washington.

They also urge appointment of full-time rangers for all parks.

"I feel certain that campers would willingly pay a small fee in return for better management and policing," said Bill Williams, 4101 Cedar Hill.

Many park users also said the department of recreation should take over the supervision of the Sayward Lakes in the Campbell River District — an area under the jurisdiction of B.C. Hydro.

"Many camping spots are filthy because of the lack of supervision," said one camper.

There is also a growing demand for barring speed boats on smaller lakes in parks. These lakes would only be opened to canoeists and rowboats.

Hikers, who have been increasing in numbers in the past few years, want trails.

But what park users seem most concerned about is what appeares to be a lack of initiative in acquiring more parklands.

According to some persons there is no evidence that the government was planning for the future.

W. A. James, a director of the Victoria Fish and Game Club, singled out the Sooke River Potholes as an example of the government's lack of action and "laisse faire" policy.

REPEATED REQUESTS

"This area has been a traditional recreational area for residents of South Vancouver Island for years," he said. "More people use the river for swimming than any beach — more even than Whitty's lagoon.

But, he pointed out, the government has turned a deaf ear to repeated requests to take over the area. He doesn't know why.

No action has been taken yet to preserve the natural west coast between Pachena point and Port Renfrew, he said.

Herbert Warren, president of the Victoria Outdoor Club, and many others, think park development lags behind because the government does not allocate sufficient budget to the parks branch.

"They seemed to have overextended their operations," he said. "Some parks have certainly gone down-hill."

But by far the greater number of camp users blamed the state of affairs on Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

They claim he lacks a "feeling for parks" and is ten-years behind public opinion.

Whether this is justified or not did not concern Howard English, a director of the Victoria Fish and Game Club.

But Mr. English, and others like him, think the time had arrived for the department to take another look at it's park and recreatioaal policies.

FIRE ON TUG KILLS CREWMAN OFF SAN JUAN

SEATTLE (AP) — One crewman died, but nine others escaped unhurt, when a tugboat caught fire in northern Puget Sound Sunday off the San Juan Islands, about 70 miles north of Seattle.

John Nickert, 57, Seattle, engineer on the tug Mercury, was fatally injured in the engine room fire. The other crewmen abandoned ship and reached shore near Ferndale, Wash.

UNLESS DISCRIMINATION ENDS

Racial Troubles Possible in U.K.

LONDON (AP) — A warning that Britain is headed for racial violence unless quick action is taken to eliminate discrimination was sounded Sunday in a report prepared for the ruling Labor party.

The report called for extending the Race Relations Act, now largely restricted to public places such as pubs and restaurants, to outlaw discrimination in housing, employment and commercial services.

Prime Minister Wilson's government already has served notice it intends to strengthen the anti-discriminaation laws when Parliament returns in November from its summer recess.

The report proposed that independent race relations tribunals, with power to enforce their orders in court, be set up to consider discrimination in housing and employment in which conciliation has failed.

It warned: "If discrimination in housing is allowed to continue there is a real danger that the 'twilight areas' of our cities will be inhabited by the majority of the colored population who are prevented by discrimination from moving elsewhere."

These "colored ghettos" would become "centres of bitterness and tension occasionally erupting into violence," the report said.

Nazi Charged With Murder

COHOES, N.Y. (AP) — A former member of the American Nazi party was held on a first-degree murder charge today in the shooting of a Jewish salesman.

Francis Mainville, 29, of Cohoes, described himself as a Nazi storm trooper Saturday, police said, upon his arrest after the slaying of Harry Pearlberg, 59, a door-to-door clothing salesman from nearby Troy.

Pearlberg, who had called at Mainville's house to make a collection, was struck by several bullets fired through the closed door by a .32-calibre pistol, police said.

Halt China Exports

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia has stopped exporting its products to China, a trade ministry spokesman said last week. He said the decision is "pure business and has nothing to do with politics." Indonesia used to export 8,000 tons of rubber monthly to China but reduced its exports considerably after failure of the Communist-backed coup attempt here in 1965.

SMOKE KILLS INFANT GIRL LEFT ALONE

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James McNaughton, were preparing food when, police said, McNaughton cut his hand. Mrs. McNaughton took him to hospital they added, leaving the potatoes on the stove. When they returned, the house was filled with smoke.

GARDEN CITY TRAIL RIDE . . . . . . FOLLOWED PATH OF FOREFATHERS

Bones Broken on 360-Mile Ordeal . . . Never Their Spirit

By LLOYD BAKER
Times City Editor

The dangers and difficulties are fading into the background . . . the pleasures are shining through.

The B.C. Centennial Trail Ride from Pemberton to Williams Lake over the past two weeks was one of the most daring undertakings on the long list of Canada's birthday events.

And to people who know the country, it was an outstanding accomplishment.

But at times — and there were many of them — the riders had long thoughts about its success.

Thirty-one of us started and 30 reached Williams Lake although several did not ride the whole of the route. There were side trips which some passed up, joining us later after a day of doctoring themselves and their horses.

It was strenuous from start to finish.

The event, sponsored by the Garden City Horsemen's Club of Victoria with official blessings of the B.C. Centennial Committee, included a wide range of riding types. All but one had fairly long experience in the saddle, although some were more accustomed to riding in show rings than on wilderness trails.

There was a wide range, also, in the types of horses. Only four were rent horses (from Paradise Valley Ranch near Squamish). Most were cold-bloods, some with finer qualities than others, and there were a few registered animals including Thoroughbreds, Anglo-Arabs, Half-Arabs and a Tennessee Walker.

Most were well-conditioned at the start; others worked into condition the hard way — as the ride progressed.

And when we reached Williams Lake after 12 days of riding, with one day layover for everyone on the 10th day at Big Creek in the Chilcotin, the animals looked tired but fit, although there wasn't one that did not carry some kind of a scar, cut, nick or gall from the grind.

It was originally thought that the ride would cover about 260 miles as it wound its way through mountains of the Coast Range up through the Bralorne district and into the hilly range lands of the Chilcotin. But it turned out to be more like 360 to 400 miles as we encountered more ups and downs than expected.

At the start we didn't think it was going to be a merry-go-round, but at the same time we didn't think we'd be riding up to 35 miles as we did one day and in the saddle for as long as 11 hours at a stretch, which is tough going even for the hardiest of ranch hands in the type of country we covered.

It was a real experience . . .

. . . And it was beautiful.

Scenery was unimaginable, particularly in the alpine regions. Mountain peaks seemed to doff their snowy caps to the blue skies above and the flowered meadows below where we would stop to rest and graze our horses.

There were two such days of riding — over McGillivray Pass from Cassiar to Pioneer, and further north from Pearson's Pond to Spruce Lake, a side trip.

In other areas the route took us over dirt roads and trails where the dust from many steel-shot feet couldn't hide the artistry of nature's landscaping of the land of pines, spruce and poplar. Carpeting of grass and shrubs under the trees was toning down in the heat of summer, complimenting the darker shades of the foliage above.

Glimmering lakes and sparkling streams greeted us continually through the ride and, because many of them asked to be left alone with warnings of encircling bog, we drank in their beauty from a distance.

Bog became the bugaboo of the ride after the third day. In the McGillivray Pass area about half of the party blundered into a bottomless alpine swamp which almost brought disaster. We were following a now disused telephone line and the trail deteriorated into a rotting narrow corduroy road.

Horses soon were floundering up to their shoulders in the muck. It took two hours of plunging struggle to reach firm footing and find night camp at Piebiter Creek at dark.

Calamity reached out also earlier that day when three horses at different points on a narrow, side-hill trail lost their footing and went over the edge.

Two were able to scramble back up the bank without too much difficulty. The other, being led by its rider who found the trail too treacherous to ride, tumbled end over end about 45 feet into a rocky, log-strewn rushing stream, and the situation appeared impossible for a time.

There it stood in the stream, shivering from shock and bleeding from gashes and scratches. And on all sides there were steep banks criss-crossed with windfalls.

Are we going to have to shoot him?

The question was not asked aloud but it passed through the minds of those of us surveying the situation.

We managed to work the animal a short distance up stream and, with ropes and shouts and cursing dispair finally got him to a spot on the bank where there was a little footing and he was able to scramble and rest and scramble again back to the trail.

It was a sickening experience, but miraculously the game little horse was able to move on after some patching up and continued through to the end of the ride.

There were several other incidents, although not as hopeless as this, where horses took bad tumbles and riders were sent flying.

There were two other accidents to riders which called for medical attention, but not involving horses.

It was at the stopover at Big Creek where local ranchers staged a rodeo for our benefit. Some of the trail riders joined the cowboys in steer-riding. One received a compound fracture of the arm and another severe shock and bruises when dragged.

Ranchers' airplanes flew one to Cache Creek and the other to Williams Lake for treatment.

Overshadowing the troubles was the kindness of people in some of these remote areas we reached.

●

When we had water problems, ranchers at one spot trucked in 45 gallon drums from their wells. The Gang Ranch supplied a cowboy guide in another area; rancher Bruce Watt of Big Creek gave ailing horses shots of antibiotics and also provided a guide; Bralorne Mine officials won the hearts of all by supplying hot showers and a fine sit-down luncheon on our fourth day out; when we needed a replacement for a sore horse, Don Gillis of Empire Valley Cattle Co. supplied one gladly.

None would accept payment, not even for vet supplies.

The biggest hand of help was extended by little Jim Flichel of Gold Bridge, a packer and guide who supplied without charge a string of 15 packhorses and one mule (good old Sam) to carry bedrolls and food into areas where our cook and feed trucks couldn't reach us. His "Centennial contribution" extended over four days.

Also riding mighty high in the saddle were the Williams Lake Trail Riders headed by Marvin Westwick who met us on our last day and rode us into town, supplied stalls for horses, supper and many other kindnesses.

●

Prior to a wind-up dinner and dance arranged by the Garden City club at the Chilcotin Inn, the Centennial riders were visited by Lawrie Wallace, general chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

He flew to Williams Lake from Victoria to present each with a specially made-up engraved Western belt buckle, bearing the official Centennial medallion, as a memento of "the Big Trek of '67."

The buckles provided a fastening for a bond that had grown around the riders in what had been an ordeal of endurance at times.

They also were presented to the four members of the cook crew, Nita Walt, Ved Donaldson, Brian Martin and Casey Walt, all of Victoria, who accomplished the impossible.

Good food and lots of it kept spirits high as the party coped with conditions not too far distant from those of our forefathers who got this whole thing going 100 years ago.

'FISH WEREN'T WORTH IT!'

'Copter Drops Gas To Drifting Boat

A night adrift on the Juan de Fuca Strait tends to cool one's ardor for salmon fishing.

So says Ted McMasters, 26, of 243 Sims, who with two other men and a boy has just returned from 20 hours of riding the swells.

It all began about noon Sunday when McMasters, George Cliff and his son Bill of Richmond Avenue joined Keith Averill, 23 of 4175 Interurban for some fishing.

A pea-soup fog lying about two miles offshore proved their undoing. They got turned around in it and ran low on gas trying to find their way out.

With fuel almost gone, they shut off the engine and drifted.

The lights of Victoria came into view about 1 a.m. this morning but there was not enough gas to take them the five or so miles to land.

The four occupants huddled in the boat while it drifted across the strait to within about four miles of Port Angeles.

'PRETTY COLD'

"It was pretty cold up to about 2 a.m.," said Ted, "then the wind went down. The swells were about five feet."

An American freighter sighted them about 5 a.m. and radioed for help. A helicopter from Port Angeles dropped gas to them and they arrived back at Sooke about 8:30 a.m.

Not empty-handed.

"We had two Coho and a halibut," said Ted. "But it still wasn't worth it. Safer to buy them at a store."

Securities Audit Staff Increased

The B.C. Securities Commission is being given more muscle to boost its surveillance of stock promoters.

An order-in-council released today authorized hiring of three more audit accountants to help the single accountant on staff now.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the increase was authorized "in anticipation of a wider range of responsibilities under the new Securities Act passed at the last session."

He said the new act likely will be proclaimed next month. Requiring considerably more financial disclosure by companies to their shareholders, more stringent requirements for promoters and regulations governing "insider trading."

'NOT MUCH DELAY'

Date of proclamation now is "a question of getting this additional staff lined up but I don't expect there will be too much delay," Mr. Bonner said.

The cabinet order authorized the commission to draw from contingency funds to provide the salaries for the three new accountants because the money was not provided in the 1967 budget.

The commission already has filled new posts for a third inspector and clerical assistants that were provided in this year's salary votes at the time the new securities bill was introduced.

Grocery Theft Puts an End To Island Cruise

A seagoing shoplifter from Seattle was bound over for two months on a $250 bond and ordered to return to the U.S. after she had pleaded guilty in central court to stealing groceries.

She said she and a male companion are cruising Island waters and although they were not starving, they had only $16 between them and a little food, mostly rice and flour.

She said she went into town just to look around. She did not intend to steal, nor did her companion send her into town for that purpose, she said.

"I thought it would be easy," she told the court. The couple planned to cruise for another week on their sailboat, visiting friends on the Gulf Islands before returning to Washington via the San Juan Islands.

Mentally Unfit For Trial

Cabbie Committed To Riverview

A man facing two charges of attempted murder in shooting incidents last May has been committed to Riverview Mental Hospital.

A cabinet order released today sends Frank Bedry, 40, also known as Frank Layton, to the mental hospital indefinitely.

WOMAN WOUNDED

Officers had surrounded his house after an Esquimalt woman was shot and wounded earlier the same night.

Mrs. Molly Robertson was shot in the leg and body as she entered her home at 911 McNaughton a few hours before the policeman was shot as he entered Bedry's house.

Bedry was awaiting trial by judge and jury after being committed to trial following a preliminary hearing in June.

Order Issued For Nanaimo Regional Board

Nanaimo Regional District today became the 17th joint service board formed since the Greater Victoria board blazed the trail for B.C. communities about two years ago.

First meeting of the interim board will be held Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. in Nanaimo City Hall to begin organization for formal adoption of desired functions and prepare for election of regular board members at the Dec. 9 civic elections.

Five People Injured In Two-Car Accident

Five people were taken to hospital shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday following a two-car crash at the Trans-Canada Highway and Tillicum.

Only one person was injured seriously enough to be admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital. The others were treated and released.

Mrs. Marie Logie, 38, of 3636 Cedar Hill Road is reported in "fairly good" condition today. She suffered cuts and face injuries in the accident which caused an estimated $2,000 damage.

Mrs. Logie was a passenger in a car driven by her husband Robert, 38, which was southbound on the highway when it was in collision with a car turning on to Tillicum and driven by William Thomas, 17, of 88 Sims Avenue.

Mr. Logie suffered cuts and his son, Robert Jr., 15, received mouth injuries.

Thomas was treated for an injured arm and head cuts. His passenger, Curtis Purdy, 32, of 89 Sims, was knocked unconscious.

GOOD CONDITION

John McEwen, 18, of 49 Linden Ave. is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after his motorcycle was in collision with a car at Cook and Sutlej Saturday evening.

McEwen suffered leg injuries in the accident.

High-Speed Chase Outlined In Theft Case

The evidence was given at the preliminary hearing of a charge of theft over $50 against John N. Fleming, 163 Olive.

Owner of the 1962 sports car Ann Chettlburgh, 151 Government, said her car was parked outside her apartment about 3 a.m. Aug. 20. She heard what she thought was her car being started and looked out of her window and saw it driven away.

Later that morning a police officer saw the car with two men in it. He gave chase through a number of downtown streets and eventually the car stopped on Grant near Cook.

Thieves Get $50 From Firm

Thieves made off with about $50 from the office of a moving firm in a break-in overnight.

A side window was broken to get into the warehouse and office of Fairfield Moving and Storage Ltd. at 116 Dallas.

The burglars ransacked several suticases and trunks there were being held in storage. The money was taken from the adjacent office.

False Alarms Bring Warning

Stolen Car Total Wreck; Youths Held

Four teen-agers were arrested early today when a car reported stolen in Alberni crashed on Admirals Road after a high-speed chase.

One of the youths was found unconscious by police near the scene of the crash shortly after 5 a.m. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and later turned back to police.

The other three boys in the car fled and were caught a short time later. They were unhurt.

THREE FROM ALBERNI

Three of the youghs were 16 and the other 17 years old. The boy taken to hospital lives in the city while the other three are from Alberni.

RCMP officers said today all four are being turned over to the RCMP detachment in Alberni to face charges.

The chase began when Saanich police Sgt. Frqnk Briers spotted the speeding auto on the Trans-Canada Highway.

It turned south on Admirals and another cruiser was in position to take up the chase.

Near Cooper's Road the Alberni car skidded out of control into a utility pole, spinning around it before stopping.

All four occupants fled but the injured youth was found unconscious in some bushes a few moments later.

The car, a three-year-old model worth about $2,500, was classified as a wreck. It was reported stolen in Alberni shortly after midnight.

Variety Hopes To Organize Branch in City

Victoria is being asked to support Variety Telethon, a program which last year raised $70,000 to help retarded children in Western Canada.

To this end three members of the Variety Club of Western Canada, sponsors of Variety Telethon, are organizing a Victoria branch.

Members will be asked to raise support for the all-star Variety Telethon to be staged in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver, Oct. 7-8.

There will be a direct line from the theatre to Channel 6 Victoria, so the program can be televised locally. Viewers will be asked to donate to the fund for retarded children.

WATER SKI BOATS HIT; THREE HURT

Two boats each pulling water skiers collided on Prospect Lake Sunday afternoon.

Three people received minor injuries and damage to the boats was estimated at $1,000.

Operating one boat was Anton Lamprecht, 41, of 4977 Prospect Lake Rd. He suffered cuts to his side

Mrs. Sam Lane of 429 Lampson, operating the other boat received bruises and Bernie Zorn, also of 429 Lampson suffered cuts to his shoulder.

49 NEW BLAZES

Fire Crews Gain Ground At Weekend

Hot, sunny weather continues to keep forest fire fighters busy across the southern half of B.C. but they persisted in gaining increasing control of the situation over the weekend.

"There were only 49 new fires reported in the province over the weekend and the number of men on the firelines has decreased from slightly more than 3,000 Friday to 2,909 this morning," a forest service spokesman said.

Worst area now is the Kamloops forest district where 24 new fires were reported over the weekend as hazard rating remained at extreme levels.

One of the new fires there included a blaze that began Sunday night on the slopes across the Thompson River from Lytton "and exploded to 2,000 acres," the spokesman said. Eighty-three men and four tractors were battling the fire this morning.

CIGARETTE BLAMED

Only two of the weekend fires broke out on Vancouver Island.

A cigarette started a blaze near Duncan which burned two acres before a Canso water bomber and a ground crew put it out, and a spot-size, fire blamed on sunlight focussed by some broken glass was doused by the Canso near Courtenay.

Despite conflicting reports, the forest service spokesman said, a 6,000-acre blaze at Sproat Lake was not enlarged over the weekend.

"There have been pockets within it flaring up but they all have been well within the fireguard perimeter," he said.

"It's not spreading and the men are mopping it up."

OUTLOOK GRIM

Outlook remains grim with three weeks expected to go by before any appreciable rain dampens the parched forests in B.C. and similar difficulties are spreading throughout the Pacific Northwest.

U.S. officials have estimated that some 100,000 acres have been burned in Idaho. Governor D. W. Samuelson summoned legislative leaders there to an emergency session to consider a situation described as potentially the worst forest fire disaster in 50 years.

Six Calls Within Two Hours

City firemen turned out for half a dozen false alarms within two hours Saturday night.

The alarms came from street boxes. When the trucks arrived there were no people and no fires.

"We treat this as a very serious matter," Deputy Chief R. J. Coates said this morning. "If whoever is doing it is apprehended, he will be dealt with severely."

SPARKS FROM INCINERATOR

Sparks from an incinerator were blamed for starting a rear wall on fire. The flames spread to the window frame and eaves but left the interior of the building undamaged.

The continued hot weather has promoted closure of the park area bounded by Lansdowne, Midland, Dorset and Beach Drive.

The worst of half a dozen grass fires over the weekend kept firemen at work for more than two hours Saturday afternoon.

ON THE GO

Grass fires kept both Saanich and city firemen on the go this morning.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

Is last month's hairdo your undoing? Does your hemline line up with what's in or what's out? Are you unfurling fuchsia when you should be parading in periwinkle?

Alas, if you always seem to be one step behind the big fashion march, please don't despair. Most of us are off step in much the same way. The problem seems to be that just when we're sure we're marching to the right drummer, another new fashion rhythm catches on and there we are holding the proverbial bag and this time it may be an expensive hairpiece, dress or, heavens forbid, an overall look!

Inasmuch as fashion is big business, not fine art, the whole point is to keep ahead and constantly incite our desire for the new.

Often, however, the sad cold fact is that once you spy a marvellous magazine spread on gold'tone makeup, you go out and buy it, wear it and no sooner get used to it than bam—silver-tone makeup suddenly emerges as the look of the moment.

On one hand some designer is telling you to look romantic delicate, turn-of-the century simpatico . . . and on the other, rugged, rough, pioneer in handwoven jeans wins raves editorially. It's unquestionably confusing.

Where do you fit? If you realize that all these contradictory day-by-day developments are merely IDEAS, you can relax and even "enjoy" watching the parade of fashion.

One very chic magazine traditionally runs way-out photographs of far-out fashions. The editors explain that their policy is to capitalize the news . . . underline the excitement. They concede that the intelligent will distill what's right for themselves and to what degree. It's obvious that they don't expect anyone to tease her hair to a two-foot height resembling a lion's mane. But think of all the fun the hairdressers had preparing the model for the photograph!

A fashionable beauty must be literally selfish. "Know thyself," as the saying goes. (Incidentally, this is the secret of all the best-dressed, best-groomed people!) If you try to emulate each idea or silhouette that finds its way into print or picture you'll end up as a jack of all trends . . . with "nothing to wear."

Find your ideal format and live with it. If your over-all look is most effective with short hair, don't spend your time slaving over the long, long falls. If your knees know they should be covered, don't uncover them for the sake of "being in style." Frequently being "out" is considered being "in" because one looks so "individual"!

There's no such thing as the last word. Set your own pace (even dare to be different) and THE NEW YOU will be the master—not the slave—in the realm of fashion and beauty.

JUST FOR YOU: Some dreary afternoon explore some costume books or, visit a costume museum. Your adventure may help crystalize your own philosophy of dressing and you will be better qualified to gauge the fascinating "pendulum of fashion," which swings unrelentlessly up and down throughout the centuries.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Search for Lost Keys Solved With New Case

By Penny Saver

The other evening I went out for an evening of bridge with some of the girls in the neighborhood. We had a great time and didn't give up until the small hours of the morning. The rest of the family had long since gone to sleep by the time I arrived home. As I stood on the doorstep, fumbling for my house-key, I heard a ferocious growling from about two feet. I froze in my tracks, dropped my key-case, and was winding up for a loud scream, when I recognized the neighbor's dog lurking in the shrubs. Ten minutes later I found my keys again, and gratefully escaped indoors.

This whole situation could have been eliminated if I'd remembered to carry a time-saving item I saw on a recent shopping trip. It is a key-case that has everything . . . flashlight, detachable key holders, and colored key-markers so you'll never have to try a lock more than once. The loops that hold the keys can be snapped out of the actual holder so there's no need to fumble with a fistful of wrong keys. This case also has a pocket inside for bus tickets or parking meter money, too. Priced at $5.50, it simplifies "the search for the missing key."

This same key-case, without the flashlight (which can be flashed on without opening the case) is priced at $3.95. All these energy-saving holders are made of leather, and come in red, blue, beige, brown, green, black and white.

In the store where I found these, I also saw some gorgeous 1968 calendars. One that particularly caught my fancy has excellent color photos of the various ships that sailed in this year's Swiftsure race. These pictures are detachable, and are designed for use as postcards as well. A perfect gift item, this calendar is priced at $1.50.

This shop has just received a large order of Swiss notepapers, too. Scenes of cities and mountains, drawings of birds and flowers, and photographs of Swiss mountain flowers can all be found on these. Hasty-notes come in boxes of eight, and are priced at $1.50, and small gift cards, folded and with envelopes, are similarly priced for a box of 10. A box of 30 single cards with envelopes is also at the same price.

Please give me a call at 382-3131 if you'd like to know where I shopped for these items.

LOCAL ENTRIES WIN AT CNE

Two Victorians have been named winners in the Canadian National Exhibition's Canadian Handicrafts Guild competition in Toronto.

Mrs. Carole Sabiston received the $100 award for the best contemporary design entry in the show for her stitchery, "Bi-Cultural." Another entry of Mrs. Sabiston's, "Northern City," was given a special award of $35.

Well-known in local art circles, Mr. Groves has also been displaying a jug at Expo 67 which has been bought as a permanent exhibit for the Charlottetown Museum.

Complexion Beauty

The secret of beautifying the complexion is said to lie in the saturation of the skin with a new type of tropical moist oil. The skin takes on an immediate healthy bloom as the tiny lines and blemishes are gently smoothed away. This saturation treatment with the moist oil of Olay is recommended by skin care consultants, who advise its daily use as a powder base to give the complexion day-long beauty. DEAR ABBY . . .

Neighbor Picks Anything Handy

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am 54 and have been a widow for two years now. Abby, I'm no home-wrecker, but a married man has been coming by my house to see me lately. He and his wife have lived neighbors to me for over 20 years. He's 60, no children, and claims he and his wife never had much in common. They're just a couple of old pals.

Well, his "old pal" went north to visit some of her people, so he invited me to his house. In the bedroom I found some greeting cards he had sent his wife, and I was astonished to find that they were the same identical cards he had sent to me. In his own hand he had written "Love". On mine he had written "All My Love".

When I asked him about this he said, "It's hard to find different greeting cards. They all run about the same."

Abby, here's my question. Since he professed "all his love" for me, what business has he sending his wife the same cards? Do you really believe greeting cards are that hard to find?

FULL OF DOUBT

DEAR FULL: Your neighbor is obviously not the type to strain himself searching for anything. He just takes whatever is handy. I suspect that he and his "old pal" have more in common than he said they had.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-year-old boy who is a little mixed up about something that happened.

A girl classmate of mine called me up one night last week at 11 o'clock at night. My mother answered the phone and asked her what she wanted to talk to me about.

The girl said she just wanted to talk to me, so my mother hung up without calling me to the phone. (I was home.)

My mother told me it wasn't proper for a girl to call a boy, that she had never done it herself, and any girl who called boys was "boy crazy".

The next day I apologized to the girl. She explained that her parents were out, that she was babysitting and just wanted someone to talk to. What is your opinion of this?

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED: It is not proper for a girl to call a boy. Girls who do aren't necessarily "boy crazy," but they lack judgment. And even though your mother disapproved of the girl's calling you, she should have called you to the telephone without questioning the caller.

DEAR ABBY: You gave "Hanging On" the wrong advice. How can a wife be content to hang on to her husband if after 30 years of marriage he asks for a divorce?

"Hanging On" claims she is a refined, educated woman, who at 52 could take a job as a topless waitress if she wanted to. So why not let the unhappy husband go while she is still desirable?

She could then be a refined, educated, topless waitress and thereby have a chance to catch an adoring husband who would provide her with the love and admiration she seeks.

That way she could make three people happy instead of two miserable.

A READER

DEAR READER: You failed to take into consideration one line in her letter: "I am ashamed to say this, but I still care for him." That changes all the betting. I say that as long as a woman "still cares" for her husband, she has everything to gain and nothing to lose by hanging on.

DEAR ABBY: Last Saturday night I had a date with a guy I'll call Joe. It was supposed to be a double date with another couple I'll call Jim and Sue.

Sue had a headache; or so she said, and couldn't make it, so Jim came along with Joe and me.

I felt sorry for Jim being without a girl and all, so I tried to make it up to him and I danced half the dances with him and half with Joe.

Joe got mad at me, and now he won't even speak to me. Who is wrong? If I'm wrong I'll apologize as soon as I see Joe again.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: Since Jim didn't have a date, he was rather presumptuous to have gone along with you and Joe. You may have meant well, but I'm afraid you went too far trying to give both Joe and Jim a pleasant evening. Apologize to Joe. If he doesn't forgive you—well, there's always Jim.

CAC Speaks On Reforms

OTTAWA — Three significant resolutions dealing, with items of everyday use have been sent to Trade and Commerce Minister R. H. Winters by the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The first resolution requests action to extend existing federal regulations to require a declaration of weight on all food containers. At present this is required only on all foods over two ounces.

Reason for the resolution, the CAC says, is because "it is desirable to compare weights of small items such as spices and chocolate bars to evaluate the cost."

The federal departments of Agriculture and Health and Welfare were also advised of this resolution.

A second resolution calls for declaration of weight on all bars of soap and synthetic soap bars so that a comparison of weights and costs may be made. Weight declaration at present need only be printed on packages of soap flakes and powders and synthetic soap products.

Increasing concern over highly flammable fabrics which do not bear a cautionary label is reflected in a third resolution asking that serious consideration be given to require labelling of all flammable fabrics used in clothing, "particularly those used for infants and small children." Such labelling is urgently needed, CAC says, because "developments in the production and treatment of fabrics are rapid and confusing to the consumer."

The groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. R. Isaacs and brothers Mark and Paul travelled from Jamaica to attend the recent marriage of Miss Heather Elizabeth Stewart and Mr. Ronald Issacs. In Nanaimo Church Ceremony

VICTORIA MAN MARRIED

A wedding of wide interest both in Victoria and up-Island took place, Friday evening, in Mount St. Peter's Church, Nanaimo, when Sharon Maureen Mullan became the bride of Wayne William Tyler, Victoria.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene James MacGillivray of Nanaimo and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Tyler of Powell River. Fr. J. LeHane officiated at the service and Mr. MacGillivray gave his step-daughter in marriage.

During the ceremony, organist Mrs. K. Gogo played "Ave Maria" and " O Perfect Love."

Embroidered lace highlighted the front panel of the bride's A-line gown of peau d'ange which was fashioned en train. The empire-line bodice featured three-quarter-length sleeves. A self-fabric cluster of flowers held her three-tier veil. She carried pink roses and stephanotis in her bouquet.

Gowns of fascinee silk in a blue and green print, accented with touches of lavender and white, were worn by the bride's attendants. The gowns were lined with lavender and turquoise. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. S. Smith; bridesmatron was Mrs. S. Pavlis and bridesmaids, the Misses Karol Parsons and Kathy Mullan. Patti MacGillivray was junior bridesmaid.

The little flower girl, Kelly MacGillivray, was in an A-line frock of peau de soie, fashioned with a yoke of lace.

Best man was Glyn Davies and ushering the guests were Ron Scheck, Laddie Pavlis and Tom Mullan, the bride's brother.

Mr. Mullan also proposed the toast to his sister at the reception following in the Nanaimo Golf and Country Club.

Newlyweds to Live in Jamaica After Honeymoon Trip to Expo

The bride, the former Heather Elizabeth Stewart, is the daughter of Mrs. Donald Stewart, 1471 Faircliff Lane, and the late Mr. Stewart, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Isaacs, of Kingston, Jamaica. Arrangements of American Beauty roses, white gladioli and stocks decorated the church for the service conducted by Fr. Alexis Auger.

Organist was Miss Irene Guertin, and soloist Miss Irene Harris sang "Panus Angelicus," "The Wedding Prayer" and "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her brother, Donald Stewart, the bride wore a floor-length gown made by her aunt, Miss Eliana Mathieu. Fashioned of embroidered lace, brought from Paris by the bride, the gown was sleeveless, with a slightly fitted waist. Her headpiece was a Spanish mantilla of similar lace, and she carried a single American Beauty rosebud.

Matron of honor Mrs. Allon Heath and bridesmaid Miss Debrah Heath wore silk-blend gowns in American beauty red. Styled on A-lines, the gowns were sleeveless, and featured high necklines. Their headpieces were tiny pillbox hats en tone with the gowns, and they carried bouquets of gladioli, American Beauty roses, heather and gyphsophila.

Mark Isaacs was best man, and Paul Isaacs ushered the guests. Both are brothers of the groom.

A three-tier wedding cake topped with arrangements of American Beauty roses centred the head table for the reception in the Hollywood Place home of the bride's aunt, Miss Maria Mathieu. Allon Heath proposed the toast to the bride.

A pure silk shantung suit in beige, bordered with a trim of beige, brown and black polka-dots echoing those of her blouse, was worn by the new Mrs. Isaacs for travelling on honeymoon to Parksville and Expo 67. Her hat was in the same polka-dot fabric. To complement the ensemble she wore black patent leather accessories.

COOKING CAN BE FUN

Apple Dessert Stars Cook-Out

We took a vote:

Would we make another apple pie or a different apple dessert for Labor Day cookout supper? I put up two hands for "something different" and Davey swung the vote for me by asking for a pudding with "That sauce you use on Christmas pudding" — (hard sauce).

Moore

Ten years ago I wrote about the recipe for Hungarian Apple Pudding and ever since requests have been trickling in for copies of that release. So with our voting session over and mealtime rapidly approaching I gladly handed the assignment to my sister Peady—an apple dessert with hard sauce.

HUNGARIAN APPLE PUDDING

with Spiced Hard Sauce

(serves 6 to 8)

PUDDING:

Four cups tart apples, washed, cored, unpared, measured after grinding, 1 cup two-day old breadcrumbs, gently packed, 1 tablespoon butter, 1-3 cups sugar, 2 egg yolks, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 egg whites, 3 tablespoons granulated sugar (second amount).

SAUCE:

One cup icing sugar, ¼ teaspoon cinnamon, ⅛ teaspoon cloves, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, 1-3 cups butter, 1 teaspoon rum flavoring OR 1 tablespoon rum (optional).

Make Hard Sauce first so it may be thoroughly chilled: Sift together sugar and spices. Cream butter and sugar mixture then beat until fluffy. Pile in attractive serving dish, peaking the top with fork. Chill until hard.

To make the pudding, wash and core tart summer apples. Do not pare. Put through coarse knife of grinder. Measure 4 cups including juice which collects in grinder. Stir in breadcrumbs. Cream butter with sugar well then add egg yolks and salt and beat. Stir in apple-crumb mixture. Beat whites with the 3 tablespoons sugar until they form a stiff meringue. Fold into apple mixture. Pour into large shallow buttered baking dish. Stand dish in larger shallow one containing ¾" hot water. Oven-poach at 375 deg. Fahr. at least one hour or until golden and fairly firm. Serve hot with spiced Hard Sauce (above).

NOTE: This same recipe may be used substituting fresh firm peeled peaches for apples.

Showers Fete Miss Lewis Prior to Coming Wedding

Yellow roses en corsage were presented to Miss Lewis when Mrs. Robert F. Holler and Miss Pat Justice entertained at a shower in the latter's Swan Street home. Mother of the guest of honor, Mrs. W. W. Lewis, received pink roses.

The bride-elect's former classmates gathered in the Cook Street home of Mrs. William Pogson for a shower. Miss Lewis received a corsage of small yellow chrysanthemums and her mother was given a vase of pink carnations.

Mrs. F. Daniel assisted the hostess, her daughter, with refreshments. Yellow bows decorated the laundry basket containing the gifts.

Gifts of linen were held in a pink and blue chest when Mrs. J. Maurice Green and her daughter Mrs. Bonnie Cliff held a shower in their Smugglers' Cove Road.

A model bride centred the floral arrangement which decorated the refreshment table at which Mrs. Harvey Weber presided. Miss Lewis received white gladioli en corsage and her mother was given pink gladioli.

Mrs. Harry Brown and Mrs. Herbert Marsh were co-hostesses at a shower in the latter's Tudor Road home. Miss Lewis and her mother were given deep pink roses en corsage. The bride-elect also received a bouquet of pale mauve chrysanthemums.

Mrs. J. Maurice Green presided at the lace-covered refreshment table and Mrs. F. E. Geddes and Mrs. Richard Lewis assisted with serving. A pink and blue umbrella contained the gifts.

The Beacon Towers home of Mrs. Harvey Weber was the setting for a coffee party honoring Miss Lewis. She was presented with a cook book and the favorite recipes of the guests attending. A single white magnolia centred the refreshment table at which Mrs. Harry Brown presided.

BIG KILLER

Cystic fibros kills more youngsters than polio in the pre-vaccine days and rivals cancer as a cause of death up to age 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold E. Ker, 1774 Duchess Street, have announced the forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lorraine Olivia, to Mr. Innis Wayne Harvey, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Harvey, of MacGregor, Man. The wedding will take place in First United Church this coming Friday, at 8 p.m. Rev. R. J. D. Morris will officiate. (Campbell Studio.)

SEW SIMPLE

Dear Eunice Farmer,

I am trying to make some clothes for school and bought a plaid wool for a suit. It wasn't too expensive. Could this be the reason it didn't come out even? What can I do to try to straighten it? Pulling doesn't help!

Ruth C.

Dear Ruth:

The fabric has been woven grain-perfect if it is a woven plaid, not a printed one. You will often find this true of fabric that doesn't cost too much. However, there is a way of straightening it out.

Place a well-dampened sheet on the wool and together in large folds. Place a piece of plastic over it and allow it to remain covered overnight. In the morning, remove the sheet (the fabric should be fairly damp by now) and place it on your carpet. It isn't damp enough to ruin the carpet and the nap of the carpet will keep it from slipping. Fold the fabric on the exact centre of a block design or wherever the lines underneath will come out even with the ones on top.

Begin by pinning the fold line in place. Next, fold back the top layer of wool the entire length of your fabric; match the cross lines as well as the lengthwise lines about four inches from the fold. When you have shifted the fabric enough to make it even, continue with the same technique about six inches further. Continue doing so until the entire fabric has been matched. You won't have to pin it because it won't slip if it is placed on the floor. This is the only way I know that will guarantee the two layers of fabric coming out exactly even.

Food for Thought

An average sandwich made from buttered bread, and containing a one-ounce slice of ham, lettuce and mustard, will provide about 350 calories.

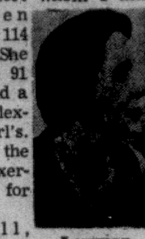
WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Keep Your Spine Flexible By Exercising Regularly

It is important to be flexible in our spine as well as our attitude. The spine is surely not going to remain flexible without exercise. Far too many folks settle down to stiffen up.

I remember vividly Dr. Charlotte Davenport whom I interviewed when she was 114 years old. She had a son 91 years old and a spine as flexible as a girl's. She gave the following exercise credit for this.



Lowman

Stand tall, feet slightly separated, toes pointing forward. Bend your elbows and raise your arms up in front of you, bust height, palms facing you. Keep your arms in this position as you swing them to the right, and at the same time turn your hips as far to the left as you can. Now swing your arms to the left as you turn your hips to the right. Continue with smooth and continuous changes.

Warning: Do not push your hips out in the back as you turn them from side to side. Keep them in the usual alignment, straight up and down.

This exercise is not difficult, but it takes a little practice. It demands some co-ordination, or say, "knack," sort of like patting your head while you rub your tummy. It is fun to do in a group when some friends gather together. It will give you lots of laughs and is beneficial also.

The following exercise will also promote flexibility of the spine. Lie on your right side, head resting on your right arm. Bend your left elbow and place your left hand behind your head. Raise your trunk up as far from the floor as you can. As you do, bend your right elbow and place your right hand behind your head. Lower trunk to the floor, straighten your right arm and keep your left arm bent. Continue. After five times turn onto the left side and bend your right elbow.

Unless you are a super-duper, you will have to ask someone to hold your feet down to the floor.

Perhaps the long-suffering person who will hold your feet down is your hubby. If he is tubby, he may want my "Tubby Hubby Diet" which will give him a loss of from 7 to 12 pounds in 12 days. If so, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Pills to Blame

Makes Rough Wrinkled Necks Smoother

If your throat is rough, wrinkled and old looking let me suggest you apply a delightful lotion-like substance you can get at any drug or department store. It's called 2nd Debut and it exclusively contains the Wiesbaden Discovery known scientifically as CEF 600 which carries needed moisture into and under the skin. Not only is wrinkled, loose flabby skin pushed up and made smooth again but at the same time the aging look of a crepe paper throat disappears and you look years younger fast. You can also get "2nd Debut" with CEF 1200 for double strength moisturizing action. Remember the name . . . 2nd Debut.

Movie Czar 85 But Not Retired

By BOB THOMAS

The night before, several of the top names of the film world gathered at his Laurel Lane mansion in Beverly Hills to salute his 85 years.

That was all the observance that Goldwyn wanted. Unlike recent years, he did not summon the press to his Formosa Avenue studio to deliver pronouncements on the state of the movie business.

"Look, I have no news to offer," he said on the telephone from his office.

During the last year or two, the film pioneer has been retiring more and more from the Hollywood scene. He rarely attends parties or awards banquets, although he and his wife Frances still give small, elegant dinners at their home.

STAYS ARE SHORTER

He no longer takes his long walks, limiting his exercise to croquet. He still goes to the studio two or three times a week, but his stays there are shorter in duration.

But if his physical powers have lessened, he seems as alert and canny as ever.

"He still keeps a close eye on everything that goes on at the studio," which he rents to other producers, an intimate reported.

The Goldwyn product has been released to TV during the last couple of years, and the producer has been able to rattle off ratings for such films as Best Years of Our Lives, The Secret Life of Walter Mitty, Guys and Dolls and Wuthering Heights.

Goldwyn watches a great deal of television and often sees the latest films in his home. Privately he deplores the trend toward sexier and more violent films, but he declines to make any public pronouncements.

The last film he produced was Porgy and Bess in 1959. Failure of the public to embrace the folk opera was a disappointment to him.

Forced Affection Brings Stiff Term

OTTAWA (CP) — A burglar who specialized in entering the apartments of attractive single women was sentenced Friday to 22 years in penitentiary, one of the stiffest sentences handed down here in recent years.

Arthur William Burke, 27, pleaded guilty to nine charges of breaking and entering and five of indecent assault.

Police testified that Burke three times threatened young women with death if they did not accept his advances.

Magistrate C. E. Carter said the husky truck driver was a "dangerous and vicious man" who had to be put away for the protection of society.

New Process For Showing Movies on TV

NEW YORK (AP) — A new process to play film cartridges through ordinary television sets in house or classroom was announced Sunday by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

A spokesman said the equipment — cartridges and a "player" attachment — will become available early in 1969 in Britian, and soon thereafter in the United States and elsewhere.

The cost is expected to be around $300 for the player, and 7 to 14 for a film cartridge of up to 20 minutes of black and white programming. Eventually it is expected that the player will be built in to television sets.

The new system, called Electronic Video Recording, is expected to have its first impact on education. The cartridges can be played through any number of sets simultaneously, can be stopped at any point for display of a still frame, and require no darkening of the classroom. The equipment will also play film strips as well as motion pictures.

Latest Expo Arrival Swam There

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

MONTREAL (CP)—A swimming mathematics teacher from Pennsylvania stroked into Expo 67 Sunday night, joining the swelling ranks of travellers who have arrived by eccentric means.

Russell Chaffee, 40, swam most of the way from Watkins Glen, N.Y.—he estimated the distance at 380 miles—in a three-week marathon, arriving with strength to spare.

"I'm in good shape," he assured a reporter after climbing from the St. Lawrence river at the Expo Marina, which shelters a luxurious-looking array of yachts. He ambled away for "the glass of milk I usually take on these occasions."

Chaffee's arrival hardly raised an eyebrow among Expo personnel who have seen visitors come, sometimes from thousands of miles away, by canoe, bicycle, model T Ford, water skis, roller skates and Chinese junk.

SOUND HURTS TALENT

Acoustics of the new concert hall in Montreal's Place des Arts are so pure that musicians call it "the Cruel Hall."

CHRISTOPHER ROSS

Christopher Ross makes a sterling contribution to the great success of the sparkling Butchart Gardens' stage revue, "Just for Fun," 1967 edition. He staged this year's "The Rhythm of Life" and appears with Roy Silver in "Too Tall." This is Chris' third season with the Sunset Revues" and let's hope that he has many more to come. The tremendously entertaining revue, "Just for Fun," may be enjoyed from the great Butchart Gardens stage any Monday, Wednesday or Friday, 8:30 p.m., during the months of July and August.

LOST MASTERPIECE

MADRID (Reuters) — A lost still-life painting by the Spanish master Diego Velazquez has been found hanging in the dining-room of the royal Riofrio Palace, near Madrid, unnoticed for centuries because another painter had made additions to it.

The Marques de Lozoya, director of the Spanish Institute, told about the discovery Sunday.

He said Francisco Xavier Sanchez Canton, director of the Prado Museum; Diego Angulo Iniguez, director of the Velazquez Institute, and a Madrid university professor, Alfonso Perez Sanchez, have all identified the work as the master's lost "Head of a Stag".

9 IN MEMORIAM

HESSON—In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Alexander Roger Hesson, who passed away Aug. 24, 1953; and a dear mother and grandmother, Amanda Jean Hesson, who passed away Nov. 3, 1944.

Years slip away but memories stay
As near and dear as yesterday.

—Ever remembered by Hazel, Gladys, John, Margaret and Alan.

MOORE — In loving memory of mother, Annie Maud, who fell asleep August 27, 1962.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved
so well,
Tonight the silent stars look down
On a grave not far from here,
Where sleeps the one we can't forget,
And always loved so dear.
Without a word you left us,
Your last thoughts were unknown,
And without farewell unspoken,
You calmly entered Home.

—Ever remembered by her loving daughter and son-in-law, Vera and Cecil Holt.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Oswald: "When I was learning bridge there were definite rules for the opening lead. You were given wide latitude in choice of the suit but everyone agreed on the right card to lead once you picked the suit."

Jim: "The rules had changed very little when I was learning the game. Today every expert has his own theory of which card to choose. They tend to lead top of two; with three to the king, queen or jack they lead third best just as they did in the good old days. They also lead low from three to the ace against no-trump, but no one is likely to lead from an ace against a suit bid."

Oswald: "Three small is the great problem. Most lead third best, a few still lead the top as they did 30 years ago and some play a convention called MUD—middle up and down. In other words, lead the middle one and play up or down later as the spirit moves you."

Opening lead—See article.

Jim: "You aren't any sort of standpatter. We both lead low from three small except when we have raised our partner's suit and he can figure out that our seven or eight isn't the top of a doubleton."

Oswald: "All this brings us around to today's hand and something ultramodern. Fifteen years ago we always led fourth best from four or more small cards. Today, we frequently lead the top so that partner won't play us for an honor."

Jim: "When today's hand was played in the Mid-South Regionals in Edgewater Park, Miss., every South player reached four hearts. Where East did not overcall, a diamond was usually opened and South would make 12 tricks. With a spade overcall and spade raise the old-fashioned three of spades lead spelt trouble for the defence. East would finesse the ten and South would take all the tricks. When the seven of spades was opened, East would go right up with the ace and return a club to hold South to his contract."

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

The new fall season on television begins next week on all networks except NBC-TV.

NBC, in fact, plans to throw a monkey wrench into the start of the new season lineups by giving viewers a taste of what is to come in 1968-69.

Stephen

While ABC, CBS, CTV and CBC are introducing their new shows, NBC has scheduled $4 million worth of pilot programs.

According to Variety, it will mark the first time a network has ever, on a grand scale, staged on-air tryouts of contenders for the schedule.

The week of tryouts is to learn audience interest in the various series projects.

Nine pilots will be aired as specials between Sept. 5 and 9. The network starts its own fall schedule on Sept. 10.

Opening the test week will be "Li'l Abner." It was originally set for this season but it lost out to "Mothers-In-Law."

The network feels the Al Capp favorite is a natural for television if done right. It isn't too sure about the casting, but then the public will judge.

The question is will the youth of today respond to the stories as our fathers did then or will they find it too square in these rebellious times?

Still another destined for the winner's circle is "Police Story". It's a winner if Felony Squad, Dragnet and NYPD are an indication of a trend back to police yarns.

Rowan and Martin, last year's summer replacements for The Dean Martin Show, are also scheduled with a "Rowan and Martin Laugh-In."

There's no doubt that NBC's caper will take the gloss off the premiere showings of series on the other networks.

But the idea is novel and could catch on. It would serve two purposes ... one to give the public a chance to look over projected series and the other to have the public reaction give the network a clue whether to buy and continue production or not. A vital factor in these days of high production costs.

CURIOSITY may have contributed to this near-record crowd of more than 5,000 which swarmed around the Cameron Band Shell in Beacon Hill Park Sunday afternoon. The hippies were to have held a love-in there but city council refused permission. The crowds enjoyed a pop concert presented by Victoria Symphony Concert Orchestra under its new conductor. Laszlo Gati. No hippies were sighted in the huge audience which responded enthusiastically to a program of favorites by Weber, Mendelssohn, Schubert, Dvorak and Strauss. "It was a wonderful welcome for our new symphony conductor," said a spokesman for Local 247 of the Victoria Musicians' Association. The association co-sponsored the concert through the Music Performance Trust Fund, while the city of Victoria shared in the cost. Fraser McAlpine was master of ceremonies. (William John photo.)

SEARCH FOR CLUES

Arctic Mystery Probed by Army

EDMONTON (CP) — The sole of a boot held together with wooden hobs, and copper sheathing of the type once used on wooden hulls of ships, are the latest if uncertain clues to the fate in 1847-48 of British explorer Sir John Franklin.

A detailed, three-week assault by a Canadian Armed Forces team wrested only these and few other clues from the Canadian Arctic in a centennial attempt to find where Sir John was buried about 1847-48 and where the two ships he commanded in an attempt to navigate the Northwest Passage now lie.

"They're ready to go back," said Capt. Robert Gillan of the 50-man team he commanded when they returned to Edmonton Friday.

Capt. Gillan said the searchers combed miles of Arctic coast along Boothia Peninsula, King William Island and numerous coves and capes. They used the latest Arctic survival equipment and travelled on foot, by helicopter and under water.

TRAIL OF SKELETONS

The areas had been considered the most likely sites where Sir John may have died and his crew of 129 set out on an ill-fated quest for safety after the ships became locked in by Arctic ice.

Well known by a trail of skeletons across the northern wasteland is the tragic result of the Franklin crew's fate.

W. G. McKenzie of London, Ont., whose research prompted the defence department's expedition, said now it was "reasonably certain" the areas searched would yield no further clues to the mysteries.

But in turn, two potential future search areas had risen: Taylor Island where search parties were able to spend only two days instead of two weeks needed to cover the "sea of rocks," and Trap Point where known records show a cairn was built in 1839 and was there in 1930.

CAIRN NOT FOUND

But no one has located the cairn since, although it may still yield information on the Franklin expedition which passed through that area, 1,400 miles north of Winnipeg, some eight years after it was built.

Records in the cairn were sealed by a 300-pound rock, so they could not be easily tampered with through the years, Mr. McKenzie said. And in it may be records left also by the Franklin expedition.

Prof. W. C. Wonders of the University of Alberta's geology department said the army search located what he terms a "mysterious" cairn on Boothia Peninsula. He said it could be a cairn built in 1830 by Sir John Ross to locate what then was the magnetic North Pole.

The cairn was built 17 years before the Franklin expedition, if it is the Ross cairn, but yielded no messages or records.

DIVERS SEARCH

Mr. McKenzie said weather had prevented search parties from returning to the cairn site.

The copper sheathing was located on the shore of O'Reilly Island by a Canadian Army scuba diving team commanded by Lt. John Critchley of the First Field Squadron at Camp Petawawa, Ont.

There was some doubt even among authorities accompanying the army expedition, made up primarily of the First Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, whether the find could be part of a Franklin expedition ship or one of several others lost in the area.

Some Franklin students believe Sir John was buried at sea. Others believe he and his ships' logs lie undiscovered in the Arctic vastness. And now Lt. Critchley believes they lie under the Arctic ice, unreachable this time by his diving team because of shifting ice masses.

Former Bahamas Minister Got $1,800,000 in Fees

By GENE PLOWDEN

NASSAU (AP) — A royal commission investigating gambling in the Bahamas produced figures Saturday purporting to show that $1,800,000 had been paid to Sir Stafford Sands, former minister of tourism and finance, during a five-year period ending last December.

"I doubt those figures," the portly Sands told the five-member commission at the close of three days on the witness stand.

"I didn't think it was that much. I'd have to check my figures."

The commission said the payment was made by the Grand Bahama Development Co., one of five companies owned by Canadian multi-millionaire Wallace Groves.

Sands, still retained by the Groves' companies at a fee of $10,000 a month, earlier described Groves as "one of my closest and best friends."

Under questioning, Sands refused to tell of his bank accounts in the United States, but he did say none of his money is in Switzerland or the Cayman Islands.

FLEW FROM SPAIN

Sands flew here from Spain, where he went into voluntary exile after voters swept his United Bahamas party out of control last January.

Sands denied a statement by commission chairman Sir Ranulph Bacon that he appeared at the hearing "only through counsel." The former legislator and member of the executive council told Bacon he came at "considerable inconvenience," after consulting his doctor.

Sands repeated testimony that an American earlier identified as Meyer Lansky had offered him $2,000,000 for a gambling certificate.

"I didn't take it seriously," Sands said.

Asked about secrecy surrounding the issuance of a casino licence to a Groves company in March, 1963, Sands said there was no reason to publicize it.

Sands, 53, said Groves and his port authority project at Freeport, Grand Bahama, was one of his most important clients and the largest for "two or three years."

"Self-interest is a rather wayward horse, isn't it. Mr. Sands?" asked Joseph Wharton of Trinidad, a commission member.

SERVED 30 YEARS

Sands said he served the people of the Bahamas for 30 years and that "at least two dozen" persons had called from the United States to say they would like a gambling licence in the islands off Florida.

"I told them so would I," he said.

Asked to identify them, Sands said he didn't remember.

The commission said it would not have a session today because of island elections, but would resume Tuesday. Witnesses expected to be heard then include Geoffrey Johnstone, a former cabinet minister, and R. H. Bobby Symonette, a widely-known yachtsman.

'Man of 100 Faces'

CAPE TOWN (Reuters)—Sir Paul Dukes, 78, well-known lecturer, writer and British spy in Russia during the First World War, died here Saturday. Sir Paul had a colorful career with the British intelligence service during the First World War and was known in Russia as "the man of 100 faces" because of his different disguises.

MOMENT OF HORROR in traditional "running of the bulls" at San Sebastian Sunday came when Manuel Baz was gored by the horns of this animal. The 40-year-old bricklayer, father of six, died soon after. Event is part of the town's fiesta when bulls are released in the arena and the men play with them to prove their bravery. (AP Wirephoto.)

Students Financing Mobile Classrooms

Two of a possible total of at least six mobile classrooms are now being fitted out at Burnaby Vocational School, as a result of British Columbia School Students "Project 100".

Travelling classrooms, equipped with every type of modern aid to education are made possible by donations from schools in all parts of the province.

The project was launched in March of this year, and already more than enough has been collected to equip two vans at a cost of about $15,000 each. The first two will go to Guyana and Tanzania, and others will be sent to India, Pakistan, Zambia and Hong Kong when funds permit.

"There is more than $40,000 on hand now," L. J. Wallace, general chairman of the British Columbia Centennial Committee reports. "A concentrated drive will start with the opening of school, and it is hoped to collect more than $100,000 when the campaign ends Dec. 31, 1967."

The mobile educational resource centres are equipped with the latest audiovisual teaching aids, including projectors for motion pictures, slides and film strips, science kits, books on Canada and British Columbia, and instruction in athletics.

In addition, the British Columbia students will supply a fund for the individual countries to purchase books, films and athletic equipment especially suited to their needs.

"Project 100" plaques will be mounted in each vehicle, as a reminder of British Columbia's interest in the well-being of less favored Commonwealth nations.

It is planned to send the first mobile unit completed on a tour to show as many students as possible how their funds have been invested in education before the vehicle is shipped aboard a bauxite ore carrier from Kitimat.

ISRAEL DOWNS EGYPTIAN JET

BIR GIFGAFA, Sinai Peninsula (AP) — Israeli anti-aircraft gunners shot down a Russian-made Egyptian Sukhoi 7 jet Saturday night in 40 seconds of pin-point firing after it slipped in low past radar spotters.

In another incident that broke the cease-fire between Israel and Egypt, the Israeli army announced that its troops exchanged fire for about an hour with Egyptian forces near Ismailia on the Suez Canal Saturday.

Animal Bylaw Up Again Tonight

Saanich lands and planning committee takes its third swing at the draft animals bylaw tonight at 7:30.

In two previous meetings, lasting seven hours, the committee has covered 23 of the 36 recommendations made by planner Tom Loney after the draft was made public last February.

GRIPPED BY FEAR

Killings, Kidnappings Mount in Sardinia

By JAMES M. LONG

ROME (AP) — Bandit-ridden central Sardinia is gripped by fear following its blackest week of ransom kidnappings and vengeance slayings this year.

In a mounting wave of outlawry since Aug. 19, a wealthy Nuoro businessman and the son of a noted Nuoro oculist have been kidnapped.

A prominent Cagliari racing enthusiast, a head of the Mercedes auto agency for Sardinia, has been shot dead.

Another prominent industrialist staggered home exhausted after paying a whittled-down ransom of 10,000,000 lire (about $16,000).

The crime wave was the defiant response of Sardinian banditry to a massive crack down by 4,000 national police and army troops ordered by the government here to stamp out crime on the island after last year's bloodiest recored in two decades.

ON WAY TO RECORD

Three of the island's most wanted bandits have been killed in gunfights with police. Five others, with rewards of 10,000,000 lire each on their heads, have been captured. But 1967 was well on its way to surpass the 1966 record of 41 slain and 10 major kidnappings.

Last Sunday the family of Aurelio Baghino, 63, who has the Fiat automobile agency for Nuoro, reported to police that four masked men spirited him away from his seaside summer villa.

They demanded $320,000, the highest ransom demand in recent years. Nothing has been heard from Baghino or the kidnappers since.

That same day Nuoro industrialist Giuseppe Catte, bearded and haggard after 11 days a prisoner of kidnappers, hitched a ride home from the bleak hill country. Kidnappers had demanded $80,000 but finally settled for $16,000.

On Tuesday kidnappers abducted Gianni Caocci, young law graduate and son of a noted Nuoro oculist, from his villa at Aritzo.

Their ransom demand has not yet been disclosed.

KILLED BY SHOTGUN

Thursday night Gianni Piccaiu, 36, racing enthusiast who has the Mercedes automobile agency for Sardinia, was killed by a shotgun blast from shrubbery in front of his door as he returned to his home in Cagliari. Police said there was no sign of robbery. They theorized it was a vengeance killing.

The week's abductions brought the number of major ransom kidnappings in Sardinia since February to seven. One of the seven, and two shepherds suspected of informing police, were slain.

Most of the ransoms are paid, at least in bargained-down deals. Most kidnap victims come home unharmed. But police are seldom given any valid clues on which to work.

It is a case of the old saying: The sheep in Sardinia have no ears. Sardinians, to avoid reprisal by outlaws, insist they have heard nothing, seen nothing and know nothing.

FOUR CAMPERS ASPHYXIATED

MANIWAKI, Que. (CP) — Four Montreal firemen on a camping trip in La Verendrye provincial park 150 miles north of here were found dead in their tent Saturday by the father of one of the men.

The dead: Pierre Dessurault, 30, Jean Lambert, 26, Andre Charbonneau 30, and Roger Ranger, 45.

The men were found in their tent on Kabonga River. Provincial Police said a charcoal-burning stove was set up inside the tent, and the men apparently died of asphyxiation.

Eastern Star Past Patron Dies at 54

F. Griffith Jones, MBE, a native resident of Victoria, died suddenly at his summer home at Sooke Sunday afternoon. He was 54.

An employee of the B.C. government, Mr. Jones joined the Royal Canadian Navy Volunteer Reserve in 1941 and was posted to St. John's, Nfld. He was attached to the ships pay office until his honorable discharge from the RCN in 1945.

He was a member of Mount Shepherd Lodge, AF and AM, Sooke, a past patron of the Victoria Chapter No. 17 Order of the Eastern Star and a patron of the Juan de Fuca Chapter at Sooke.

Mr. Jones is survived by the widow, Edith at home; one son, Robert Thomas, Victoria; father, Robert E. Jones, Victoria; a sister, Mrs. W. (Mary) Edwards, Ocean Falls; three brothers, Gordon and Robert, Victoria, and Elvet, Bellingham, Washington.

Funeral services will be held under auspices of the Order of the Eastern Star in the Thomson and Irving funeral chapel, Victoria, Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

Interment will follow in Royal Oak Burial Park.

More Money Would Reduce 'Brain Drain'

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) The first international conference on the "brain drain" bluntly told Western Europe Sunday to stop moaning about the loss of professional men to North America and start moving with the times. It also concluded that Europe must unite "not only for effective competition with the United States, but also to help solve the problems of underdevelopment in poorer countries."

After a two-day closed meeting, experts from 10 nations largely blamed the advanced countries for the brain drain of talent from the developing countries.

"They should increase the flow of development assistance beyond the trickle which it is now," the communique said. "And they should expand the opportunities of the less-developed countries to participate in world economic growth through international trade."

But it also reminded the developing countries that economic development "is not just a matter of producing needed skills but of producing the opportunities to use their skills."

PROGRAM PROPOSED

The experts recommended an agenda for action to stop the brain drain:

1. Raise salaries, especially in Western European countries which can afford to do so, for scarce talents and skills.

2. Revise internal salary structures to avoid the loss of professionals.

3. Increase professional opportunity at home especially for young scientists, engineers and doctors.

4. Increase the receptivity to change, a willingness to experiment, innovate, and share power with a newly emerging elite.

5. Reconstruct investment in education to produce the kinds of skills required and the right quantity of each. Underdeveloped countries should reduce the amount of foreign training and not "overeducate" students without regard to the nation's development needs.

6. Promote economic and political integration not only in Western Europe but in Africa and elsewhere.

7. Eliminate discrimination and bigotry because of caste, tribe, religion, national origin, political beliefs, etc.

8. Remove monopolistic restrictions "like those of the American Medical Association" in countires which serve as a magnet for foreign manpower.

The conference was under the joint sponsorship of the European Research Centre and the United States Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, a private group of citizens appointed by the U.S. president.

Countries represented were Argentina, Ethiopia, France, Great Britain, Greece, India, Israel, Sweden, Switzerland and the United States.

Indian Act Ruled 'Discriminatory'

EDMONTON (CP)—A Northwest Territories appeal court decision handed down here at the weekend holds that a section of the Indian Act is discriminatory and conflicts with the Canadian Bill of Rights.

The decision by the Northwest Territories court of appeal upheld an earlier decision by Mr. Justice William Morrow of the N.W.T. territorial court, and had been forecast as a precedent decision with wide implications.

The case rose after Joseph Drybones, 40, an Indian trapper, was fined $10 in Yellowknife last April on a charge of being intoxicated on a reserve.

He had been charged under section 94b of the Indian Act.

Mr. Justice Morrow reversed the conviction. His decision was upheld by the appeal court's ruling Friday.

Brian Purdy of Yellowknife, defence counsel for Mr. Drybones, said the case now should be taken to the Supreme Court of Canada and tested fully.

The NWT appeal court decision would apply to Indians anywhere in Canada only if the Supreme Court upheld the decision Friday.

Now it applies only to the Yukon and N.W.T.

Hippie Film Cancelled In Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says production of a National Film Board documentary on youth has been cancelled as a result of publication by the newspaper of a report that NFB film crews helped manoeuvre some of the disorders in the Yorkville coffee house district earlier this week.

The newspaper quotes Julien Biggs, director of production for the NFB, as saying the camera crews have been recalled to Montreal. Mr. Biggs denied the Globe and Mail's report that the crews had anything to do with organizing hippie demonstrations in Yorkville or the Queen's Park legislature grounds.

YOUR HEALTH

Complete Physical Check-Up

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Alvares

Many people each year write me asking what examinations and tests should be made during a yearly check-up. Quite a few people say, "When I asked my terribly busy doctor for a check-up, he was a bit annoyed because his reception-room was full of waiting people, and he could give me only 10 minutes. He took my blood pressure; he listened to my heart, and he examined my urine. That surely was not a complete examination."

No, that certainly was not complete. But I can understand the doctor's dilemma, and I sympathize with him. For years I have been much too busy to make complete annual check-ups. During my quarter-century at the Mayo Clinic, I used to make these check-ups, but I had assistants, and my assistants and I gave a half-hour or more to each patient, usually on at least three successive days.

* * *

One big objection to making a really adequate examination, with all the X-ray and laboratory studies needed, is that it costs much money. In some clinics the charge now runs between $150 and $175, and that is more than the average man and his wife can comfortably afford. As a result, the X-ray studies of the stomach and bowel may have to be skipped. But that is bad if, in elderly people, death from cancer of the digestive tract is to be avoided, the X-ray studies must be made. Some physicians try to solve this problem by having the person go for five days without touching meat, and then having a sample of stool tested for blood. This can be done quickly and cheaply. If there is no blood, there probably is no cancer anywhere in the digestive tube.

* * *

To show how difficult the problem is, in some big clinics the management used to refuse to give a general overhauling to the top executives who would fly in in the morning and then want to fly out that night. The clinic physicians could not afford to stop and spend most of their day with one patient. Because of this difficulty, one man, Dr. Charles Thompson, at 720 N. Michigan Avenue in Chicago, outfitted a small clinic in which a number of people can be given a good general overhauling in a single day.

The person may come at 8 a.m., fasting—and some blood for tests will be withdrawn from a vein; the person will pass some urine for examination; and then his stomach will be examined with X-rays.

The rectum and sigmoid bowel (S-shaped portion of the bowel just above the rectum) will be examined with a long lighted tube. This is an essential part of a general examination. If it could be made for every person, every year, it would save a few thousand persons the loss of their rectum because of cancer. One of the commonest sites of cancer is in the rectum.

* * *

The patient will have a physical examination, which should include a look into the backgrounds of the eyes to see if the walls of the tiny arteries are much thickened; the mouth and the throat should be looked into for signs of cancer; the blood pressure will be taken.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Duff McCartin, age 8, of Costa Mesa, California, for his question:

A water tower may look like a big round ball, perched high on top of a sturdy pillar. Or it may look like a round-sided tank propped high above the ground on a set of spindly legs. In any case, it is made to store water. But the water cannot climb up the tall tower all by itself.

You can see a water tower from afar and as you get closer it seems to stand there all alone. But it is not alone. It is connected to a water district. And a water district is a very complicated system that spreads for miles and miles through the county and then maybe through the state. Your water district brings in the water piped into your home and still more water for all the plants and factories, the hotels and motels, stores and restaurants near and far. It may be connected to the water districts of other states. It has a network of pipes and conduits, hidden underground and in the walls of buildings. Above the ground, it has dams, reservoirs and water towers.

All these parts of the water district are connected. And streams of water must be kept flowing through the whole system. When left to do as it pleases, water flows downhill. It cannot flow up a hill or climb over a mountain by itself. It needs a helping push. So the water district has pumps to push the water where we want it to go. Sometimes a city's water must be brought from a lake or a river on the other side of a hill. The water district has built-in pumps all along the way to help it up and over the hump.

Clever engineers plan the water district to supply all the water we need day and night. Of course we use much more water during the daytime. The water is kept flowing steadily through the pipes and conduits. But sometimes we need extra supplies. So the water district has places to store them. It may have outdoor reservoirs to hold the streaming water from showers and rainy seasons. A strong dam holds the water in a man-made reservoir lake. When the season is dry, valves are turned to spill the stored water through the dam. Pumps in the water district push it on its way up hill or down dale through the network of pipes and conduits.

Water Filtered

Sometimes a water district needs to store a smaller supply of extra water. A huge lake reservoir is not needed for such a small job. So instead, they build a water tower. It may be shaped like a ball or a round tank. It may hold enough water to fill half a million or as many as 16 million milk bottles. It must be propped up high so that the water will flow down into the pipes by itself, whenever we need it. But strong pumps are needed to push the water up to be stored in the tower. No water could climb up there by itself and every water tower has at least one sturdy pump to keep it filled.

Every person uses a few quarts of water for drinking and cooking and several gallons for cleaning and bathing. This household water must be filtered and purified by the water district. But a factory may use 20 quarts of water to make a pound of steel, or 23 quarts to make a pound of man-made rubber. This factory water need not be purified like water for the home. Some water towers store filtered and purified water. They are connected to pipes that lead to our homes. Other water towers store less purified water. Their pipes lead down to factories and industrial plants.

* * *

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Denise Schwartz, age 10, of New Springfield, Ohio, for her question:

Do other continents have rattlesnakes?

The rattle snake and his assortment of deadly cousins are natives of the New World. They range from the southern provinces of Canada, through the continental U.S., Mexico and Central America and way down into South America as far as Uruguay. Most of them lurk in the warm western desert regions of the Americas. But we may find at least one type of rattlesnake in almost any state. Sensible people learn how to recognize them and also which types are lurking in their home states. When you plan a vacation trip, it is wise to discover what types of rattler you may meet in the territory. There are about 28 different types and all of these native American snakes are equipped with deadly poisonous fangs.

'TURNING LIGHTS' AIM AROUND CORNER

The headlights are located side by side behind transparent plastic in the redesigned fenders of the automaker's ID-19, DS-19 and DS-21 series cars. When the steering wheel is turned, the lamps turn sharply in the same direction, throwing beams on the roadway the car is approaching.

On a sharp turn the outside light revolves less sharply than the inside light, giving the driver a wider view. The cars also have conventional straight ahead lights.

HOME GARDEN

Quality of Lawn Depends on Seed

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

A reminder to home gardeners intending to sow a new lawn over Labor Day weekend that the necessary seed and fertilizer should be obtained right away.

The kind of fertilizer and quantity will depend on your soil — the type, fertility, and amount of humus it contains.

There are many genera of grasses used for lawns, and each genus has species suited to specific lawn uses and climatic conditions.

If you have not studied books from the public library on lawns and lawn grasses, and obtained pamphlets from producers and dealers, you will have to depend on the advice of your supplier in selecting the correct grass, or mixture of grasses, for the lawn you wish to create.

There are grasses which grow in full sun but die in shade, and those which grow in shade but burn up in sun. Be sure you know which one is needed on your particular property.

Quantity of seed depends on the kind being used, and generally ranges from one to two ounces of seed to the square yard (nine square feet), which is equal to seven to 14 pounds to one thousand square feet.

Excellent results have been obtained when seed has been spread evenly on a well prepared seed bed and then covered with one-half inch of agricultural sawdust.

This covering permits heavy watering without washing the seed out of place, walking on the seed bed to move and place sprinklers, and it forms a mulch to protect the young roots for this winter and next summer, finally breaking down and adding much needed humus to the surface soil.

Mapai Party Re-Unites Splinters

TEL AVIV (AP) — The 300-member central committee of Mapai, Israel's ruling party, approved Sunday night a three-party merger to create a united labor party that would control 55 seats in Israel's 120-seat parliament.

The merger would unite Mapai, the left-wing Ahdut Ha'avoda party and the moderately socialist Rafi party of former premier Ben-Gurion and Defence Minister Moshe Dayan.

It would strengthen the hand of the hawks in Israel's government and push to the fore two young leading contenders for the post of premier when it is relinquished by Levi Eshkol. They are Dayan of Rafi and Yigal Allon of Ahdut Ha'avoda.

Mapai, which has headed every Israeli government since the state was established, would be greatly strengthened by the merger. Both of the other parties are offshoots of Mapai.

The p;roposed merger will come up for approval within a month by the full conventions of the separate parties.

Wilson Shakes Cabinet

Takes Control Over Economy

(Times News Services)

LONDON—Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced a major reshuffle of his government today and named himself Britain's economic boss to lead the fight against mounting unemployment.

Government sources said Wilson was taking personal charge of economic affairs in the same way that a wartime prime minister would control the national effort by also making himself defence minister.

The administration, they said, has bolstered the pound and ensured future surpluses in the balance of payments, and now the main aim would be to boost industrial production.

Wilson took control of the economic affairs department previously run by former foreign secretary Michael Stewart.

Among them were Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden, 62, and Douglas Jay, president of the board of trade, 60.

Economic Affairs Secretary Michael Stewart, 61, was dropped from the job but was kept in the cabinet with the title of first secretary.

Others whose "resignations" were announced were Minister of Overseas Development Arthur Bottomley, 60; Fred Willey, 57, minister of state for housing and local government, and Lord Walston, 55, parliamentary secretary to the board of trade.

WON'T TAKE TITLE

Wilson will not take the title of economic affairs secretary, it was announced, although he assumed over-all responsibility for running the country's economic policies. Stewart was succeeded in that job by Peter Shore, 43, formerly undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

Bowden himself was given a peerage and named head of Britain's independent television authority.

Thomson's job has been taken over by Goronwy Roberts, 53, who now is likely to look after disarmament policy.

DIDN'T MAKE CHANGE

Wilson made no changes directly involving new posts for James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer; Defence Secretary Denis Healey or Home

The attack came between the southern boundary of the zone between North and South Korea and the UN command base camp, about 550 yards south of the boundary line.

War Protest Rally Set

NEW YORK (AP)—A coalition of anti-Vietnam war groups announced Monday it plans a massive demonstration in Washington on Oct. 21 in an attempt to shut down the Pentagon, headquarters of the U.S. defence department. A statement issued by the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam said demonstrations will try to fill the hallways and block the entrances of the Pentagon.

The barrages against two U.S. bases in the northern part of South Vietnam followed a series of 12 mortar shellings up and down the country Sunday which killed or wounded more than 300 persons, most of them civilians.

U.S. officials considered the attacks another Viet Cong effort to scare the South Vietnamese from voting in the presidential election next Sunday. It had been months since the Viet Cong made a co-ordinated effort like they did Sunday.

In the air war against North Vietnam, the U.S. command announced that last week matched the worst previous week for plane losses, with 15 down over the North. Two planes—an air force F-4 Phantom and an F-100 Supersabre—went down Saturday and only one of the four men aboard was rescued. A total of 22 flyers was reported missing during the week.

POLICEMEN KILLED

A delayed report from the command said U.S. B-52 bombers killed 11 South Vietnamese policemen last Monday in the southern half of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam. The command said the target area had been approved in advance by the South Vietnamese province chief and that all bombs hit in the approved area.

GREEK KING DENOUNCED IN TORONTO

TORONTO (CP)—Several thousand Greek-Canadians demonstrated Sunday against visiting King Constantine, carrying placards denouncing him for support of what they called Greece's "fascist" military government.

The protest started late Sunday afternoon when an estimated 3,000 of Toronto's 40,000-member Greek community gathered in downtown Queen's Park to hear a series of speakers accuse King Constantine of accepting and supporting the military junta which this April ousted civilian government in Greece.

"We know the king tried to resist the generals, but he is still ignorant and guilty," said Angelo Giannakopoulis, secretary of the newly-formed Committee for the Restoration of Democracy in Greece.

"He should have abdicated. If he had, the generals would not have been accepted by the people or the world."

Several counter - demonstrators shouting "Long live the king" were hustled from the park.

The crowd then moved to the nearby Park Plaza Hotel where the king is staying during his Toronto visit. A Toronto policeman refused them admittance to present their petition, telling them to deliver it "through proper channels" at the Greek consulate.

The petition called on the king to withdraw all support for the "fascist junta," restore the civilian constitution and release political prisoners.

Plane 10 Miles Off Course

HURON, Ohio (AP)—A steady rain dampened rescue hopes for 14 missing sky divers today, 18 hours after they leaped through an overcast sky and missed their target by 10 miles, landing in choppy Lake Erie. There were two survivors.

At noon about 200 coast guardsmen, police and volunteers in 21 boats had found only a few pieces of the sky divers' gear. Nine underwater divers and two helicopters pressed the search at dawn.

"The chances of the divers coming out alive is slim," said coast guard Lieut. Paul Potter on the scene.

"It's so iffy it's hard to give any kind of real indication on how long a man might survive," another coast guard spokesman in Cleveland said. "It could be several days, if he did everything right and got the breaks."

The rains, choppy waters and decreased visibility caused increasing difficulty shortly before dawn as an armada of navy, coast guard, air force, army and private citizens ended an all-night search.

LAKE SWEPT

Searchers had swept 150 square miles of Lake Erie for the 14—among 18 sky divers who were buffeted off their target by 58 mile-an-hour winds at 20,000 feet when they jumped from a B-25 aircraft Sunday.

Two bodies, including that of a woman who celebrated her wedding by sky diving, were recovered.

The bodies, recovered within half an hour of the jump, were being kept in a temporary morgue. Officials, meanwhile, tried to identify the owners of seven gloves, three chutes and four reserve chutes, the only items recovered from the lake.

Two other sky divers escaped by staying on the plane for a second pass at higher altitude.

Helicopters, planes and an armada of coast guard and military and private boats that included the ocean-going tug Kaw combed a 100-square mile area of the lake.

DIVERS SEARCH

Coast Guard Lieut. Paul Potter, who saw the multi-colored chutes descend through overcast skies into the lake Sunday at 4:30 p.m., said chances that the 14 missing jumpers survived the night in the 72-degree water were "slim."

Exactly how the 18 Ohio parachute enthusiasts, most of whom had more than 100 jumps to their credit, missed their target by 10 miles was unknown.

"As far as I know, I was right where I was supposed to be," the pilot, Robert Karns, told Ohio Highway Patrolman John Shimp.

Shimp quoted Karns as saying he was flying by a radar fix furnished him by the Federal

SURVIVOR TELLS WHAT HAPPENED:

'Certainly Got Surprise As I Came Out of Cloud'

Editor's Note: Robert Coy, 29, of Springfield, Ohio, is one of two known survivors of a skydiving disaster in which two persons drowned and 14 others were missing and feared dead. The following is his personal report on the tragedy.)

By ROBERT COY
As Told to United Press International

HURON, Ohio (UPI) — There was a pretty thick cloud layer . . . about 4,000 feet at the bottom and 6,000 at the top.

We jumped from 20,000 feet. Radar was to guide us over our exit point which was the airfield.

We planned to free fall to 2,500 feet and land on the airport or wherever we were.

We certainly got a surprise about where we were.

As I came out of the cloud layer over Lake Erie, I could see the shore. I opened my chute to drift as close as possible to shore.

●

After I hit the water I held on to my reserve parachute, which will float. I used a standard water procedure, unhooking everything but the saddle (reserve chute) and survival kit.

The reserve was hanging from one strap on my left side when I hit. The cover was off the harness release and all I had to do was jiggle it.

I floated on that until it became waterlogged, then I took off my helmet and filled it with air. I floated on the helmet.

●

The water was very rough. I couldn't see anyone else. All I could hear was the roar of the waves. They were going over my head and swishing down my throat.

My plan was to stay afloat as long as possible in the hope somebody would pick me up and that's what happened.

A private boat picked me up three miles from shore. I was afraid he didn't see me but he did. Then he went on out and picked up Bob Johnson about five miles out.

Later we found a canopy (parachute) but there was no one attached to it.

I was in the water only about 10 or 15 minutes but it seemed like three hours.

My rescuers—God bless them.

Top Tories Cry Delegate 'Fix'

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA (CP)—Charges of rigging the Conservative party leadership convention flew today with the resignation of a national officer of the party and a formal complaint about delegate accreditation backed by some leadership candidates.

Miss Laura G. Mann, an Ontario director of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, quit the four-member committee selecting Ontario's 90 delegates at large for the convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9.

She accused convention co-chairman E. A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer, of undemocratically packing the list of selections without the committee's formal approval.

Meanwhile, Dr. James Johnston, national director of the party, sent a formal letter of protest, backed by at least three leadership candidates, against the addition as voting delegates of 84 persons who participated in the Montmorency Falls, Que., policy advisory conference earlier this month.

His protest was said here to be supported by candidates Alvin Hamilton, Davie Fulton and Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

EXCEEDED NUMBER

Dr. Johnston said in a letter to Gene Rheaume, convention secretary, that the 84 far exceed the number agreed upon by the convention committee at a meeting in Victoria earlier in the year.

He said the maximum should be 30.

Furthermore, he said, 51 of the 84 were from one province—Ontario—and a "large number" were known supporters of one of the nine leadership candidates.

Neither Miss Mann in her letter to Mr. Goodman nor Dr. Johnston in his to Mr. Rheaume identified the candidate in whose favor voting delegates were being appointed.

Terrorists Put Six Men On Hong Kong Death List

HONG KONG (AP)—Chinese terrorists today published a death list of six prominent anti-Communist Chinese the Communists said would be executed like radio comedian Lam Bun.

The list included Paul Tsiu, secretary for Chinese affairs in the Hong Kong government, two legislative councillors, two newspaper executives and the chairman of a village elders' association. It was published in the terrorists' underground newspaper.

The 37-year-old comedian and his brother were turned into human torches last Thursday when terrorists bombed their car, doused them with kerosene, and then set them afire. Lam Bun died 30 hours later. His brother, 27, is near death.

Hong Kong police said a British army demolition expert was blown 200 feet down a cliff by a hidden bomb today, bringing the number of terrorist deaths in eight days to five. Earlier today, a 39-year-old Chinese man died of injuries received in a bomb trap intended for police and army demolition squads.

Police said they would give protection to anyone who was threatened or who had reason to believe his life was in danger from terrorists.

Otherwise, Hong Kong enjoyed a peaceful weekend. Only one bomb was found and the situation at the border with China returned to normal.

The border crossing at Man Kman To reopened after two weeks and food trucks resumed normal travel from China. Food prices, up during the period when the border was closed, started to return to normal.

Rail traffic bringing food from the mainland still was disrupted because of the turbulent situation in the adjoining province of Kwangtung.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Grain prices generally showed an easier tone on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, influenced by losses in most Chicago commodities.

Flax prices were firm in early trade, however, following a Manitoba Wheat Pool report which indicated sharp reductions in flax production compared to last year. This decrease was due to the small acreage sown and unfavorable weather conditions in Saskatchewan.

Oats and barley trade was mostly domestic. Rye showed losses in response to declines in Chicago wheat and rye.

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures fell more than three cents on the board of trade today, setting lows in all contracts.

The nearby September soybean contract declined 3½ cents while new crop beans lost about 1¼ cents. Rye futures dipped about 1½ cents while oats and corn slipped around a half cent.

The losses were set around mid-session, and before the close prices picked up some strength.

Violence Halts In Strike

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Workers continued picketing the Emco Ltd. plant here today but there was no recurrence of violence that hit the picket lines last week when several strikers were injured and five arrested.

R. W. Read, the company's personnel manager, said the peaceful picketing must continue for "a couple of days" or more before the company will consider meeting with the union for further contract talks.

No attempt was made to block entrance of cars to the company's parking lot.

Buses supplied by Skinner Bus Lines Ltd. stopped transporting non-union workers to the plant after several vehicles were damaged and the Skinner depot itself was picketed.

Two former school buses were used today to pick up workers and ferry them to the plant. A third bus had engine trouble and company officials used their own cars to transport the remaining workers in.

About 100 non-union employees, mostly youths, were on the job today.

Local 2699 of the United Steelworkers of America has been on strike at Emco since May 18. Last Tuesday the members rejected what the company termed its final offer.

Mass demonstrations, including struggles with police and arrests, followed the Tuesday meeting.

Rhodesia Hides Export System

LONDON (Reuters) — The Sunday Times reports Rhodesia is fighting economic sanctions by disguising its exports as goods from South Africa, Mozambique and Malawi.

An article in the newspaper claims to describe "the complex and frequently dishonest trail of the clandestine cargoes."

The economic sanctions against Rhodesia were endorsed by the United Nations after the colony declared its independence from Britain in November, 1965, after failing to come to any agreement on allowing its big Negro majority an effective voice in government.

Oil is reaching Rhodesia from a big international company with large interests in Britain via one of its related companies in South Africa, the article says.

"Rhodesia needs to sell six commodities: Tobacco, sugar, asbestos, copper, chrome and iron," it says.

TROUBLE WITH SUGAR

"Only sugar has looked anything like hopeless; investigations in Rhodesia and calculations from world markets indicate that Rhodesia is selling all the asbestos and copper she sold before, around one-third of the chrome, almost half the iron ore and one-third of the tobacco."

The article says chrome ore is being sold to Japan in the guise of a South African product.

A Rhodesian firm that wants to order goods denied by the sanctions simply orders them from an agent in Mozambique who obtains them from abroad and charges a commission, it said.

Goods are exported via Mozambique with false papers describing them as of Malawi or Mozambique origin, the article continues and Rhodesian copper goes through Lorenco Marques to Belgium and West Germany.

Benefactor Aids Canada Centre

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — An anonymous benefactor from Western Canada has guaranteed a $100,000 bank loan for the Charlottetown Confederation Centre, which after three years of operation is still in the red.

Another benefactor, Charlottetown businessman Robert Cotton, has established a $100,000 trust fund to help the centre —a combination theatre, art gallery and library built in 1964 as a memorial to the Fathers of Confederation, who held their first meeting here 100 years ago.

In its annual report for the financial year ended March 31, the Fathers of Confederation Buildings Trust, which administers the centre, says the bank guarantee leaves the centre with a net deficit of just over $40,000.

The report says the centre was almost $37,000 in the red March 31 and had an accumulated gross deficit of $140,000 for the three years of operation. This has been partly offset by the bank loan.

It estimates operating and maintenance costs for the year 1967-68 at $407,000. This will be met by grants of $175,000 each from the federal and Prince Edward Island governments and anticipated revenues of $57,000.

Ottawa Pays $1 Million For Jetstar

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal government has quietly acquired a second "Jetstar" at a cost in excess of $1,000,000.

The transport department has added the new aircraft to its fleet for moving members of the government and key officials back and forth across the country.

The actual purchase was made early this year but was not widely publicized at the time.

The department already had one "Jetstar". It was purchased by the former Conservative administration. It was the fastest and most popular aircraft in the department's fleet. The decision was taken to purchase a second.

The newest Jetstar has a seating capacity for eight while the older one only carries six.

The information division of the transport department said it issued a press release when the first Jetstar was bought. But no press release was issued when the second Jetstar was acquired last February. Officials of the department denied there had been any attempt to "hide" the purchase but they acknowledged it received no wide publicity. However they believed it was mentioned in parliament at the time.

GARDEN CITY TRAIL RIDE . . . . . . FOLLOWED PATH OF FOREFATHERS

By LLOYD BAKER
Times City Editor

The dangers and difficulties are fading into the background . . . the pleasures are shinnig through.

The B.C. Centennial Trail Ride from Pemberton to Williams Lake over the past two weeks was one of the most daring undertakings on the long list of Canada's birthday events.

And to people who know the country, it was an outstanding accomplishment.

But at times — and there were many of them — the riders had long thoughts about its success.

Thirty-one of us started and 30 reached Williams Lake although several did not ride the whole of the route. There were side trips which some passed up, joining us later after a day of doctoring themselves and their horses.

It was strenuous from start to finish.

The event, sponsored by the Garden City Horsemen's Club of Victoria with official blessings of the B.C. Centennial Committee, included a wide range of riding types. All but one had fairly long experience in the saddle, although some were more accustomed to riding in show rings than on wilderness trails.

There was a wide range, also, in the types of horses. Only four were rent horses (from Paradise Valley Ranch near Squamish). Most were cold-bloods, some with finer qualities than others, and there were a few registered animals including Thoroughbreds, Anglo-Arabs, Half-Arabs and a Tennessee Walker.

Most were well-conditioned at the start; others worked into condition the hard way — as the ride progressed.

And when we reached Williams Lake after 12 days of riding, with one day layover for everyone on the 10th day at Big Creek in the Chilcotin, the animals looked tired but fit, although there wasn't one that did not carry some kind of a scar, cut, nick or gall from the grind.

It was originally thought that the ride would cover about 260 miles as it wound its way through mountains of the Coast Range up through the Bralorne district and into the hilly range lands of the Chilcotin. But it turned out to be more like 360 to 400 miles as we encountered more ups and downs than expected.

●

At the start we didn't think it was going to be a merry-go-round, but at the same time we didn't think we'd be riding up to 35 miles as we did one day and in the saddle for as long as 11 hours at a stretch, which is tough going even for the hardiest of ranch hands in the type of country we covered.

It was a real experience . . .

. . . And it was beautiful.

Scenery was unimaginable, particularly in the alpine regions. Mountain peaks seemed to doff their snowy caps to the blue skies above and the flowered meadows below where we would stop to rest and graze our horses.

There were two such days of riding — over McGillivray Pass from Cassiar to Pioneer, and further north from Pearson's Pond to Spruce Lake, a side trip.

In other areas the route took us over dirt roads and trails where the dust from many steel-shot feet couldn't hide the artistry of nature's landscaping of the land of pines, spruce and poplar. Carpeting of grass and shrubs under the trees was toning down in the heat of summer, complimenting the darker shades of the foliage above.

Glimmering lakes and sparkling streams greeted us continually through the ride and, because many of them asked to be left alone with warnings of encircling bog, we drank in their beauty from a distance.

Bog became the bugaboo of the ride after the third day. In the McGillivray Pass area about half of the party blundered into a bottomless alpine swamp which almost brought disaster. We were following a now disused telephone line and the trail deteriorated into a rotting narrow corduroy road.

Horses soon were floundering up to their shoulders in the muck. It took two hours of plunging struggle to reach firm footing and find night camp at Piebiter Creek at dark.

Calamity reached out also earlier that day when three horses at different points on a narrow, side-hill trail lost their footing and went over the edge.

Two were able to scramble back up the bank without too much difficulty. The other, being led by its rider who found the trail too treacherous to ride, tumbled end over end about 45 feet into a rocky, log-strewn rushing stream, and the situation appeared impossible for a time.

There it stood in the stream, shivering from shock and bleeding from gashes and scratches. And on all sides there were steep banks criss-crossed with windfalls.

Are we going to have to shoot him?

The question was not asked aloud but it passed through the minds of those of us surveying the situation.

We managed to work the animal a short distance up stream and, with ropes and shouts and cursing dispair finally got him to a spot on the bank where there was a little footing and he was able to scramble and rest and scramble again back to the trail.

It was a sickening experience, but miraculously the game little horse was able to move on after some patching up and continued through to the end of the ride.

There were several other incidents, although not as hopeless as this, where horses took bad tumbles and riders were sent flying.

There were two other accidents to riders which called for medical attention, but not involving horses.

It was at the stopover at Big Creek where local ranchers staged a rodeo for our benefit. Some of the trail riders joined the cowboys in steer-riding. One received a compound fracture of the arm and another severe shock and bruises when dragged.

Ranchers' airplanes flew one to Cache Creek and the other to Williams Lake for treatment.

Overshadowing the troubles was the kindness of people in some of these remote areas we reached.

●

When we had water problems, ranchers at one spot trucked in 45 gallon drums from their wells. The Gang Ranch supplied a cowboy guide in another area; rancher Bruce Watt of Big Creek gave ailing horses shots of antibiotics and also provided a guide; Bralorne Mine officials won the hearts of all by supplying hot showers and a fine sit-down luncheon on our fourth day out; when we needed a replacement for a sore horse, Don Gillis of Empire Valley Cattle Co. supplied one gladly.

None would accept payment, not even for vet supplies.

The biggest hand of help was extended by little Jim Flichel of Gold Bridge, a packer and guide who supplied without charge a string of 15 packhorses and one mule (good old Sam) to carry bedrolls and food into areas where our cook and feed trucks couldn't reach us. His "Centennial contribution" extended over four days.

Also riding mighty high in the saddle were the Williams Lake Trail Riders headed by Marvin Westwick who met us on our last day and rode us into town, supplied stalls for horses, supper and many other kindnesses.

●

Prior to a wind-up dinner and dance arranged by the Garden City club at the Chilcotin Inn, the Centennial riders were visited by Lawrie Wallace, general chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee.

He flew to Williams Lake from Victoria to present each with a specially made-up engraved Western belt buckle, bearing the official Centennial medallion, as a memento of "the Big Trek of '67."

The buckles provided a fastening for a bond that had grown around the riders in what had been an ordeal of endurance at times.

They also were presented to the four members of the cook crew, Nita Walt, Ved Donaldson, Brian Martin and Casey Walt, all of Victoria, who accomplished the impossible.

Good food and lots of it kept spirits high as the party coped with conditions not too far distant from those of our forefathers who got this whole thing going 100 years ago.

'FISH WEREN'T WORTH IT!'

'Copter Drops Gas To Drifting Boat

A night adrift on the Juan de Fuca Strait tends to cool one's ardor for salmon fishing.

So says Ted McMasters, 26, of 243 Sims, who with two other men and a boy has just returned from 20 hours of riding the swells.

It all began about noon Sunday when McMasters, George Cliff and his son Bill of Richmond Avenue joined Keith Averill, 23 of 4175 Interurban for some fishing.

A pea-soup fog lying about two miles offshore proved their undoing. They got turned around in it and ran low on gas trying to find their way out.

With fuel almost gone, they shut off the engine and drifted.

The lights of Victoria came into view about 1 a.m. this morning but there was not enough gas to take them the five or so miles to land.

The four occupants huddled in the boat while it drifted across the strait to within about four miles of Port Angeles.

'PRETTY COLD'

"It was pretty cold up to about 2 a.m.," said Ted, "then the wind went down. The swells were about five feet."

An American freighter sighted them about 5 a.m. and radioed for help. A helicopter from Port Angeles dropped gas to them and they arrived back at Sooke about 8:30 a.m.

Not empty-handed.

"We had two Coho and a halibut," said Ted. "But it still wasn't worth it. Safer to buy them at a store."

Securities Audit Staff Increased

The B.C. Securities Commission is being given more muscle to boost its surveillance of stock promoters.

An order-in-council released today, authorized hiring of three more audit accountants to help the single accountant on staff now.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said the increase was authorized "in anticipation of a wider range of responsibilities under the new Securities Act passed at the last session."

He said the new act likely will be proclaimed next month. Requiring considerably more financial disclosure by companies to their shareholders, more stringent requirements for promoters and regulations governing "insider trading."

'NOT MUCH DELAY'

Date of proclamation now is "a question of getting this additional staff lined up but I don't expect there will be too much delay," Mr. Bonner said.

The cabinet order authorized the commission to draw from contingency funds to provide the salaries for the three new accountants because the money was not provided in the 1967 budget.

The commission already has filled new posts for a third inspector and clerical assistants that were provided in this year's salary votes at the time the new securities bill was introduced.

Grocery Theft Puts an End To Island Cruise

A seagoing shoplifter from Seattle was bound over for two months on a $250 bond and ordered to ruturn to the U.S. after she had pleaded guilty in central court to stealing groceries.

She said she and a male companion are cruising Island waters and although they were not starving, they had only $16 between them and a little food, mostly rice and flour.

She said she went into town just to look around. She did not intend to steal, nor did her companion send her into town for that purpose, she said.

"I thought it would be easy," she told the court. The couple planned to cruise for another week on their sailboat, visiting friends on the Gulf Islands before returning to Washington via the San Juan Islands.

Mentally Unfit For Trial

Cabbie Committed To Riverview

A man facing two charges of attempted murder in shooting incidents last May has been committed to Riverview Mental Hospital.

A cabinet order released today sends Frank Bedry, 40, also known as Frank Layton, to the mental hospital indefinitely.

WOMAN WOUNDED

Officers had surrounded his house after an Esquimalt woman was shot and wounded earlier the same night.

Constable Holshal was hospitalized for weeks and underwent emergency surgery for removal of the bullet from his abdomen.

Mrs. Molly Robertson was shot in the leg and body as she entered her home at 911 McNaughton a few hours before the policeman was shot as he entered Bedry's house.

Bedry was awaiting trial by judge and jury after being committed to trial following a preliminary hearing in June.

ARMED LIKE THIS the female of the species would be more deadly than the male. Five People Injured In Two-Car Accident

Five people were taken to hospital shortly after 6 p.m. Sunday following a two-car crash at the Trans-Canada Highway and Tillicum.

Only one person was injured seriously enough to be admitted to Royal Jubilee Hospital. The others were treated and released.

Mrs. Marie Logie, 38, of 3636 Cedar Hill Road is reported in "fairly good" condition today. She suffered cuts and face injuries in the accident which caused an estimated $2,000 damage.

Mrs. Logie was a passenger in a car driven by her husband Robert, 38, which was southbound on the highway when it was in collision with a car turning on to Tillicum and driven by William Thomas, 17, of 88 Sims Avenue.

Mr. Logie suffered cuts and his son, Robert Jr., 15, received mouth injuries.

Thomas was treated for an injured arm and head cuts. His passenger, Curtis Purdy, 32, of 89 Sims, was knocked unconscious.

GOOD CONDITION

John McEwen, 18, of 49 Linden Ave. is in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital after his motorcycle was in collision with a car at Cook and Sutlej Saturday evening.

McEwen suffered leg injuries in the accident.

Order Issued For Nanaimo Regional Board

Nanaimo Regional District today became the 17th joint service board formed since the Greater Victoria board blazed the trail for B.C. communities about two years ago.

First meeting of the interim board will be held Sept. 12 at 8 p.m. in Nanaimo City Hall to begin organization for formal adoption of desired functions and prepare for election of regular board members at the Dec. 9 civic elections.

High-Speed Chase Outlined In Theft Case

The evidence was given at the preliminary hearing of a charge of theft over $50 against John N. Fleming, 163 Olive.

Owner of the 1962 sports car Ann Chettlburgh, 151 Government, said her car was parked outside her apartment about 3 a.m. Aug. 20. She heard what she thought was her car being started and looked out of her window and saw it driven away.

Later that morning a police officer saw the car with two men in it. He gave chase through a number of downtown streets and eventually the car stopped on Grant near Cook.

Thieves Get $50 From Firm

Thieves made off with about $50 from the office of a moving firm in a break-in overnight.

A side window was broken to get into the warehouse and office of Fairfield Moving and Storage Ltd. at 116 Dallas.

The burglars ransacked several suticases and trunks there were being held in storage. The money was taken from the adjacent office.

False Alarms Bring Warning

Stolen Car Total Wreck; Youths Held

Four teen-agers were arrested early today when a car reported stolen in Alberni crashed on Admirals Road after a high-speed chase.

One of the youths was found unconscious by police near the scene of the crash shortly after 5 a.m. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and later turned back to police.

The other three boys in the car fled and were caught a short time later. They were unhurt.

THREE FROM ALBERNI

Three of the youghs were 16 and the other 17 years old. The boy taken to hospital lives in the city while the other three are from Alberni.

RCMP officers said today all four are being turned over to the RCMP detachment in Alberni to face charges.

The chase began when Saanich police Sgt. Frqnk Briers spotted the speeding auto on the Trans-Canada Highway.

It turned south on Admirals and another cruiser was in position to take up the chase.

Near Cooper's Road the Alberni car skidded out of control into a utility pole, spinning around it before stopping.

All four occupants fled but the injured youth was found unconscious in some bushes a few moments later.

The car, a three-year-old model worth about $2,500, was classified as a wreck. It was reported stolen in Alberni shortly after midnight.

Variety Hopes To Organize Branch in City

Victoria is being asked to support Variety Telethon, a program which last year raised $70,000 to help retarded children in Western Canada.

To this end three members of the Variety Club of Western Canada, sponsors of Variety Telethon, are organizing a Victoria branch.

Members will be asked to raise support for the all-star Variety Telethon to be staged in the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver, Oct. 7-8.

There will be a direct line from the theatre to Channel 6 Victoria, so the program can be televised locally. Viewers will be asked to donate to the fund for retarded children.

WATER SKI BOATS HIT; THREE HURT

Two boats each pulling water skiers collided on Prospect Lake Sunday afternoon.

Three people received minor injuries and damage to the boats was estimated at $1,000.

Operating one boat was Anton Lamprecht, 41, of 4977 Prospect Lake Rd. He suffered cuts to his side

Mrs. Sam Lane of 429 Lampson, operating the other boat received bruises and Bernie Zorn, also of 429 Lampson suffered cuts to his shoulder.

49 NEW BLAZES

Fire Crews Gain Ground At Weekend

Hot, sunny weather continues to keep forest fire fighters busy across the southern half of B.C. but they persisted in gaining increasing control of the situation over the weekend.

"There were only 49 new fires reported in the province over the weekend and the number of men on the firelines has decreased from slightly more than 3,000 Friday to 2,909 this morning," a forest service spokesman said.

Worst area now is the Kamloops forest district where 24 new fires were reported over the weekend as hazard rating remained at extreme levels.

One of the new fires there included a blaze that began Sunday night on the slopes across the Thompson River from Lytton "and exploded to 2,000 acres," the spokesman said. Eighty-three men and four tractors were battling the fire this morning.

CIGARETTE BLAMED

Only two of the weekend fires broke out on Vancouver Island.

A cigarette started a blaze near Duncan which burned two acres before a Canso water bomber and a ground crew put it out, and a spot-size, fire blamed on sunlight focussed by some broken glass was doused by the Canso near Courtenay.

Despite conflicting reports, the forest service spokesman said, a 6,000-acre blaze at Sproat Lake was not enlarged over the weekend.

"There have been pockets within it flaring up but they all have been well within the fireguard perimeter," he said.

"It's not spreading and the men are mopping it up."

OUTLOOK GRIM

Outlook remains grim with three weeks expected to go by before any appreciable rain dampens the parched forests in B.C. and similar difficulties are spreading throughout the Pacific Northwest.

U.S. officials have estimated that some 100,000 acres have been burned in Idaho Governor D. W. Samuelson summoned legislative leaders there to an emergency session to consider a situation described as potentially the worst forest fire disaster in 50 years.

Six Calls Within Two Hours

City firemen turned out for half a dozen false alarms within two hours Saturday night.

The alarms came from street boxes. When the trucks arrived there were no people and no fires.

"We treat this as a very serious matter," Deputy Chief R. J. Coates said this morning. "If whoever is doing it is apprehended, he will be dealt with severely."

SPARKS FROM INCINERATOR

Sparks from an incinerator were blamed for starting a rear wall on fire. The flames spread to the window frame and eaves but left the interior of the building undamaged.

The worst of half a dozen grass fires over the weekend kept firemen at work for more than two hours Saturday afternoon.

ON THE GO

Grass fires kept both Saanich and city firemen on the go this morning.

At noon they were still soaking smoulder moss in a brush blaze at Acton and Mount Stephen.

The continued hot weather has promoted closure of the park area bounded by Lansdowne, Midland, Dorset and Beach Drive.

Tough Calgary Defence Ruins Champion's Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Calgary Stampeders spoiled the head coaching debut of Jim Champion and took over sole possession of first place in the Western Football Conference Sunday by defeating British Columbia Lions 16-7 before 28,436 fans at Empire Stadium.

Calgary now is two points ahead of the defending Grey Cup champion Saskatchewan Roughriders with a 4-1 record. British Columbia is mired deep in the WFC cellar with five straight losses.

Champion, who succeeded Dave Skrien, said he felt if his squad could hold the Stamps to 16 points, the Lions could win. They did this without the services of two defensive line stars—Tom Brown, who quit football last week because of a recurring neck injury, and Wayne Foster, out with a sore knee.

"But what I didn't figure," said Champion later, "is that we would score as few points as we did."

SCORE TIED BY EILMES

The only B.C. touchdown was by fullback Larry Eilmes early in the second quarter to tie the score at 7-7 after Stamps quarterback Peter Liske had put the Cowboys ahead with a touchdown pass to Terry Evanshen in the first quarter.

Eilmes went over from the four yard line after the Lions had marched 24 yards in four plays following Bill Lasseter's interception of a Liske pass to Herm Harrison.

Calgary placement kicker Bill Goods kicked a 27-yard field goal in the second, then added 38 and 39-yarders in the last 15 minutes of play as well as converting after the touchdown. Ted Gerela converted the B.C. touchdown.

FIRST-PLAY FUMBLE

Mathieson had a frightening debut as he fumbled on the first play he called, a handoff. Then he settled down, completing six of 11 passes for 82 yards.

Liske, who was given solid support for his pass plays, completed 12 of 22 for 251 yards. He led the Stamps to a touchdown on their first series of the game as they went 60 yards in seven plays.

Calgary's total offence of 435 yards consisted of 251 yards through the air, 147 of them to Evanshen. Lovell Coleman led the ground attack with 133 yards.

Bill Munsey was top ground gainer for the Leos. He picked up 73 yards in 14 carries. Leroy Sledge was the Lions' best pass receiver, taking five for 67 yards.

PLOEN WON'T BE READY IN TIME TO FACE LEOS

WINNIPEG (CP)—Winnipeg Blue Bombers probably will be without quarterback Kenny Ploen for their next two games and it is almost certain fullback Butch Pressley is going to be put on the 30-day injured list.

Coach Joe Zaleski said Sunday doctors were to check both players again today following injuries they received in the second quarter of a Western Football Conference game Friday at Regina. Saskatchewan won the encounter 24-18.

Zaleski said Bill Van Burkleo will call signals in Ploen's absence, backed up by newcomer Ralph Schoenfeld, a recent cut from Saskatchewan. Marty Rosen will handle Pressley's chores.

Bork Directs Als to Victory

MONTREAL (CP) — Short-memoried Montreal Alouette fans sat up in their seats Saturday night and watched George Bork, whom they had not long ago assigned to the ashcan, fire their team to a 34-22 victory over Toronto Argonauts.

The victory, before a crowd of 15,000, was the first for the Eastern Football Conference Alouettes in three games so far this season. But the two points picked up by the Als made no difference in the standings. They're still in last place, while the Argos continue to share first place with Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders.

The Alouette quarterback wound up with a bone bruise and possible stretched ligaments in his ankle after he was tackled in the last 30 seconds—Ian MacDonald was called for a piling on penalty on the play.

Bork started with a touchdown pass to Jim Rountree as the Argo defender grabbed a pass intended for Gerry Sternberg and ran unmolested for 60 yards.

The hoots had barely subsided when Bork directed a 78-yard march in nine plays culminating in a nine-yard touchdown pass to Roger Murphy on third down.

From then on it was Bork's game even though the Argos retaliated with a Jim Dillard touchdown. Several of Bork's 17 completions in 28 attempts were made in the first down zone behind the Toronto linebackers. He flooded the zone with three receivers and Donnie Davis was invariably free.

End Roger Murphy and halfback Charlie Scales scored two touchdowns each for the Alouettes. Larry Fairholm got the other touchdown when he picked up a fumble and raced into the Toronto end zone.

Bobby Taylor scored Argos' third touchdown. Vilunas converted all three and added a single in a wide field goal attempt.

Late 'Peg Entry Best in Nation

SASKATOON (CP) — Winnipeg Canadians were fortunate to be in the Canadian senior men's fastball championships, and their opponents would have been happier had the Manitoba representatives stayed at home.

The Canadians, notified eight days in advance that they would be taking part in the four-day tournament, defeated Hull, Que., Lambert Rolly's 6-4 in the A-B final Sunday before more than 2,400 fans to take the championship without suffering a loss in four games.

"Bill Jurens, commissioner of the Manitoba Fastball Association told us Aug. 16 that we would be in the Canadian series," said a happy manager-coach Ray Charambura.

"We then began a frantic effort to raise the money for the trip, and finally formed our team last Thursday, a day before we opened play in the first round."

WON ON ONE HIT

Winnipeg edged the Hull club 2-1 Saturday in the A final, despite managing only one hit. The Canadians' other wins were over St. Thomas, Ont., Western Memorials 3-1, and Saskatoon College Lads 7-0.

Saturday's action saw Hull defeat Saskatoon Merchants 4-2; Edmonton blank Nanaimo, B.C., 1-0; Edmonton win 3-2 over St. Thomas in 14 innings.

Doug Casselman, named the best hitter in the championships, paced Hull with a pair of doubles in two tries. Yvon Duguay slammed a solo homer and a single for two RBI's.

Casselman, leftfielder for Hull, had six hits in 12 at-bats to wind up with a .500 average. Nanaimo's second baseman, Bob Boudot, also had a .500 average, with five hits in 10 appearances at the plate, but Casselman won the award because of his six hits, three doubles and three singles.

Players named to the 1967 all-star team were:

The 1968 tournament is set for St. Catharines, Ont.

Bowling Blitz Blasts Pakistan Fight Hopes

When Ranjit Went Out, The Shamrocks Went In

By ERNIE FEDORUK

At least two individuals are willing to testify that the Inter-City Lacrosse League's leading scorer is "defensive-minded".

But Ranjit Dillon deviated from normal habits for a few, brief moments Saturday night and that is one of several good reasons why Victoria Shamrocks today are clearing the decks for the first appearance in a league final in eight years.

The best reason is the score. Overcoming a two-goal deficit, Shamrocks tripped Coquitlam Adanacs 8-3 before 3,827 fans at Memorial Arena to put the topper on a stirring comeback story.

Adanacs won the first two games in the best-of-five semi-final series. But the Shamrocks won the three that counted, and now have the right to look at Vancouver Carlings as their next opposition.

The best-of-seven league final gets under way Tuesday in Vancouver, moves to Victoria for the second game on Thursday. The third game, also in Vancouver, is scheduled for Saturday night. The balance of the series will be wrapped up the following week.

It was Dillon who hammered the stakes into Adanacs' cause in Saturday's game, a partisan-pleasing rouser that typified Shamrock comeback charges throughout the season.

Two Lines, One Order Did the Job

Scott and Usselman shot Coquitlam into a 2-0 lead after 10 minutes of play. Collett, on a fine fake, put some life into a so-so Victoria offense and Showers tied it up late in the first period.

Barclay popped in the two second-period goals and Coquitlam led 4-2 going into the final 20 minutes. The last one was a session that belonged entirely to the Shamrocks.

It wasn't that coach Dave Unwin fed raw meat to the Victoria players. He simply packed all his power into two lines and issued one order: "Run."

Run, they did!

"The whole secret against Coquitlam," Unwin said later, "is to run. We didn't do that in the first two periods."

But while running may be the secret, Shamrocks also needed goals. It was Munroe, capping what has to be his best season in senior company, who opened the flood-gates that enabled Shamrocks to out-score Coquitlam 6-0 in the final period.

There is no doubt it unnerved Comeau because 42 seconds later Dillon clicked on a long drive and then Collett, also from well out at 6:41, scored to put Victoria ahead for the first time, 5-4.

He Simply Tried a Nirmal's Tactic

Still, Shamrocks weren't out of the woods. Not, at least, until Dillon stepped "out of character." He went fore-checking, twice stole the ball away from Coquitlam defenders. His two breakaway goals in 37 seconds — at 11:09 and 11:46 — virtually sealed it away.

"I couldn't believe it," he said in a bedlam-filled dressing room. "Ranjit always lays back on defense. He never plays that far up."

Ranjit, who had similarly hustled for a loose ball that led to Showers' goal, admitted, "I'm a bit defensive-minded" when play is in Victoria's zone.

"That's usually Nirmal's job," he added. But Nirmal Dillon, a brother, was in hospital recovering from an eye injury and Ranjit decided to gamble.

"They were making a line change, and I thought they might get careless. Kevin Parsons had the ball, and he looked over at Bill Bradley. I knew he was going to flip the ball to Bradley, so I decided to gamble."

His next goal, 37 seconds later, was virtually a duplication of the previous scoring play.

While the scoring heroics pulled this one out of the fire, attention must also be given to goaltender Barry Forbes. He was at his best in the clutch, when a goal by Coquitlam might have turned the tide the other way.

There will be 28 events in the tri-country meet and each country is permitted two competitors per event and one team in relay events.

Senators' Record Not Impressive With Hawaiians

HONOLULU (AP) — The Hawaii Islanders baseball team is looking for a new major league affiliation.

Honolulu financier Chinn Ho told Islander stockholders the club has not renewed its working agreement with the Washington Senators.

Islanders are in last place in the western division of the Pacific Coast League and finished next to last in 1966.

HOMERS DO IT

Carls Powered By Stevenson

Harvey Stevenson is power personified.

The husky Carlings centrefielder has the thick, strong neck, the muscular chest and arms, the quick wrists of a natural power hitter.

He swings often and he swings hard. He loves—dearly—to hit home runs.

Harvey ripped a fence-buster off Glenn Langsett to give Carlings the Lower Vancouver Island Senior "B" softball crown Sunday.

NEEDED BOTH

Carlings needed both victories to escape elimination after suffering a 6-1 loss to Langsett Saturday night. Stevenson homered for Carls' only run as Luckies' fireballer set down the tournament champions on four hits.

Stevenson stroked a single and two doubles to help Norman post a 9-1 two-hit decision over Sooke Forest Products in another Sunday contest. Norman homered in that game, as did Boden.

Norman was a key Carlings figure throughout the tournament. He won the playoff opener with a masterful-five-hit shutout, blanked Sooke Sunday before outduelling Langsett 1-0 to post his third shutout victory.

FINE DUEL

The Carlings ace, who yielded only two hits in the final, had to be good to outdo Langsett. Glenn gave up just two hits and made only one serious mistake.

He threw a second-inning strike to hungry Harvey Stevenson. Carlings didn't need a second chance.

Century Enjoys Sun. Turnabout

Century Inn are in a lot better shape now than they were Friday in the best-of-five city Senior "C" softball playoffs.

Friday, the Stuffy McGinnis League club trailed Red Lion Inn of the Senior Men's League 2-1 in the Heywood Park series.

Strange as it may sound, Century now hold a 2-1 edge and could wrap it up with a victory in Tuesday's 6:30 p.m. meeting with the Lions.

Century grabbed a second playoff win Sunday by pounding out a 12-4 decision behind the eight-hit pitching of Ken McCorkall and Carl Walker's solid hitting.

Century also gained a reprieve of Friday's 5-4 loss to Red Lions. Tournament executives ruled that Red Lions used an ineligible player in the contest and ordered the game replayed.

Walker blasted a home run, a double and a single to lead Century's nine-hit attack Sunday. John Paul and Bill James each connected for two hits. Gord Rutherford drove home two runs with a double in the third inning before scoring the winning run on Paul's first single.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Japan won the Little League World Series for the first time in the 21-year history of the annual classic for small fry with a 4-1 victory Saturday over North Roseland of Chicago.

Masahiro Miyahara, a 104-pound right-hander who pitched a one-hit shutout in the first game of the series, won his second game, allowing only three hits and an unearned run.

Junior Sailing Win

VANCOUVER — Brent Butler, 16, of Montreal Saturday won the two-day Canadian centennial sailing junior regatta, receiving only 5¾ penalty points in six races with his 11-foot craft.

Richard Woodill, Halifax, was second and Paul Inwood, Toronto, was third.

'Wetchester Classic' a Wry Bet at Rye

Three days of rain have turned the Westchester Classic, a $250,000 affair, from the world's richest golf tournament into a sodden disappointment.

For three days tournament officials have tried to get in the second round. And for three days heavy, soaking rains have turned the lush links of the Westchester Country Club into a quagmire.

Players and officials are bitterly disappointed. And the comments have reached the caustic stage.

"Perhaps it should be called the Wry Classic," offered one.

"Someone going after his ball," said the young, El Paso, Tex., pro, one of the chief victims of Sunday's rain-out. He was one of 83 who had finished their rounds when rains and lightning wiped it all out.

Trevino was in with a five-under-par 67 and a 135 for two rounds over the 6,573 yard, par 72 layout. He was tied for second with Gary Pittman, a one-time assistant pro at the club, who had a brilliant 65.

They were two strokes back of Mason Rudolph from Clarksville, Tenn., who had a 67 for 133. All, of course, are wiped out.

It was the second such blow for Rudolph, who had a 69 washed out in Saturday's rainstorm. Play did not begin Friday.

Now it all reverts to Thursday's first round results, with Rudolph, Gary Player and Jim Colbert tied for the lead at 66, followed by Nicklaus, John Schlee and Bob Charles at 67.

The schedule now has 18-hole rounds set for today, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Tire-Switching Move Pays Off For Brabham

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Jack Brabham, of Australia, kept an eye on the weather Sunday and won Canada's first Grand Prix for Formula I cars on the rain-drenched Mosport track.

When the drizzle turned to a downpour in later stages, Brabham was driving steadily while such favorites as Jim Clark of Scotland and Graham Hill of England were spinning on the slippery asphalt.

The victory was worth $10,575 in prize money.

New Zealander Denis Hulme placed second in another Brabham one minute, 1.9 seconds behind the Australian and won $6,350 in prize money.

Dan Gurney of Costa Mesa, Calif., placed third in his All-American Eagle Racer for $4,000.

ONLY THREE TO GO

The race was the eighth in a series of 11 leading towards the world championship. Normally 10 races count in the championship contest but the event was brought to Canada in honor of this country's Centennial Year.

In the race for the world driving championship, Hulme leads with 43 points. Brabham is next with 34. New Zealander Chris Amon, who finished sixth with the only Ferrari in the race, is third with 20. Clark, 1965 world champion whose Lotus developed electrical trouble and was listed as a non-finisher, is fourth with 19.

A paid crowd of 39,471 watched the race, many of them huddled under umbrellas throughout the afternoon. It was the first major race to be held at an Ontario track on a Sunday.

Hill, 1962 world champion, spun his Lotus 13 laps before the end of the 90-lap race. He was placed fourth although he completed only 88 laps.

Only two Canadians were in the race. Al Pease, Toronto commercial artist, was placed 12th although he completed only 47 laps because of a dead battery in his Eagle. Eppie Wietzes, Toronto area auto dealer, driving a Lotus, was listed as a non-finisher. Both Canadians were making their debut in Grand Prix competition.

Vicettes Miss In B.C. Final

Also in the tournament were Kamloops, Prince Rupert, Victoria Vicettes, Nelson and Whitehorse.

Pat LeFebvre, who played third base for Prince George, was judged the most valuable player in the double-knockout event. Teammate Gwen Reppel, winner of Sunday's game, won the pitching award, while Anne Konkin of Nelson took the batting crown.

SIX UNDER PAR for 36 holes was all Moe Norman (above) needed to pick up top money in $3,000 Videon Open golf tournament at Fort William. Stan and Wilf Homeniuk, brothers from Manitoba, finished second and third, respectively.

Putting Made the Difference

The theory was demonstrated Saturday when Jay Paukkunen of Port Arthur, Ont., defeated Doug Roxburgh of Vancouver 4 and 3 in the 36-hole final of the match-play Canadian junior golf championship.

Paukkunen, 18, and Roxburgh, 15, were about even on their tee shots and iron play but the Ontario golfer showed his mastery on the greens.

Roxburgh, who has been golfing less than three years, was no match for the cool-headed Paukkunen. The Vancouver boy faltered early in the match when he kept asking his brother Bob, who was also his caddy, for advice before every shot.

Paukkunen went three up on the sixth hole, increasing it twice to 5-up before finally winning the 33rd hole for the championship.

The Port Arthur golfer was eligible for the Manitoba interprovincial team in the tournament, but failed to qualify. Golfers in the Port Arthur area are members of the Manitoba association.

His loss of the team berth also cost him sponsorship, but he decided to compete anyway.

Paukkunen's ambition is to enter the University of New Mexico.

"I want to get on the college team," he said.

CAC Speaks On Reforms

OTTAWA — Three significant resolutions dealing with items of everyday use have been sent to Trade and Commerce Minister R. H. Winters by the Consumers' Association of Canada.

The first resolution requests action to extend existing federal regulations to require a declaration of weight on all food containers. At present this is required only on all foods over two ounces.

Reason for the resolution, the CAC says, is because "it is desirable to compare weights of small items such as spices and chocolate bars to evaluate the cost."

The federal departments of Agriculture and Health and Welfare were also advised of this resolution.

A second resolution calls for declaration of weight on all bars of soap and synthetic soap bars so that a comparison of weights and costs may be made. Weight declaration at present need only be printed on packages of soap flakes and powders and synthetic soap products.

Increasing concern over highly flammable fabrics which do not bear a cautionary label is reflected in a third resolution asking that serious consideration be given to require labelling of all flammable fabrics used in clothing, "particularly those used for infants and small children." Such labelling is urgently needed, CAC says, because "developments in the production and treatment of fabrics are rapid and confusing to the consumer."

The groom's parents Mr. and Mrs. R. Isaacs and brothers Mark and Paul travelled from Jamaica to attend the recent marriage of Miss Heather Elizabeth Stewart and Mr. Ronald Issacs. Newlyweds to Live in Jamaica After Honeymoon Trip to Expo

The bride, the former Heather Elizabeth Stewart, is the daughter of Mrs. Donald Stewart, 1471 Faircliff Lane, and the late Mr. Stewart, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Isaacs, of Kingston, Jamaica. Arrangements of American Beauty roses, white gladioli and stocks decorated the church for the service conducted by Fr. Alexis Auger.

Organist was Miss Irene Guertin, and soloist Miss Irene Harris sang "Panus Angelicus," "The Wedding Prayer" and "Ave Maria."

Given in marriage by her brother, Donald Stewart, the bride wore a floor-length gown made by her aunt, Miss Eliana Mathieu. Fashioned of embroidered lace, brought from Paris by the bride, the gown was sleeveless, with a slightly fitted waist. Her headpiece was a Spanish mantilla of similar lace, and she carried a single American Beauty rosebud.

Matron of honor Mrs. Allon Heath and bridesmaid Miss Debrah Heath wore silk-blend gowns in American beauty red. Styled on A-lines, the gowns were sleeveless, and featured high necklines. Their headpieces were tiny pillbox hats en tone with the gowns, and they carried bouquets of gladioli, American Beauty roses, heather and gyphsophila.

Mark Isaacs was best man, and Paul Isaacs ushered the guests. Both are brothers of the groom.

A three-tier wedding cake topped with arrangements of American Beauty roses centred the head table for the reception in the Hollywood Place home of the bride's aunt, Miss Maria Mathieu. Allon Heath proposed the toast to the bride.

A pure silk shantung suit in beige, bordered with a trim of beige, brown and black polka-dots echoing those of her blouse, was worn by the new Mrs. Isaacs for travelling on honeymoon to Parksville and Expo 67. Her hat was in the same polka-dot fabric. To complement the ensemble she wore black patent leather accessories.

16 FEARED DEAD AFTER 20,000-FOOT JUMP

Sky Divers Lost in Lake

Only 2 Survive Off-Course Jump

HURON, Ohio (AP) — A steady rain dampened rescue hopes for 14 missing sky divers today, 18 hours after they leaped through an overcast sky and missed their target by 10 miles, landing in choppy Lake Erie. There were two survivors. Two were found dead.

At noon about 200 coast guardsmen, police and volunteers in 21 boats had found only a few pieces of the sky divers' gear. Nine underwater divers and two helicopters pressed the search at dawn.

"The chances of the divers coming out alive is slim," said coast guard Lieut. Paul Potter on the scene.

"It's so iffy it's hard to give any kind of real indication on how long a man might survive," another coast guard spokesman in Cleveland said. "It could be several days, if he did everything right and got the breaks."

The rains, choppy waters and decreased visibility caused increasing difficulty shortly before dawn as an armada of navy, coast guard, air force, army and private citizens ended an all-night search.

LAKE SWEPT

Searchers had swept 150 square miles of Lake Erie for the 14—among 18 sky divers who were buffeted off their target by 58 mile-an-hour winds at 20,000 feet when they jumped from a B-25 aircraft Sunday.

Two bodies, including that of a woman who celebrated her wedding by sky diving, were recovered.

The bodies, recovered within half an hour of the jump, were being kept in a temporary morgue. Officials, meanwhile, tried to identify the owners of seven gloves, three chutes and four reserve chutes, the only items recovered from the lake.

Two other sky divers escaped by staying on the plane for a second pass at higher altitude.

Helicopters, planes and an armada of coast guard and military and private boats that included the ocean-going tug Kaw combed a 100-square mile area of the lake.

DIVERS SEARCH

Coast Guard Lieut. Paul Potter, who saw the multi-colored chutes descend through overcast skies into the lake Sunday at 4:30 p.m., said chances that the 14 missing jumpers survived the night in the 72-degree water were "slim."

Exactly how the 18 Ohio parachute enthusiasts, most of whom had more than 100 jumps to their credit, missed their target by 10 miles was unknown.

"As far as I know, I was right where I was supposed to be," the pilot, Robert Karns, told Ohio Highway Patrolman John Shimp.

GREEK KING DENOUNCED

TORONTO (CP)—Several thousand Greek-Canadians demonstrated Sunday against visiting King Constantine, carrying placards denouncing him for support of what they called Greece's "fascist" military government.

The protest started late Sunday afternoon when an estimated 3,000 of Toronto's 40,000-member Greek community gathered in downtown Queen's Park to hear a series of speakers accuse King Constantine of accepting and supporting the military junta which this April ousted civilian government in Greece.

"We know the king tried to resist the generals, but he is still ignorant and guilty," said Angelo Giannakopoulis, secretary of the newly-formed Committee for the Restoration of Democracy in Greece.

"He should have abdicated. If he had, the generals would not have been accepted by the people or the world."

WILSON TAKES CHARGE

U.K. Cabinet Shuffled

LONDON—Prime Minister Harold Wilson announced a major reshuffle of his government today and named himself Britain's economic boss to lead the fight against mounting unemployment.

Government sources said Wilson was taking personal charge of economic affairs in the same way that a wartime prime minister would control the national effort by also making himself defence minister.

The administration, they said, has bolstered the pound and ensured future surpluses in the balance of payments, and now the main aim would be to boost industrial production.

Wilson took control of the economic affairs department previously run by former foreign secretary Michael Stewart.

Among them were Commonwealth Secretary Herbert Bowden, 62, and Douglas Jay, president of the board of trade, 60.

Economic Affairs Secretary Michael Stewart, 61, was dropped from the job but was kept in the cabinet with the title of first secretary.

Others whose "resignations" were announced were Minister of Overseas Development Arthur Bottomley, 60; Fred Willey, 57, minister of state for housing and local government, and Lord Walston, 55, parliamentary secretary to the board of trade.

WON'T TAKE TITLE

Wilson will not take the title of economic affairs secretary, it was announced, although he assumed over-all responsibility for running the country's economic policies. Stewart was succeeded in that job by Peter Shore, 43, formerly undersecretary of state for foreign affairs.

Bowden himself was given a peerage and named head of Britain's independent television authority.

Thomson's job has been taken over by Goronwy Roberts, 53, who now is likely to look after disarmament policy.

This job was done recently by Fred Mulley, another foreign office minister of state, who became deputy to Foreign Secretary George Brown.

Wilson made no changes directly involving new posts for James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer; Defence Secretary Denis Healey or Home

Terrorists Put Six Men On Hong Kong Death List

HONG KONG (AP)—Chinese terrorists today published a death list of six prominent anti-Communist Chinese the Communists said would be executed like radio comedian Lam Bun.

The list included Paul Tsiu, secretary for Chinese affairs in the Hong Kong government, two legislative councillors, two newspaper executives and the chairman of a village elders' association. It was published in the terrorists' underground newspaper.

The 37-year-old comedian and his brother were turned into human torches last Thursday when terrorists bombed their car, doused them with kerosene, and then set them afire. Lam Bun died 30 hours later. His brother, 27, is near death.

Hong Kong police said a British army demolition expert was blown 200 feet down a cliff by a hidden bomb today, bringing the number of terrorist deaths in eight days to five. Earlier today, a 39-year-old Chinese man died of injuries received in a bomb trap intended for police and army demolition squads.

TSIU

Police said they would give protection to anyone who was threatened or who had reason to believe his life was in danger from terrorists.

Otherwise, Hong Kong enjoyed a peaceful weekend. Only one bomb was found and the situation at the border with China returned to normal.

The border crossing at Man Kman To reopened after two weeks and food trucks resumed normal travel from China. Food prices, up during the period when the border was closed, started to return to normal.

Rail traffic bringing food from the mainland still was disrupted because of the turbulent situation in the adjoining province of Kwangtung.

SURVIVOR TELLS WHAT HAPPENED:

'Certainly Got Surprise As I Came Out of Cloud'

Editor's Note: Robert Coy, 29, of Springfield, Ohio, is one of two known survivors of a skydiving disaster in which two persons drowned and 14 others were missing and feared dead. The following is his personal report on the tragedy.)

By ROBERT COY
As Told to United Press International

HURON, Ohio (UPI) — There was a pretty thick cloud layer . . . about 4,000 feet at the bottom and 6,000 at the top.

We jumped from 20,000 feet. Radar was to guide us over our exit point which was the airfield.

We planned to free fall to 2,500 feet and land on the airport or wherever we were.

We certainly got a surprise about where we were.

As I came out of the cloud layer over Lake Erie, I could see the shore. I opened my chute to drift as close as possible to shore.

●

After I hit the water I held on to my reserve parachute, which will float. I used a standard water procedure, unhooking everything but the saddle (reserve chute) and survival kit.

The reserve was hanging from one strap on my left side when I hit. The cover was off the harness release and all I had to do was jiggle it.

I floated on that until it became waterlogged, then I took off my helmet and filled it with air. I floated on the helmet.

●

The water was very rough. I couldn't see anyone else. All I could hear was the roar of the waves. They were going over my head and swishing down my throat.

My plan was to stay afloat as long as possible in the hope somebody would pick me up and that's what happened.

A private boat picked me up three miles from shore. I was afraid he didn't see me but he did. Then he went on out and picked up Bob Johnson about five miles out.

Later we found a canopy (parachute) but there was no one attached to it.

I was in the water only about 10 or 15 minutes but it seemed like three hours.

My rescuers—God bless them.

N. KOREAN SOLDIERS KILL 4

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — North Korean soldiers attacked a U.S. Army unit in daylight today near the demilitarized zone, killing one American and three others in the United Nations.

Twenty five were wounded in the attack, including some U.S. soldiers. Other victims were South Korean civilian employees of the Americans.

U.S. Bases Hammered By Cong

SAIGON (AP)—The Viet Cong kept up their intensified mortar and rocket attacks for the second day today, killing 10 United States marines, wounding 106 and destroying or damaging 12 helicopters.

The barrages against two U.S. bases in the northern part of South Vietnam followed a series of 12 mortar shellings up and down the country Sunday which killed or wounded more than 300 persons, most of them civilians.

U.S. officials considered the attacks another Viet Cong effort to scare the South Vietnamese from voting in the presidential election next Sunday. It had been months since the Viet Cong made a co-ordinated effort like they did Sunday.

CHARGE ONTARIO GROUP LOADED

Top Tories Cry 'Fix'

(Times News Services)

OTTAWA (CP)—Charges of rigging the Conservative party leadership convention flew today with the resignation of a national officer of the party and a formal complaint about delegate accreditation backed by some leadership candidates.

Miss Laura G. Mann, an Ontario director of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, quit the four-member committee selecting Ontario's 90 delegates at large for the convention in Toronto Sept. 5-9.

She accused convention co-chairman E. A. Goodman, a Toronto lawyer, of undemocratically packing the list of selections without the committee's formal approval.

Meanwhile, Dr. James Johnston, national director of the party, sent a formal letter of protest, backed by at least three leadership candidates, against the addition as voting delegates of 84 persons who participated in the Montmorency Falls, Que., policy advisory conference earlier this month.

His protest was said here to be supported by candidates Alvin Hamilton, Davie Fulton and Premier Duff Roblin of Manitoba.

Dr. Johnston said in a letter to Gene Rheaume, convention secretary, that the 84 far exceed the number agreed upon by the convention committee at a meeting in Victoria earlier in the year.

He said the maximum should be 30.

Furthermore, he said, 51 of the 84 were from one province —Ontario—and a "large number" were known supporters of one of the nine leadership candidates.

Neither Miss Mann in her letter to Mr. Goodman nor Dr. Johnston in his to Mr. Rheaume identified the candidate in whose favor voting delegates were being appointed.

ZAMBIA NOT AIDING RHODESIA GUERRILLAS

The statement followed a warning Friday by Rhodesian Deputy Premier John Wrathall that steps might be taken against Zambia if it continues to harbor and shelter guerrillas.

The statement, which quoted spokesmen for President Kenneth Kaunda, said the total liberation of Africa is a fundamental principle of Zambian policy.

"There is, however, absolutely no truth in the allegation that Zambia is helping fredeom fighters with arms or that the Zambian government is providing any other facilities which could be described as encouraging or assisting them in the armed confrontation reported."

Rhodesians Hunt African Rebels

SALISBURY (Reuters)—Rhodesian tribesmen aided soldiers scouring bush country Sunday for Negro nationalist guerrillas after fierce fighting near Victoria Falls, it was officially reported here.

A government statement said constant harrying by Rhodesian police, troops and aircraft is putting heavy pressure on the guerrillas, forcing some of them to abandon equipment.

It said local tribesmen aided the hunt by reporting the pressence of strangers to soldiers. Roadblocks were set up in the area near the junction of the Rhodesia, Zambia, Botswana and Southwest Africa frontiers.

The guerrillas, reported on their way to South Africa from Zambia, lost 24 dead in recent fighting, according to official figures issued here. Security forces suffered six dead and 12 wounded.

Five guerrillas were captured Friday in addition to 26 taken prisoner earlier, the government statement said. More arrests were made Saturday night, it added.

Security men said most of the guerrillas were South Africans, were well armed and some had been trained in Communist countries.

The government statement said some of the guerrillas were running short of food and water — a major hazard as a time of drought has made vegetation sparse and water holes low, if not dry.

Some sources here claimed that as many as 2,000 trained men waited in camps in Zambia to cross into Rhodesia and then try to move south to the Transvaal in South Africa.

Secretary Roy Jenkins. All had been tipped for possible moves.

A one-time Commonwealth secretary, Bottomley will soon be made British representative in a Commonwealth capital, still to be announced.

Patrick Gordon Walker, foreign secretary briefly when Wilson's Labor administration first took office in October, 1964, became the new education secretary, giving up the co-ordinating role now allocated to Stewart.

Wilson's own control of the economic affairs department will strengthen his own direct interest in the nation's industrial recovery and also his own personal position in the government.

The prime minister named one of his proteges to work directly under him as economic affairs secretary, Peter Shore, who until now has been a junior minister in the same department.

MADE OTHER SWITCHES

Besides these main changes, Wilson announced several switches in junior ministerial posts aimed at bringing in more young men groomed for future cabinet status.

This brings down the average age of the cabinet from just under 55 years to just over 53.

Jay is expected to become the focal point for the anti-Common Market campaign from Labor's back-benches in Parliament, since no other government job is in line for him.

. . . TORIES

"That will come out," Miss Mann said at a press conference she called to announce her resignation.

Her letter said she might have found acceptable most of the Ontario voting delegates-at-large accredited by Mr. Goodman if proper attention had been given to democratic procedures.

"As far as I am concerned, I do not believe that the 90 delegates-at-large from Ontario have been properly selected.

JOHNSTON COMPLAINS

Dr. Johnston complained that accreditation of 84 voting delegates from the Montmorency conference gives this group, which included non-party members, almost as many votes for the leadership as the 96 elected members of Parliament.

He said only British Columbia, Quebec, Ontario and Alberta will have more voting delegates elected at the constituency level than the Montmorency group.

Dr. Johnston is an appointee of Mr. Diefenbaker to the national director's post. Miss Mann said that she is a Diefenbaker supporter "and don't you think he isn't going to run."

Mr. Diefenbaker has not publicly declared his intentions.

The other candidates in the leadership race are MPs George Hees and Michael Starr, Senator M. Wallace McCutcheon, Premier Robert Stanfield of Nova Scotia, former finance minister Donald Fleming, and auto dealer John Maclean of Brockville.

Woman's Hat In Tory Ring

TORONTO (CP) — A 51-year-old Toronto woman told a press conference Saturday that she is placing her hat in the ring as the 10th candidate for the leadership of the national Progressive Conservative party.

Mrs. Mary Walker Sawka told reporters she had filed an intention to run at the Sept. 5-9 leadership convention with convention headquarters a week ago. However, a headquarters spokesman said Mrs. Sawka has not yet advised the party in writing of her intention to run, although she had spoken by telephone to officials.

Mrs. Sawka described herself as a movie producer, director and writer, and president of Palmar Production Enterprises Ltd.

. . . SKY DIVERS

ing he was flying by a radar fix furnished him by the Federal Aviation Agency tower at Hopkins International Airport in Cleveland and a Loran station at Amherst.

WERE NOT PREPARED

The divers were unprepared for the landing in water. None had floating equipment, the two survivors said. Each carried about 50 pounds of equipment.

"She loved sky diving," said her husband, Alvin.

Lownsbury, an iron worker, had made the wedding sky dive with his bride. He quit jumping earlier this year after suffering his fourth broken leg.

"It hadn't been a month ago that Pat and I jumped into Chippewa Lake," Lownsbury said. Sky divers sometimes intentionally leap into water, but carry floating equipment in such cases.

The other known drowning victim was Dorsie Kitchen Jr., 33, also of Akron.

One of the missing, Michael Thiem of Springfield, had told friends before the jump that he didn't like the idea of going. I was too close to Lake Erie and he couldn't swim, he told them.

Winds were estimated at 58 miles an hour at 20,000 feet up.

HAS LITTLE HOPE

"If they are out there in that water with parachutes on I don't imagine we will get too many of them alive," said highway Patrol Sgt. R. L. Schell.

After the 18 had jumped, Karns made another pass over the area and two other men—Jumpmasters Larry Hartman of Fairview Park and Allen Homestead of Oberlin, bailed out and landed safety at Ortner Air Service field, near Wakeman, some 10 miles from the lake and the intended target area for all the divers.

Shimp said Karns told him "they had planned to make the second pass because two of the jumpers wanted to jump from higher than 20,000 feet. The two had special oxygen equipment."

Robert Coy of Springfield, a survivor, said: "I was shocked and flabbergasted to see that I was over the lake. We assumed we were over the field.

"As soon as I broke out of the clouds, I knew something was wrong," Coy added. "All I saw was water."

"The waves were over my head and water was swishing into my mouth," he added. Coy said he stayed afloat by making an air pocket within his crash helmet.

Bernard Johnson, 30, of West Richfield, Ohio, the other survivor, said: "I was more fortunate. My chute canopy stayed inflated, acting like a life preserver." Johnson was making his 267th jump.

7-Game Series

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago Cubs will play a seven-game series with New York Mets starting Thursday, it was anonunced today. Three of the games were shifted from Shea Stadium, the Mets' ball park, where they were rained out on the Cubs' last visit to New York the last week-end.

UNCONTROLLED FIRE SEEN FOR 50 MILES

By The Associated Press

Huge pillars of smoke, visible in Everett some 50 miles away, billowed up from the Evergreen Mountain fire in the Snoqualmie National Forest Sunday afternoon.

Officials of the United States Forest Service, who had estimated the size of the blaze at about 3,000 acres, said this indicated the flames were raging uncontrolled in heavy timber again and the size was expected to increase greatly.

About 700 firefighters were on duty Sunday, battling the blaze along steep mountain slopes and in dense timber.

The fire burned through slash and old growth Saturday, then jumped to 1,000 acres from 400 as it burned into denser forest in an easterly direction.

Plane Hits Tower

NEW YORK (UPI) — A light charter plane returning from an unauthorized flight to east Long Island smashed into a 480-foot radio transmission tower Sunday, killing at least two persons and knocking out two major AM radio stations off the air. The bodies, tentatively identified as William Sedutto, 32, and Ronald Bumbalo, 31, both of New York, had been recovered.

Chinese Attack Crew On Greek Freighter

LONDON (Reuters) — Chinese Red Guards have beaten up crew members of a Greek freighter anchored in Shanghai, Moscow radio reported today.

It said the ship's captain had torn up his contract with the Chinese and sailed to the Soviet Asian port of Nachodka where he asked for medical aid for himself and several of his crew.

About 200 Red Guards attacked the ship after the captain asked the Shanghai authorities to restore order among fighting longshoremen, according to the radio's correspondent.

The broadcast, which gave no date for the reported incident, said the freighter was hired by the Chinese to ferry cargoes between China and foreign ports. The vessel's name could not be made out clearly in the broadcast monitored here.

40,000 to Be Freed

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Indonesia will release some 40,000 Communists jailed since the Communist-backed coup attempt here in 1965. The armed forces bulletin Monday quoted Brig.-Gen. Gatot Suwagia, civil defence chief, as saying citizens should keep a watch on Communists' behavior after their release.

Black Market Jeopardizing Vietnam Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. House of Representatives subcommittee sharply citricized U.S. aid programs in South Vietnam Sunday night and said failure to make substantial reforms "could lead to a reassessment of the U.S. position."

In a follow-up to a report last year, the foreign operations and government information subcommittee says "the responsible U.S. officials are as much at fault as the government of Vietnam."

Unless the government of South Vietnam undertakes action in a number of areas, the report concludes, "the prospects of success are minimal, and the advisability of U.S. involvement is questionable and could lead to a reassessment of the U.S. position."

The subcommittee's findings are contained in three reports, the first of nine to be issued.

The subcommittee reports improvements in the black market situation, handling of imports and port operations, but it criticizes the Agency for International Development for failing to do more to carry out its earlier recommendations.

In reviewing the black market situation, the subcommittee reports that, despite increased security at U.S. post exchanges and other steps, "the black markets in currency and commodities have not, however, been put out of existence entirely."

The subcommittee makes a number of recommendations for improvement in the handling of U.S. aid, including establishment of a central purchasing organization to standardize procurement and expedite distribution, stricter review of the background of applicants for import licences and application of the same requirements given new importers to those there already.

TOUGH DEMANDS

Auto Strike Talk Grows

DETROIT (AP)—Talk of an auto industry strike is growing in Detroit, where time is fast running out on new contract negotiations.

General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. are due to make their first economic counter-offers Tuesday to what the United Auto Workers concede is their "longest and most ambitious" list of demands in history.

The first disruption in production since assembly lines began rolling on 1968 models came last week at Sharonville, Ohio.

UAW workers complained of speed-up through rearrangement of Ford's transmission assembly lines. Ford disciplined 72 for what it said was their failure to keep up with duties assigned them.

This resulted in some 3,000 being laid off in the dispute, which takes out of production Ford's only automatic transmission plant for Mustangs, Fairlanes and other compact and intermediate cars. cars.

Ford said workers have been told to be on hand today but it had no idea whether they would refuse to work after the first few hours, as was the case some days last week.

Current three-year contracts will have only nine days to run when company offers come Tuesday. UAW vice-president Leonard Woodcock has said their will be no extension beyond Sept. 6.

RUSSIANS START TOUR

OTTAWA (CP)—Eight Soviet construction specialists today begin an 18-day tour of Canadian construction projects. The group is headed by I. A. Ganichev, deputy chairman of the state committee for construction.

Among the points they will visit are Montreal, Toronto, Oakville, Ont., and the northern centres of Yellowknife, Fort Smith, Hay River and Inuvik.

BRITONS HAPPY

Draught Beer Due Shortly With Spigot

LONDON (CP)—It had to come—any regular at a local pub would tell you that—and to thousands of Britons it will be a milestone in the brewing industry.

British Oxygen Co. has announced an agreement with Davenport C. B., one of Britain's largest packaged beer companies, to market draught beer in seven-pint cans equipped with miniature beer taps.

The spigots are specially made to keep the beer from going flat after the can is opened and to deliver a rich topping of foam that many pub regulars consider their due.

In the past, Britain's draught drinkers, many of whom would rather fight for a pint of draught than switch to bottle beer, had to contend with canned draught which would go flat if it was not consumed quickly.

SOLVED TAP PROBLEM

A spokesman for British Oxygen said Monday the company has solved the problem with its new tap. It will dispense beer from a can while keeping the remainder fresh for weeks by discharging a protective shield of carbon dioxide.

Special cans to take the new spigot had to be ordered by Davenport and the company says it will produce a new brew in a seven-pint container.

The bitter will cost about $2.15 a can and will slightly undercut pub prices of 35 cents a pint. But there is a fly in the brew.

The spigot, which can be changed from can to can, will cost $3.75 and some competitors feel this will prove a deterrent for beer buyers.

Customers, after buying the spigot, must also shell out 10 cents for a new tube of carbon dioxide each time they get a new can.

La Presse Under New Ownership

MONTREAL (CP) — A front-page announcement in La Presse, Canada's largest French language daily newspaper, disclosed last week that a transaction bringing its family ownership to an end is complete.

The brief announcement said Trans-Canada Corporation Fund, a large Montreal holding company, became proprietor of the newspaper Thursday. Names of new directors were listed but no member of the Berthiaume family, connected with La Presse almost since its foundation in 1884, was included.

Salt Water Slices Oil Profit

Some of the water is being used to help prolong the lives of oil wells that need a bit of artificial assistance to remain productive.

Safe disposition of salt water produced with oil has been a problem ever since the industry was born in 1859 in Pennsylvania. Current water conservation programs have added emphasis to the projects.

The magnitude of the problem was outlined recently by the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association as president John's water pollution control advisory board made a four-day tour of the state.

The board was told that, on the average, about 2½ barrels of salt water are produced for every barrel of oil.

"This adds up to an average of 7,500,000 barrels of salt water brought to the surface daily," said Ray H. Horton, chairman of the association's air and water conservation committee.

"We estimate the industry in Texas is spending between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 a year to dispose of salt water."

SHARP

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — With Canada playing a key role, the top 10 industrial nations of the non-Communist world agreed Saturday night to a reformed system of credit aimed at boosting international trade.

The compromise plan was hammered out in 9½ hours of horse-trading among finance ministers of the "group of 10," who climaxed four years of discussions by ironing out final differences and reaching unanimous agreement.

The new scheme — when finally approved by the International Monetary Fund and the parliaments of all the nations involved — will provide a new credit facility linked to the IMF reserves. It will be a contingency plan, going into effect when the IMF decides that one or another country needs more financing for its international trade.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp said after the session that for Canada the decision is "one of the most important developments that could possibly take place for a country greatly dependent on foreign trade as we are."

"If some system like this had not been worked out," he added, "I am satisfied that world trade could be greatly hampered by shortage of reserves."

CANADA HELPS OUT

The Canadian delegation headed by Sharp helped bring about one of the major compromises that resulted in final agreement late Saturday.

Until this final meeting, there had been disagreement over the way countries might use the new credit facility. Some, including Canada, wanted it "harmonized" — to have it used at the same rate as a country's own reserves. Others wanted each country to be able to draw a specific percentage of the IMF's total allocation to under the new system.

Canada sidetracked its own inclination and made the final motion to set up a package deal of the two types, but with the second one predominant. Thus over a five-year period a country would be able to use an average 70 per cent as a ceiling.

No allocations were fixed at this meeting and the amount that might be added to world credit facilities remains unknown until after the plan has gone further along the line towards ratification. The first move now will be to place it before the governors if the IMF at Rio de Janeiro in the last week of September.

After that, it will have to go before the legislative bodies of the countries involved. The process could take until 1969 before the plan is in operation.

PROSPERITY FORECAST

U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler said Sunday the plan could spell larger prosperity for rich as well as poor countries. He said the "odds are heavily in favor of it being accepted at Rio."

A second major compromise made Saturday was to let France have its way on what proportion of the International Monetary Fund voting power would be necessary to activate the contingency plan once it had been set up.

The other countries agreed that 85 per cent of IMF voting power would be needed. Since France and the other countries of the European Common Market have 17 per cent, this would give them a veto if all voted together.

Agreement on this point represented a concession by the United States, which makes the largest contribution to the fund. Other countries engaged in the final discussions — in addition to Canada and France — were Britian, Japan, Swden, Italy, Belgium, Holland and West Germany.

Winter Work Time Cut One Month

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Manpower minister announced a five-months municipal winter works incentive program for 1967-68 one month less than the program last winter.

The federal contribution to municipalities amounts to 50 per cent of direct payroll costs but it is increased to 60 per cent in designated areas.

The program will be the same as last winter's program with two exceptions:

The first change is that it will be for five consecutive months instead of six. But each province will have the option of choosing whether the program is to begin on Nov. 1 or on Dec. 1.

The second change is that the program will apply to capital projects only, for example purely maintenance activities such as brush clearing will not be included.

The new terms of the program were announced by Mr. Marchand following a federal provincial meeting held last week between the minister and provincial ministers of municipal affairs.

At that conference a week ago ways and means were discussed of improving the program to make it more effective in reaching its objectives.

The minister agreed that this fall there would be a federal-provincial examination of the ways in which federal and provincial action could most effectively increase winter employment in future years.

OTTAWA (CP) — Railway passenger traffic in Canada jumped 16.5 per cent between April and May, probably because of travel to and from Expo, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

If you had a car that didn't break so often, you wouldn't be broke so often.

Volvos are built so strongly they're driven an average of eleven years in Sweden where there are no speed limits on the highways, where there are over 70,000 miles of unpaved roads, where driving is virtually a national pastime. Drive a Volvo 1445 at David Motors Ltd. If you are not especially excited about the way Volvos hold up, you may get excited about the way Volvos perform: Volvos run away from every other compact in their class, yet get over 30 miles to the gallon, even with automatic transmission.
